 The junior and senior groups of Westminster Fellowship, the youth organizations of the Presbyterian church, joined with Presbyterian churches all over the United States in celebrating youth week. The week of special activities was opened Sunday morning at the morning worship service when the entire service was conducted by youths. The music for the service was brought by the junior choir and eight different young people had the various parts of the worship service together with the message of the morning.
 More than 20 members of the Senior Fellowship met each morning of the week before school for a morning devotional service led by the pastor.
 The Junior and Senior Fellowship groups were served a banquet by the Ladies Guild on Wednesday evening after which a program, worked out by the sponsors of the two groups, was presented by the young people.
 The Senior Group entertained themselves at a party in the basement of the church on last Thursday evening and the Junior group were served a luncheon by the elders of the church Friday noon.

 The week's activities will close Sunday evening with a spiritual note in a service of consecration led by the pastor.

PICTURE NEWS OF THE WEEK

A howl comes not from the dog, this time, but from one-year-old Robert George Eiserman, when 10 cocker spaniel puppies back him into a big armchair. . . Look well at this man for he is one in millions. John C. Scott, New York World War II veteran, is fighting like a Trojan to make the Government stop giving him a pension. An eye injury is the point of contention, Scott claiming it happened before military service, the Government insisting on paying a pension. . . Quadruplets born to Mrs. Charles Henn, jr., of Baltimore, Md., were one-month-old before the mother was allowed to smuggle them in her arms. . . Apt pupil at a new winter golf school at Akron, O., is pretty Adelyn Summer. Next summer she'll brighten the fairways.

Early Scribes 'Ate Voraciously and Talked Voraciously'

This week marks what well might be celebrated as the anniversary of the Nebraska Press association, for it was just 74 years ago this February 14 when the editors of the state banded themselves together in a permanent organization.
 This background on the NPA was published this week by James C. Olson, superintendent of the State Historical society, in his weekly press release, "Out of Old Nebraska."

The Nebraska Press association was organized on February 14, 1873, at a meeting held in the old capitol building in Lincoln. A constitution was adopted and a set of officers elected. Charles H. Gere, of the Nebraska State Journal, was chosen the first president.
 To be sure, the Nebraska Press association was not the first organization of editors in Nebraska. As early as 1859 the editors of the Territory had formed themselves into a group known as the Editors and Publishers Association of Nebraska. This was not a continuing organization, however, and although two other meetings were held prior to the 1873 meeting, they all appear to have been separately called conventions.
 One of the primary objectives of that first meeting was an attempt to get editors to refrain from bandying personalities about in their news columns. This apparently was not successful, for if there is anything in which the early papers of Nebraska are rich, it is in personal references to both friends and foes of their various editors.
 The second editorial convention, held in Nebraska City in 1864, was concerned with more tangible problems—advertising and subscription rates. A schedule of charges for both was drawn up and adopted, but like the earlier efforts of the organization it does not appear to have had much effect.

 Since 1873, however, the association has had a continuous existence and has grown in size and in influence.
Take Excursion
 Beginning in 1875, the Association adopted the practice of sponsoring editorial excursions. The first of these took the members of Nebraska's fourth estate to Atchison, Topeka, St. Joseph, Kansas City, and Omaha, winding up finally at Kearney.
 The second such excursion took place in 1877, when the editors of the state went out to Salt Lake City. According to the History of the Nebraska Press Association, "Traditions are still extant in the capital city of the once named territory of Deseret, concerning the first editors of Nebraska, who are yet remembered as men of large brains but larger mouths, and who talked voraciously and ate voraciously."
 (That History of the Nebraska Press Association, incidentally, written by Henry Allen Brainerd, and published in 1923, makes very good reading, for in addition to giving the facts of the association's development, the historian lets pass no opportunity to kid his fellow workers, as above.)
 From small beginnings, the Nebraska Press association has grown into an organization which includes virtually all of the papers of the state and which maintains a permanent office in Lincoln, whose function, among other things, is to distribute this column.

GIRL SCOUT NEWS
 Suzanne Moss, Troop Scribe
 The Irish Lassies, Girl Scout troop number one, had their regular meeting February 2 at St. Mary's academy. Plans were made to take up first aid starting at our next meeting. We all hope to earn our first aid badges.
 Sister Edmund has been given permission to direct us in a short play and a few songs, which will be given in the Spring when Sister presents her music pupils in a recital. We are working for our badges in dramatics.
 The Irish Lassies collected $140 for the march of dimes infantile paralysis fund. Judy Martin and Mary Murphy won the prizes for the scavenger hunt.
 We hope to have our Girl Scout uniforms soon as we are now registered Girl Scouts. After the meeting some of us went for a hike and had a lunch at Slat's cafe.

Baptist Society Meets
 CHAMBERS—The Baptist Missionary society met last Thursday at the home of Mrs. Andrew Gilbert with 11 members present. Mrs. Fred Catron was a visitor. The devotional lesson on prayer was led by Mrs. Vernon Smith. Lunch was served by the hostesses.

Return to Kansas
 EMMET—Mr. and Mrs. Robert Allen and family returned to their home at Topeka, Kans., Sunday after spending the past 10 days visiting Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Allen and Mrs. Agnes Gaffney.

ATTENTION! FARMERS & RANCHERS

- OUR GOVERNMENT SAYS THAT CATTLE GRUBS COST THE CATTLEMEN OF THIS COUNTRY OVER A MILLION DOLLARS EACH YEAR. TESTS SHOW ONE-FOURTH POUND MORE GAIN PER DAY ON TREATED CATTLE THAN ON UNTREATED CATTLE. MILK COWS DECREASE THEIR MILK FLOW ABOUT 20% DURING HEEL FLY SEASON. SPRAY FOR GRUBS SHOULD BE APPLIED WITH AT LEAST 350 POUNDS OF PRESSURE. THE STRONG PRESSURE OF THE SPRAY LOOSENS THE SCABS HOLDING THE GRUBS IN THE BACKS OF THE CATTLE AND LETS THE ROTENONE SOLUTION PENETRATE INTO THE GRUB WHICH KILLS IT AND THUS BREAKS THE LIFE CYCLE OF THE HEEL FLY.
- WE HAVE TWO LARGE POWER SPRAYERS, OPERATED BY EXPERIENCED MEN, FOR CUSTOM SPRAYING OF CATTLE. IT IS TIME NOW TO MAKE YOUR PLANS FOR GRUB TREATMENTS.
- WE FURNISH THE MATERIAL, WHICH ALSO KILLS LICE, AND WE WILL DO YOU A GOOD JOB FOR A VERY REASONABLE CHARGE.
- CONTACT US AT ONCE AND ARRANGE TO HAVE YOUR CATTLE SPRAYED WHEN ONE OF OUR OUTFITS ARE IN YOUR COMMUNITY.
