C. L. Kiltz, Wife Board Warships —on Western Tour

CHAMBERS—Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Kiltz returned November 3 from a four-weeks' visit with their daughter, Doris, in Denver, Colo., and with their son, Robert, and wife at Long Beach, Calif., and with other relatives and friends. Among those known here are: Mr. and Mrs. Howard LaRue and Mrs. Clayton Woods, of Pasadena; Mrs. Addie Frary, of Los Angeles; Mrs. Floyd Brenner, of San Diego, and Mrs. B. F. Doud of Long Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. Kiltz visited many places of interest during their vacation, among them the "Bride and Groom" broadcast at Hollywood; "dinner at Clifton's," "The Garden," "Knotts Berry Farm," "Ghostown," and a visit to Mexico.

They were on two warships, a destroyer, and an L-8-L. They visited the observatory on Mt. Wilson and at Griffith park, Forest Lawn Memorial park, the Rose Bowl, and Fern Dell park.

In Colorado they drove through Evergreen and Bear Creek canyons and visited the Mt. Evans. They visited friends at Salt Lake City, Utah, where they saw the Mormon tabernacle, the world's largest copper mines, and the famous Salt Lake.

The Royal Gorge and the Suspension bridge, which span it were also seen.

Visit Sioux City—

Mrs. Lowell Johnson, Mrs. Lee Osborne, Mrs. Ted McElhane and Mrs. H. L. Lindberg spent Wednesday in Sioux City.

SPOOKS BOTHER HER

This is what happens to little girls with pigtails when they read ghost stories which were never meant for their tender years. Well, anyway, it happened to Margaret O'Brien when she became too daring in her choice of reading matter.

GOLD CAVERN

Plenty of sparkle emanates from the mouth of "Diamond" Ted Lewis, of Gallup, N. M., when he lets go with a hearty guffaw like this. He has $10,000 worth of diamonds in his teeth.

Celia Bachelors Are Hosts to Bridge Club

CELIA—Lex and Paul Forsythe entertained their neighborhood bridge club Friday night. These two men are two of the more than half-dozen bachelors in the Celia community who run their own homes. They served an oyster supper to their friends. Those who enjoyed it were: Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Stevens, of Atkinson; Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Scott, of Atkinson; Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Allard and Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Allard, Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Samms, Mr. and Mrs. George Beck and Duane, Mr. and Mrs. P. W. Kilmurry and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kilmurry, all of the Celia community.

Mrs. Herman Klingler and Mrs. Fred Leiding visited in Orchard Wednesday.

PRAIRIELAND TALK

By
ROMAINE SAUNDERS

LINCOLN—During the first year of World War I he came into our plant wearing the uniform of a soldier. He was in the army to "end war and make the world safe for democracy." As he came to the composing room he stepped up to a case of type and did a few lines, a printer still. A quarter of a century later another young man dressed in the garb of the navy was heading out of town for the high seas and he said to me, "I'm going to do what I can." He had heard that seductive slogan of a greater world war, "Freedom from fear and freedom from want."

The navy sailed the seven seas, the armies marched to the ends of the earth, the heavens were darkened with winged monsters spreading ruin on fair lands and grand cities; mankind had plunged into the world's greatest; baptism of blood, countless millions perishing from off the earth in indescribable horrors.

And why? Masters were strutting across the land that must be crushed. And so the rallying cry of "four freedoms" set to throbbing the emotions of patriotic young America. How the ear delights in the music of a few words forged into a catchy phrase! Freedom from fear? Freedom from want?

Was there ever greater want throughout the world, was there ever greater fear than grips the hearts of sober, thinking men today?

Holt county people are no longer served ginger bread and spiced sauce by the local papers. Listen to this from the Atkinson Graphic of 40 years ago: "The pot-bellied editor of The Frontier considers it a great joke that no delegation of people from another town ever got decent treatment in O'Neill." Then some vituperative explosions over supposed slights when Atkinson went to O'Neill for a ball game. Now listen to The Frontier's retort: "The above is a sample of the idiotic rot dished up by his nibs, the bear-pole, who warms a chair in the office of the Atkinson Graphic." Then the "bear-pole" is written down as a liar, and all his classical epithets with which he blanketed O'Neill resented in red pepper language. A later generation live in cordial and helpful relationship, unmindful of the fireworks flaming out of their local papers nearly half a century ago.

