When You and I Were Young — Capitol Location Issue Faces the Legislature

60 Years Ago. One of the first important matters which the legislature should consider at its next session is that of capitol removal. Naturally, Omaha favors the present location, because it is convenient, and all communities are more or less imbued with self; but the broad view is that which consults the interest of the greatest number. Lincoln is almost on the eastern border of the state. In fact, she is so near to it that she is endeavoring to convince the board of transportation she is quite there.

When Lincoln was made the capital this was well enough, because the population was chiefly along the Missouri river. All this is changed. The march of empire is westward, and populous farming communities and prosperous over cities are to be found all over the state. The time has come when the present location of the capitol is an inconvenience to the great body of the population, and when a central and permanent one should be fixed.

Now for the Christmas festivities. Let O'Neill do herself proud this year at that time. Christmas should be made the most joyous season of the year. Let the people "rejoice with exceeding great joy" because of the occasion which that day commemorates.

50 Years Ago There was a "hot time in the old town" last Thursday night at the Thanksgiving ball given by the Spencer orchestra. Notwithstanding the fact that it was a cold stormy evening, there were about 40 couples present, and every one of them was there for the purpose of having a good time. And we rather guess they had it. The music was all that it could be desired, all the latest and most popular airs, and they were served up in two forty time. From the start to the finish it was a neck and neck race between the dancers and the musicians to see which could kill the other off, and in the final wind-up the musicians came out about three laps ahead.

In fact, they played a little bit too fast, for they set the rink on fire, at least the roof over the stage where they were sitting was discovered to be on fire about 11:30 and Sanford Parker insists that it was his hot orchestra that did it, although a few irrelevant ones say that it caught from a defective stove pipe.

When it comes to fishing, Wes Evans is the luckiest mortal on Earth. Last Friday he and Jess Mellor went out on the Eagle and caught twenty-one speckled trout, the string weighing eighteen pounds, and they were beauties too, some of them being over a foot in length. We didn't take his word for it either, as we saw them ourselves.

25 Years Ago The O'Neill-Ewing football game here last Thursday resulted in a victory for O'Neill by the largest score of the season, 98-0, in favor of O'Neill. The home boys have been playing an excellent game this year under the supervision of Prof. Suhr assisted by Dr. Tackler, who has been coaching the team.

A number of the residents of Inman have recently installed radio receiving sets in their homes and are daily enjoying "listening in" on entertainment in California, New York, and Texas.

While scuffling with some boys Thanksgiving day Edward Hancock fell and sustained a broken left arm in the same place in which it was broken during the fair in September.

Milo Gorgen, Bride Honored at Shower

INMAN — Miss Faye Brunckhorst entertained at a postnuptial shower in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Milo Gorgen at her home Friday evening.

About 40 neighbors and friends were present. The honored couple received many gifts. Refreshments of sandwiches, cake and coffee were served at a late hour.

Mrs. Gorgen was the former Marjorie Lines, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dora Lines.

Rev. J. W. Clapper attended an Assembly of God sectional fellowship meeting at Wood Lake last Thursday.
