Warm-hearted friends, de-voted sons and daughters, throngs of humanity, good, bad and indifferent — cherished memories in life's fitful dream. But, there is a bit of the hermit in us all. It's great to be 'home on the range.' * * * There is a town up in Maine known as Damariscotta. The weekly newspaper published there adorns its masthead with this bit of wisdom: "The error of the ages is preaching without practice."

War dad, G I., Legionnaire, V.F.W., seem likely to become the passport to public office, as G.A.R. served a similar purpose for half a century.

... SHALL NEVER BE DIMMED

LIGHT has always symbolized freedom and peace. The brilliance of its rays has dispelled darkness, gloom, shadows of doubt and despair. On the occasion of this first peace-time Independence Day, following the world's most terrible conflict, one will do well to reflect upon the glorious history of these United States and to resolutely re-affirm our faith in this country's future. The ideals and practices which have made this nation great are fundamental. The achievements of a free people have brought great progress and happier living throughout the world. Let us declare in our hearts and minds, and proclaim to the world that the lamp of freedom shall never be dimmed.