I haven't fired a gun at a bird in 40 years, but somehow I find myself entertaining contempt for game commissions. These officials have become custodians of what nature has provided for every citizen. Clothed with the authority of a vicious law they confiscate property of citizens and assess heavy fines.

It was claimed the prohibition law made outlaws and liars of Americans. Game laws have the same effect.

It would be hard to put a finger on anyone in Nebraska who pretends to hunt who doesn't knock over some game "unlawfully." It was so on prairieland where I had a home for years. It was not uncommon to go to a sandhills lake and get half a boat load of bluegills without a state license to fish. But once a bureau or commission is created there is no chance to get it off the payroll.

A "nice couple" escorted a young blind woman to her door, grabbed her handbag, took the $18 it contained and made their get-away. Pretty lowdown stuff. But don't lose faith in the race. The same day in the same Nebraska city carpenters went to the crowded basement home of a couple, the man being confined to bed an invalid, and built a room onto their abode. The wives of these carpenters brought in a dinner. From his pillow the afflicted man turned his head and said to his helpful visitors, "I have a pretty good idea what the word neighbor means."

Seen on the streets during November: Young men with an arm in a sling or on crutches. This is football season.

School teachers are said to be among the low income patriots of Nebraska. The estate of a former Lincoln teacher is listed as personal property to the value of $37,836. How many hard working girls in other lines will accumulate that much above ample allotments of life's niceties along the way?

The country's greatest thoroughbred, Man O'War, is dead, death being attributed to a heart attack. So heart disease has its victims in the brute creation. But maybe Pat O'Neill, the barn custodian of Faraway farms in Kentucky where Man O'War died, would resent my reference to the great race horse as a brute.

Refusal to declare yourself on the communism issue may be tantamount to saying you are a red.

Thanks, J. S. K., for correcting me as to where the judicial proceedings were finally held that acquitted the slayer of Sheriff Barney Kearns. A booted gent serving on a frontier jury would not vote to convict anybody, maybe on the theory that he would be the next to face the judge and jury. Poor Billy, poor Barney—the bones of the one lie in a nameless grave, those of the other have had the care that devoted relatives can give. And what a tragedy to have been inspired by barbarous notions of fun!

There were some meatless tables in O'Neill 45 years ago. One of the town's meat dealers was said to be buying cattle for slaughter that had lumpjaw. It made something of a stir and the city council met and whereased and resolved and hung up a reward of $50 for evidence that would convict the butcher under suspicion. Some weeks later the meat merchant was brought into county court, where he entered a plea of guilty and was fined $50 and costs, total $100. Beef eaters reported no ill effects.

"Neb."—the preference of the many as the abbreviation of the state name. Not all are aware that "neb" without the period means bird's nest.

To become a member of the Russian reds you must first be injected with a knock-out dose of atheism. War is openly declared on God, church organizations, religions and superstitions. In cutting loose from the world's faith, young Russia anchors its faith in another god in the person of a squat figure with a prominent mustache and dark eyes looking out from under heavy brows. In so doing the worship of Diety is denounced in favor of an ideology idolatry.

Attend Homecoming —
INMAN—Ira Watson and Sam drove to Lincoln on Friday to attend the homecoming football game and visit W. W. Watson. They returned Sunday evening. Mrs. Earl Watson accompanied them as far as Norfolk where she visited in the home of her sister, Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Hartigan, returning Saturday afternoon.

Customer Support Helps the Tavern Owner

Most customers of Nebraska taverns have learned NOT to ask the tavern operator to break the laws of the state or the rules of good conduct.

Customers now realize that law-breaking jeopardizes the tavernman's business reputation which, in turn, reflects unfavorably on the whole brewing industry.

When you as a citizen overhear a customer asking the tavernman to do something contrary to law or the tenets of good society, just remind the customer that it is to his best interest to help keep the retelling of beer on as high a plane as that of any other legal commodity.

Such cooperation on the part of the public will help this Committee promote the maintenance of wholesome conditions surrounding the sale of beer in Nebraska.
