'I Hope' Suggests Ideal Type Lunch Box For Millions Who Have to Carry Them

By BLANCHE SPANN PEASE

Hi there, all you nice people! Some how or other November just seems to be the month for you to specially use a lot of good cranberry recipes. Anyway, that's the way it seems to me. How does it seem to you?

There's a new version for cranberry sauce — it's cranberry - pineapple sauce and honest I y, what a pair those two make! You'll find this kind of sauce is super. You may can it, too, if you want to. You'll need 1 1/2 cups sugar, 1/2 cup water, 1/2 cup canned pineapple juice, four cups cranberries, one cup canned, drained shredded pineapple, two tablespoons preserved ginger. Boil water, sugar and pineapple juices together for five minutes. Add cranberries and cook, without stirring, until all the skins pop open. Add pineapple and ginger and let stand in saucepan until cool or prepare for future use. Makes 1 1/2 quarts sauce.

Ever eat any cranberry nut bread? Well, it's a special holiday type of bread, but you can serve it any day of the week and the family will heap the compliments on your willing head. You'll need a cup of cranberries, 1/2 cup sugar, three cups flour, four teaspoons baking powder, one teaspoon salt, 1/2 cup chopped walnuts, grated rind one orange, one egg, beaten, one cup milk, two tablespoons melted butter. Put cranberries through food chopper, mix with half the sugar. Sift remaining sugar with dry ingredients, and nuts and orange rind. Combine beaten egg, milk and melted butter and add to flour mixture. Fold in sweetened cranberries. Bake in buttered bread pan in moderate oven about an hour. This bread slices best when one day old.

If you're looking for a salad for Thanksgiving, you might like to serve: CRANBERRY FRUIT SALAD. One cup cranberries, two tablespoons sugar, one cup unpeeled, diced apple, 1/2 cup diced canned pineapple, two tablespoons French dressing, one large avocado, three bananas, six walnut halves. Halve cranberries and add to sugar and let stand while preparing other fruit. Add apple and pineapple and marinate all with French dressing. Peel and cut avocado into six rings. Place one each in nest of lettuce. Fill centers with fruit mixture. Garnish with finger length cuts of banana first dipped in pineapple juice. Decorate with walnuts. Serves six.

rural school days. A great change is taking place in the rural school of today. Wonder what will happen in another 20 years. A vital question is before the world: religion in schools. I would like to hear the common peoples' opinion on this subject. We as free American citizens ought to be up on our toes in regard to these important questions.

Here in York, some of the public minded citizens are organizing a citizenship study center for aliens and adults. I think it is marvelous.

Now for a few household hints.

- (1) No apple for the teacher but she will appreciate your covering the youngster's school books with plastic. Use your old discarded plastic tablecloth. Bind edges in bright, colorful tape.
- (2) A "brae bright" trick with scotch tape. Use it to remove lint from dark woollens. Carry tape in your purse to keep cloths trim. No need to tote a cloths brush.
- (3) Hang your shoes on a curtain rod. Certainly, old curtain rods hung across the back of the closet door make grand shoe holders. Particularly for high heeled dress shoes.

I hear the call for dinner and another busy afternoon. "AN EX-SCHOOLMAM."

Necessary Evils— Dear Mrs. Pease: Mrs. Wehrly's observation on reaction to situations was very interesting and certainly a very timely topic with the back to school trek in full swing.

There are a great variety of reactions among pupils whether they are small fry entering school for the first time this Fall or college seniors. Some are going with great enthusiasm, others go because the law demands that they receive a certain amount of education or reach the age limit where schooling is no longer demanded of them.

There are the two extremes, of course. These are also the in-betweens who accept schooling as one of the "necessary evils" of their age and those who take to schooling just as they did to walking when the time for it came in their lives.

But the school lunch proposition brings forth equally as many different reactions among their mothers. Some worry and fuss and go to no end of bother to fix attractive, appetizing morsels for the school lunch, others throw together this and that and the results leave much to be desired in the way of appetite appeal and nutrition. Then there are the in-betweens in this group, too, who take to lunch fixing naturally and just fix a nourishing lunch without too much fuss and bother.

While we're on the subject of lunches, I might add that if I were of inventive nature, I'd concoct a thermos "cup" that would be patterned after the thermos bottle only a wide mouthed shorter bodied variety suitable for keeping such items as baked beans, excallopated potatoes, meat loaf, etc., warm for the "have to carry lunch pail" of millions of Americans.

In case some of your readers are seriously inspired by my suggestion may I also suggest a half-pint size for the school child and a large size for the working man's pail.

Which brings us back to where we started this letter—reactions. Now some folks reactions to my suggestion invention will be "Yeah, that might be nice", others will think if it could be done, some one would already have made one.

But who knows, Mrs. Pease, maybe some invention mind will click in the affirmative and say, "By golly, I think she's got something there, think I'll try it."

Bonus Letter— We have mailed a small prize to the writer of this letter, "Penelope." Dear Mrs. Pease: I have a lime gelatin salad recipe that is just real good for this time of year and is rather different too. So I honestly think your readers might want to try it.

PENELOPE'S MOLDED APPLE SALAD One package lime flavored gelatin, one and three-fourths cup hot water, one cup finely chopped apples, 1/2 cup finely chopped celery, 1 1/2 tablespoons lemon juice, three-fourths cup seedless raisins, two tablespoons mayonnaise, lettuce. Dissolve gelatin in hot water. Cool. Top apples and celery with lemon juice. When gelatin begins to set, fold in raisins, apples, celery and mayonnaise. Pour mixture into molds which have been rinsed in cold water. Chill until firm, unmold on lettuce. Serves six. Beet salads are not very usual, but we have one we think is good and it is so colorful.

MOLDED BEET SALAD Two tablespoons gelatin, two tablespoons cold water, two cups liquid from canned beets, 1/2 cup beets, diced, 1/4 cup celery, diced, 1/4 cup cucumbers, diced, 1/2 teaspoon salt, one tablespoon sugar, one teaspoon vinegar, one tablespoon lemon juice. Soak gelatin in cold water and dissolve in the beet liquid that has been heated to the boiling point. Add seasoning and stir well. Cool. When it begins to set, add vegetables and chill until firm. Unmold and serve on lettuce or endive with mayonnaise. Serves eight.

"PENELOPE" —tfw— Same Old Tune— Yep, we're singing the same old tune. We want you to send us a letter for The Frontier Woman. It should be written for use at Christmas time or after Christmas for when you read this, we will probably have all our November copy in and will be working on the December issues of The Frontier Woman.

So if you have any good recipes for Christmas cookies, candies, cakes, salads or desserts or any other such good recipes send them along. We will welcome any other sort of Christmas ideas, too. And of course, we always welcome the regular type of letter. Send your letters to: Mrs. Blanche Pease, Editor, The Frontier Woman, Atkinson, Nebr.

Each week we use two readers letters. We award a three-months' subscription to The Frontier for each.

SANDHILL SAL Don't look now, but the rest rooms I wrote on have never been written on. Best recipe for safe driving: Always drive as though a cop were watching. I saw the other day where an 80-year-old man broke his leg trying to put his toe in his mouth. Just trying to adjust himself to his second childhood no doubt.

You don't need to put off until tomorrow what can be done today, if you can get somebody else to do it.
