What the Law Says About Selecting Beer Retailers

Licenses will soon be issued to the tavern-keepers who will operate in your town next year. The law covering the selection of these operators provides ample safeguards against the licensing of the unworthy. The law specifies that the local governing bodies of cities and villages have the right to examine, under oath, any applicant for a retail license or renewal. The board may authorize its agent or attorney to act in obtaining any desired information.

Further, the law provides that the local governing body must consider any signed complaint from any citizen of a violation of the law or any objectionable conduct on the part of an applicant. A license may be revoked, or a new license refused if there is cause.

This Committee urges the cooperation of every citizen in bringing law violations to the attention of licensing bodies.

PRAIRIELAND ... TALK

LINCOLN — Maybe public school teachers are not getting enough pay. Who is? I could use a little more. But public school teachers are getting handsome pay compared to the church school teachers, who have found something in the teaching job that transcends the filthy lucre.

When public school teachers resort to the strike they are in a class with miners and factory hands. School boards are helpless to increase teachers' pay when once the budget estimate and levies are made. My own judgment would be to let the teachers strike until they found the coal bin and the flour barrel empty and were ready to return to the job, as happened not so long ago in the great city of Chicago.

There are citizens in Holt county, touched with gray by the remorseless hand of time, whose character, culture and worthwhile knowledge compares favorably with those strutting across the scene today. They got a few winter's schooling in a homestead dwelling out on the prairie, the feet of the $20-a-month teacher clothed in felt boots, the haybun per smoking, puffing, and sending out a little warmth. The noon lunch of cornbread and molasses seemed to contribute to the development of sturdy lads and young lassies, and the rudiments of learning thus acquired started them on the way to self-education, some ultimately knocking at the gates of great institutions of learning.

Canada and the U. S. Army engineers have concluded that the North magnetic pole has shifted from Melville Sound, a distance of 200 miles, to North Somerset Island, northeast of Bothia Peninsula, in northern Canada. It is not stated that the atom bomb is involved in the move.

The pressure groups clamoring for things that involve higher taxes may well watch their step. The tax load could become such as to drive property owners, the tax payers, to go on strike and not turn a dollar.

in as taxes. GOP notables are the conspicuous figures in Lincoln today. The annual republican Founders day affair is on. The wit and wisdom has been imported from the swamp Yankees and the feminine charm from the Buckeye state. Sen. Owen Brewster, of Maine, will be the principal banquet speaker, with the Nebraska delegation in congress as sparkling sidelights. There is to be an all-day affair at the Cornhusker.

The attractive feature of the ladies' luncheon will be an address by Mrs. Robert Taft, of Ohio, wife of Sen. Taft. Following the banquet at 6:30, the executive mansion will be a scene of brilliancy when Gov. and Mrs. Peterson hold a reception for the Nebraska members of congress.

One thousand are expected for the banquet. I don't know whether the precinct committeemen and committeewomen out in the sticks are in on this or not.

Chief Little Wolf of the Sioux tribe, stating his age to be 103 and claiming to have had a part in the affair up on the Little Big Horn, was looking for a fifth wife a while ago, laying down these specifications: 43-years-old, 145 pounds, not a squaw. Ninety-nine out of one hundred, he says, are booze hounds, having taken to fire water. Only one of his four wives was a squaw, and she was killed in the Custer campaign.

Lincoln friends of the late W. J. Bryan have plans to erect a monument to his memory and name a street as a dubious gesture to one of the state's notables. At the democratic national convention in 1896, the time honored tariff question was ignored in a speech by Mr. Bryan whose ringing oratory denouncing the gold standard brought the delegates to their feet and won for him the presidential nomination when this climax shook the walls of the convention halls: "You shall not press down upon the brow of labor this crown of thorns; you shall not crucify mankind on a cross of gold." Mr. Bryan lost the election, but the "cross of gold" continued to back the U. S. currency and does yet in effect, and while Mr. Bryan was borne along on a popular current for a time that convention speech marked his greatest hour. And now a monument of cold stone or bronze, a stretch of concrete over which motorists hurry—is that the goal of political bigwigs?

Ladies and others holding city jobs are soliciting signatures to petitions asking that a retirement plan for city employees be submitted to the voters next election; something that will take the sting out of the conventional way of retiring an employee, the more-or-less familiar note from the boss: "Your services will not be needed after this week."

The scientific V-2 rocket-builders will take a shot at the moon again in May. What happens then will determine the schedule for a swift ride to and from the lunar orb — if the brave souls now talking of manning the stellar ship don't back down. Scientific builders of 22,000 B. C. had greater ambition. While those of our generation are satisfied to just reach the moon, those old boys proposed to go still higher via a tower "whose top may reach unto the heaven."

On the theory that such a law could never be effective, Gov. Peterson vetoed the smoking in bed measure passed by the legislature, thus upholding the right of hotel guests to do as they please about it when they go to bed. Sixteen hours out of bed seems not long enough for some to suck a lighted fag.

Delinquency, social error, maladjustment, wrong environment, unfortunate mistake — the uplifters are making no headway and maybe what is needed is a return of the fire-eating preachers who landed squarely on the solar plexus and had but one word for it: SIN!

The backers of Columbus put up the equivalent of $2,115 and what has developed into Earth's best half was discovered. Richard Byrd's expedition absorbs well over $1,000,000 and nothing much comes out of the frozen wastes.

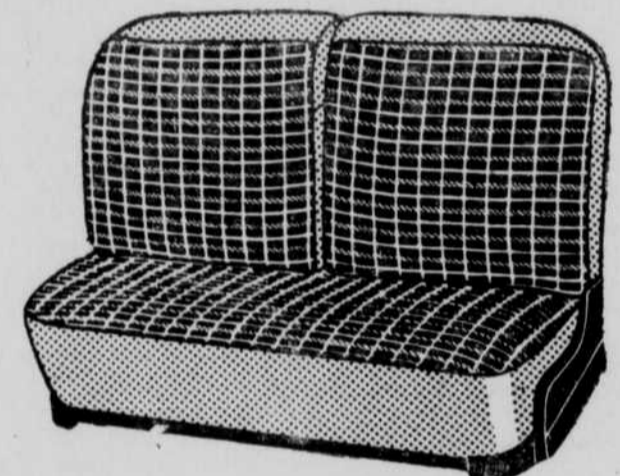

Those Muscovites see Yank-eeland through red lenses and maybe ours are tinted green. Communism springs naturally from roots reaching deep into Europe's blood-soaked soil, but don't try to ram it into a self-reliant Nebraskan.

The defeat by a vote of nearly two-to-one of a proposed bond issue for school purposes by the citizens of Madison is a fairly correct index to the sentiments of Nebraskans toward hitching on more taxes.
