LINCOLN — With three strikes called last week, the capital city had all the thrill of a great industrial center.

Bus drivers of the Lincoln City Lines, identified with some sort of a labor union, went on strike and the president of the organization assumed an arrogant if not insulting attitude toward the company manager in negotiations for arbitration. Eleven hundred of the fourteen hundred carrying on the work of the Western Electric, formed picket lines in which occasionally was seen a gent carrying a banner that put him down as not much affected by the strike trying to capitalize on his army service. Lincoln has automatic telephones and local service was not much affected by the strike of telephone workers. Most places of business reported full forces at work the first day of the bus strike, clerks and factory workers getting to their jobs by the helpful spirit of motorists that comes to the rescue at such a time. The courageous souls in the picket lines were bedraggled and dripping from the incessant rains.

called the Atlantic charter. And there was the Malta conference, the San Francisco gathering of notables buttressed by a cargo of colorless stuff they call vodka and the amber native fluids; adjournments from one world center to another and a few now talking it over in Moscow. And what? National, emotional and fundamental differences that forever erect barriers against common unity of mankind.

The defeat again of the retirement proposal for city employees in the capital city emphasizes the temper of taxpayers with respect to voting themselves any additional tax burden. Our fathers paddled their own way to the end of life's trail. Many groups now implore for a "retirement" pension which must come somehow from public funds. The social security act, of which Lloyd George of England was the instigator, provides insurance payments not from the public funds but from a trust fund created by capital and labor, yet administered from Washington.

A series of prolonged strikes gives Milwaukee something else to make the old town famous.

Predictions of rainless and grasshopper-plagued season. Then come April spraying daily showers from hourly overcast skies. Water-soaked soil holds a promise of fruits of the field. Does it in April? April, 1947, is a duplicate to date of April, 1894. Rain every day. Came July, 1894, hot winds blew out of Kansas across the Nebraska prairie-land, withering field and meadow to a hopeless yellow. Weather and land history, wasting wind and hot breath repeats its appointed functions.

Our Methodist friends report the addition of one and three quarters million to their membership as the fruits of a recent crusade. After a discouraging period for the churches, this seems to be a day that humanity turns to the clergy for the help statesmen have tried in vain to provide. Uncle Sam dickers for placing foreign loans but the church people of Yankee land are sending the bread and blankets.

It doth appear that Arbor day is on the way out. The demand no longer is woodman, spare that tree. The trees our fathers set out and cultivated with care are now falling victims to the demands of the times.

There are more people or Irish ancestry in the United States than there are in Ireland, but the 5,599,000 who came here were not so much interested in getting away from Ireland as they were to detach themselves from Great Britain.

DEATH

To Most Broad-Leaved Weeds!

Farmers... lawn enthusiasts... now you can get rid of pesky, costly broad-leaved weeds. Use Dr. Salsbury's Selective WEED-KILL, the wonderful new 2-4D concentrate* that kills these weeds right down to the root tips. Does not injure most grasses or small grains.

Dr. Salsbury's Selective WEED-KILL destroys these common weeds: thistle, dock, ragweed, cocklebur, poison ivy, chickweed, bindweed, purslane, dandelions, and many other broad-leaved types. Does not sterilize soil.

It's easy to apply WEED-KILL with a simple knapsack sprayer or an ordinary sprinkling can. Easy to dilute... economical! One pint, diluted, covers 6,400 square feet; one gallon, diluted, covers 1 1/5 acres. Ask here for Dr. Salsbury's Selective WEED-KILL.
