..STILL NOT ENOUGH STORZ

MORE IS COMING BUT PRODUCTION IS STILL RESTRICTED

The recent order partially restoring grain allotments to brewers will not mean a sudden increase in the supply of Storz Beer.

Even with this new grain order, beer production is still 15% under what it was in September, October, and November of last year — which was far below pre-war levels.

So additional grain does not mean enough Storz for everyone. Restrictions still limit output. Some beer still must go to the men in our armed forces. And in addition, the demand for Storz beer is greater than ever... so there just is not enough to go around.

And, it takes time to brew beer of Storz quality. It is "Slow-Aged." With Storz, quality is always first. No shortcuts are ever taken or substitute materials used. No sugar. No wheat. Every drop aged to perfection.

But more Storz is on the way... and you know that each bottle you get will have real Storz quality, the very best you can buy.
