SMALL DOSES -- Past & Present: A Fatted Calf for the Visitors

By ROMAINE SAUNDERS, Special Correspondent

A sizable group from Lincoln has been taking in Nebraska towns and the countryside getting acquainted, extending the glad hand, and getting a fleeting glimpse of a productive section of the state.

Back in the days of horse-motive power, a similar group from the capital city rolled into O'Neill on the Northwestern. They were met at the station by Mayor Jack Harrington, Councilmen Brennan, Fallon and Cowperwaite.

Wes Evans killed a fatted calf or two and the visiting gentry sat down to a whale of a meal in the dining room of the town's best hotel.

A GI receiving 30 percent disability pension and $90 a month because he is in school complains that he is excluded from a government loan to build a shelter for his wife, an expectant mother, and himself, as he is under 21.

scars of the battles of Petersburg, Hatter's Run, Appomattox, and other engagements, received $4 a month pension and never made any complaint. I know. He was my dad.

Invitations, written in gold ink, were received by neighbors last week for open-house at the ranch home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Watson on Sunday, June 23.

Tom Salem, a fixture in Amelia for 40 years, and, until a year ago in the general merchandise business, has moved the 10 miles to Chambers where he will make his permanent home.

The loss of 150 young turkeys within the space of a few hot days is reported from the R. E. Bly ranch. An undefined disease overtook the flock.

The stockmen tell us the sandhills cattle are "essential in providing protein in human diet." How about sandhill beans?

Wonder if that supreme court incident isn't being over-worked.

IN COMMUNITY THERE IS STRENGTH

The cornerstone of democracy is said to be the traditional Town Meeting. The strength of the nation lies in its community life. All communities, large or small, have similar objectives, similar plans for progress and betterment. As these elements apply in a single community, they likewise apply—but on a larger scale—in a "community of communities."
