SMALL DOSES - Past & Present:

Shades of John Smoot!

By ROMAINE SAUNDER S, Special Correspondent

Shades of John Smoot! Starting July 15, Holt county barbers take orders from a "board" down at the Capitol city. Another group joins the procession of things "regulated."

Has Yankee intelligence sunk so low, self-sufficiency become so withered, business qualifications so feeble, individual initiative so abandoned, that another salaried set of officials has been set up to overlord the tonsorial industry?

And John Smoot, the two-fisted, gun toting John, behind his gleaming barber pole over across the street next door to Stannards, there would have been brimstone picturesque and emphatic in the old town if this thing had happened in his day.

It is wearisome standing for hours at a barber chair and no man would deny adequate pay for the work. Establishing minimum prices by law once started, where is the end? Official regulation is fostering both paternalism and anarchy.

In an orderly country town, representative of ideal American village life, there lives a gent who has survived the whips and scorns of time for more than three score years and met the villagers and blush of shame. He has been made a victim of official interference in his business and now declares he has lost his pride in his country. Is this typical? Is officialdom to be held responsible for a loss of faith?

Maybe some of us should put on an Army uniform, tramp through the swamps and trails of jungleland and come back to America, perhaps with patriotism and pride reborn.

Another grand old couple have passed their 50th wedding anniversary. I have known Mr. and Mrs. Beha more-or-less intimately thru the years and have never heard either of them speak an unkind word of anyone. Young men and women uniting their interests to launch out on life's uncertain trail may draw inspiration from such as this worthy couple.

LIKE THREADING 50,000 NEEDLES—that's how accurate and steady-handed you have to be to hook this new equipment into existing telephone circuits. And that's why this work takes time. You're looking at only one of many costly pieces of equipment that must be installed before telephone service can be as good as we would like to make it. We're working to catch up with demands accumulated in the war years when little or no building was possible, and to be ready for tomorrow, too. In order to do this job in the five states in which it operates this company expects to spend $100,000,000 during the next few years. This money must come, not from "war profits"—for the telephone company made none—but from investors attracted by earnings comparable to those afforded by similar investment opportunities.—NORTHWESTERN BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY.
