The Stability of the Home

By ROMAINE SAUNDERS, Special Correspondent

The golden wedding of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Tomlinson is announced for next Sunday. I do not recall the 1896 event uniting this estimable couple for the sufficient reason that at about that time I had launched out and was budding into journalism in a good little Nebraska town that thrived because of the wealth of corn and hogs brought to market.

Mr. Tomlinson and I were contemporary — not contemptible — kids in neighboring Wisconsin communities. Only because I know Hank can take it, congratulations are offered Mrs. T. for putting up with him for 50 years.

Oddly enough, the first recorded words spoken by the human voice introduced the home: "This now is bone of my bones and flesh of my flesh, she shall be called woman... therefore, shall a man leave his father and mother and shall cleave unto his wife."

The strains of the wedding march echoing across a half-century assures the stability of the home.

Probably the most formidable barrier confronting the spokesmen of United Nations, recognized or not, is not political but religious. Buddhists and Brahmins, Shintos and mystics, Mohammedans and Hebrews, Christians split into a thousand fragments, creed-bound, and tradition strangled.

In this mad age another attempt is made to brew the nationalities, the philosophies, the religions, the accumulated ingredients of civilization in the cauldron of world empire.

Ostensibly, each part is to function as a separate nation. But there is to be a hand on the throttle—a watchful eye over the whole. Imperial Rome did no more.

As has been asked a thousand times of mechanical contrivances: Will it work?

"Freedom of speech and religion, from want and fear." Conscientious objectors are in prison camps, Utah citizens are in jail for adherence to a creed, the law takes a hand when members of a cult fondle copperheads

Almost Everyone in Nebraska Benefits from Consumers State-Wide Electric Service

"Doctor, Lawyer, Merchant, Chief..." This is another way of saying, "you and you and you"—almost everyone, in fact, benefits from the unified, state-wide electrical service of Consumers Public Power District. Directly and indirectly, individuals, firms, homes, farms, and factories—all who use reliable, low cost electricity made possible through the facilities of Nebraska's own state-wide electric utility, share in the benefits. For Consumers is owned by the people it serves—There are no stockholders to be paid dividends. Of these benefits perhaps the greatest are an outstanding, dependable electric service and low rates. As a matter of fact, according to a recent Federal Power Commission survey, Nebraska's electric rates, on the average, are lower than any other mid-western state bordering on Nebraska. Interconnected facilities bring about economies of operation and make it literally possible for Consumers to SAVE as it SERVES.
