We All Want GOOD Tavern Operators

YOU want competent, careful men to operate the taverns in your town. So do your neighbors. The brewing industry, too, wants its product sold by men who conduct their places of business in the public interest.

To obtain this result, the law empowers local authorities to examine, under oath, those applying for license renewals or a new license.

Further, local authorities must consider protests from citizens who report a law violation or had conduct on the part of an applicant.

A license renewal may be withheld or a new license denied if there is cause.

Re-licensing time is here. This Committee urges every citizen to act now in supplying evidence of misconduct or law violation.

Do your community a service by cooperating to insure that licenses shall be granted only to law-abiding operators.

PRAIRIELAND ... TALK

By
ROMAINE SAUNDERS ATKINSON
Route 5

The United Mine Workers' chief has bellowed again. Appearing before a house committee, the raving Lewis insulted courts, government officials, mine owners and the intelligence of substantial citizens everywhere. Capitalizing on the Illinois mine tragedy—one of scores of similar disasters that leave desolated homes throughout the land—he seeks to lay the responsibility for the grave of 111 mine victims at the feet of the secretary of the interior. Hear his roar: "I say it. I voice it. I proclaim it. And I care not who in heaven or hell opposes it."

Indeed. Upon what meat doth these our labor lords feed that they bestride the country like Colossus, while petty men on official thrones in Washington walk under their huge legs and peep about to see what happens next.

Mine disasters, hotel fires, railroad wrecks, airplane crashes, automobile smashups are taking their daily toll of human sacrifices as some of the price for an overloaded civilization. A single incident in the sickening sum of human tragedies has furnished the miners' leadership another chance to spew a torrent of bitterness.

Bricklayers are to get $1.97½ an hour and union carpenters are asking for $1.82 an hour and 40 hours to the week. Some grades of lumber are said to be $400 per 1,000 feet. With such costs confronting home-makers perhaps a solution may be found in a return to sod houses. The first buildings erected over at Butte were built of sod as was the case of a rival settlement to the south started by Shorty Webster and known as Mankato. Parker, some 12 miles northeast of O'Neill, was a sodhouse town. It was here Barret Scott was waylaid and taken to his doom. Sodhouses were the happy homes of many of the early settlers of southern Holt. The proprietor of a sodhouse escapes the plumber's ransom, painter and paper-hanger.

During a week's time the conspiracy was formed for the most notable illegal trial in judicial history that culminated in an unholy decree and the crime of Calvary. It seems a little odd that a memorial of this short, dark period should be known as holy week. Weeks for this and weeks for that are becoming so numerous as to threaten to overlap. Gov. Peterson has just added another to the list for Nebraskans. Perhaps a week at make-believe holiness will not avail much in the final reckoning, but with the right start holy week should continue throughout the year.

Wake up, brother, if you are the breed that takes home and wife and children for granted. With a glow of pride, hopefully looking for a word of praise that would give her a lift after the day's household cares, does the sweet woman show you a bit of needle work or a fresh loaf she has baked only to hear a grunt out of her husband as he turns to another page of the newspaper. A little praise, a little honest compliment mingled with the courtesies and niceties in family relations assures stable and joyous home life.

Edward Burke, former democrat and anti-New Deal U. S. senator from Nebraska, has been engaged to defend the action of Nebraska voters in adopt the right to work amendment to the constitution in an action in the Lancaster county court instituted by lawyers of American Federation of Labor.

The case will probably travel the route to the United States supreme court and from the remarkable findings of that tribunal in recent years anything can happen to the amendment.

Former Governor Griswold, writing from Berlin, sets straight Nebraskans who may have been looking for a choice bit of state house scandal. The onions and eggs from the prison store house brought to the executive mansion were for the benefit of two or three husky trustees in the custody of the state who were sent over from the pen to help about the premises when others quit for better jobs, Mr. Griswold explains.

Fancy figuring and complicated tabulations are neither enlightening nor convincing. The hard fact, the inescapable fact, haunts the property owner and wage earner alike that the tax load has become unreasonable.

It is said there are forty millions in the country without public health service. That many rugged Americans left?

So we are going to "get out of the mud," are we? Three-fourths of the year Nebraskans would like to see a little mud.
