Improving Tavern Standards By Education

This Committee's chief aim is to maintain good conditions in places where beer is sold. We offer suggestions for improving practices in the belief that the best informed beer retailers are the ones most likely to operate their places to conform with the public interest.

For example, we caution against permitting loud and boisterous conduct among patrons, and we remind retailers that loud music from a radio or nickelodeon may be annoying to neighbors and passersby. We urge that the beer retailer keep firm control of his place at all times.

Specific complaints against the few offending beer retailers are reported by our field man. A letter of warning and advice goes to the retailer. A "thank you" and a pledge to make immediate correction nearly always comes back to us. Only rarely is it necessary to follow through with more severe action against those who do not operate in the right way.
