A Nationwide movement among the drug stores in adoping reasonable opening and closing hours has for many months been underway. The reasons for effecting this adjustment are many. We, in bringing to you our plans along this line, hope to obtain your understanding and cooperation and will in return strive to give you in return a better, more officient professional service. efficient professional service. The statewide survey of drug stores operating hours was obtained this past week and we feel you will be interested to know the majority of towns and cities the size of O'Neill and larger have adopted, long before us, the hours we are instituting. In many instances they have adopted even shorter hours as much as two hours per day less than we plan to serve you.

The shortage of reliable, experienced, registered pharmacists is more acute each day. The bidding for the services of these scarce men is very dear. The employment of sufficient registered help to handle fourteen hours of professional professional acute of the scarce sional services per day per store has become prohibitive from the standpoint of availability and cost. Rather than sacrifice yourselves and ourselves to the illegal practice of operating without this professional help, we feel obligated to operate within the limits of time a registered man is able physically and mentally to give alert, careful service. This necessitates a working day within the professional because limits necessitates a working day within ten or eleven hours limits and we believe this moreover exceeds the average business

The exacting toll of long hours on druggists the state over was exemplified this week in the obituaries of these men numbering in the amount of twenty some men. The death in most cases was attributed to heart attack and the life span of the average was far short of the average life expectancy of man. An interesting fact accompanies this death rate when you consider the total college graduates in pharmacy in Nebraska this year will be ten. The need for graduate pharmacists in this state alone runs into dozens of such men today.

A very touching letter came to our attention this week A very fouching letter came to our attention this week through an associate of a very good friend of ours who passed away last week very suddenly in Lexington, Nebr. This man was a leader in pharmacy and had long been a man serving his customers long hours. Only recently the druggists of Lexington agreed to close at 6:30 and this man, after falling in line with the idea, remarked to his associate what a blessing and relief it was to close his store at that hour. His death a few days later brought forth the some hour. His death a few days later brought forth the com-ment of his associate that he was afraid Tom had waited just a little too long to appreciate that relief. Tom was a little over forty.

The favorable remarks of many druggists and their customers the state over would fill an article of great length but in closing we are reminded of the remark of a prominent but in closing we are reminded of the remark of a prominent druggist of Gering, Nebr., who stated in a very heartfelt manner the fact that he had raised a family of three children, two of whom were practically strangers, so to speak, to him for their mother had always the job of raising them so seldom was he at home during their home life. The third, who is being raised at a time during which he is now able to be home part of a day, has found great favoritism with him and he greatly regrets the association he has missed with his older children. If we hope to have young desirable men entering pharmacy we must offer them something better in the future than 14, 16 and 18 hour days at a profession in order to make a living out of that profession.
