The Frontier Woman

By BLANCHE SPANN PEASE

Hi, there all you nice people. Goodness, Christmas is just around the corner and there is so much to be done before that day comes. Better buy your Christmas cards early and get an extra box. Use it to send to shut-ins and those who are ill to make their Christmas just a little more merry.

If you possibly have time, write at least a note to tuck in with your Christmas card. A card sent thusly is more than welcome—so give a little of yourself along with the card.

A Slick Trick—
 Give some special friend a box of stationery and put a stamp on each envelope. That's an extra special touch when you want to give something different and delightful. Or have some stationery specially made up for them with their name and address on the sheets and envelopes. Many firms will do this very reasonably.

Here Are Thrifty Nifties—
 You can iron ribbons under waxed paper, renewing and making them look like new.

Got the stubs of several old candles? Melt them down all together, mold in some small tin and add colored crayola to get the color you want. Insert a string for a wick. You'll have one large candle to use as a centerpiece or for other Christmas fun.

Wire clothes hangers make fine bases for evergreen wreaths. Bend the hanger in to a circle, keeping the hook for hanging purposes. Wind the greens around the wire, fastening securely. Add a ribbon or red satin, or other red material, or add pine cones around the wreath.

Prize Winning Letter—
 "A Busy Mother" from Inman wins today's three-months' subscription to The Frontier.

Dear Blanche and Frontier Readers:

I was very glad, Blanche, to find you had opened a department in The Frontier. I've often wondered why they didn't have such, and congratulate you on the new venture, and of course, wish you and the column lots of success. However, I realize the readers' letters to you that make such a column possible and so decided maybe I better do my part.
 Putting up school lunches for four youngsters is no small problem and it's always nice to get new ideas on the subject. Sandwiches need lots of varying. We use lunch meat, cheese, egg, and occasionally jelly or jam, or honey. When making the egg sandwiches beat up the egg before frying—it works much more satisfactorily. For the sweet, I usually provide cookies or cup cakes. They are so much easier to carry than cake. An occasional surprise gives a pleasant lift. Slip in fruit, candy, candy bars or I even sent a sack of chocolate coated popcorn to school one day for the entire school. This especially pleased the children—to be able to give something to others. I have jars with lids that fit nicely in the dinner pail as they like canned peaches, pears, or what have you.

 Well, I'll sign off for now, hoping some of my ideas prove useful to someone.

A Busy Mother, Inman.

Well, Busy Mother, I'm so glad you wrote us. We're glad to have you join our charmed circle (and by that charmed circle, I mean the people who have won Frontier subscriptions from the Frontier Woman). It tickled me to see you had addressed me as the Frontier Lady.
 Won't the rest of you send us in a letter for use in The Frontier Woman? We'd like so much to hear from you and you know, for each letter we use in our department, we give a three-months' subscription. Any one may enter, we don't care where you live, just so it's in the United States. Send your letter to Mrs. Blanche Pease, The Frontier Woman, Atkinson, Nebraska.

That's all for today. See you next week.

Sincerely,
 BLANCHE SPANN PEASE,
 The Frontier Woman

HEAP BIG BLANKET KEEP WIGWAM WARM ELECTRICALLY

The American Indian is noted for his "savvy" in recognizing a good value. You'll be impressed too with the remarkable values offered you in the new automatic ELECTRIC bed coverings — either electric blankets or comforters. And you won't need to send up any smoke signals to find out where to buy these heap big values. Almost every appliance store or bedding department in department stores have an ample stock for Christmas. Just imagine, you'll get eighty extra winks sleeping electrically because tests show that electric blankets, giving you warmth without weight, make it possible to get the equivalent of 10 hours sleep in eight. Scout around for one for Christmas. It'll be just like Indian Summer all winter long when you sleep electrically. Not too much wampum either, when you consider the cost of a pair of ordinary blankets.

Electric Blanket to Keep Wigwam
 New Britain, Conn. (AP)—Here's evidence that Indians aren't as rugged as they used to be:
 A local manufacturer reported Friday the sale of an electric blanket to a Sioux Indian in South Dakota.

Put something CHEERFUL on your CHRISTMAS MALE!

It's not the gift, but what the gift gives him, that makes a man—your man—grin wide and handsomely on Christmas morning. So give him "B.V.D." brand shirts, pajamas and robes and they'll give him comfort, style, action-freedom from sun-up to sun-up.

The "Ruggers" Shirt has a two-way collar that's smart and right with or without a tie. The buttonless "Rogue" shirt slips over his head easy as pie. Colorful gaiety and masculine ease in the B.V.D. Robe. And B.V.D. broadcloth pajamas give him a good night's sleep in any position. Watch his smiles when he spots the B.V.D. label—any man knows that B.V.D. invented comfort in men's wear.
