Nebraska Has a Good Liquor Control Law

Nebraska's Liquor Control Law has many excellent features. One, often overlooked, provides that the State Liquor Commission has the right to formulate needful rules and regulations. And that it has the power to put these rules and regulations into immediate effect.

Thus, in Nebraska, any abuse of privileges committed by tavern owners or patrons may be corrected quickly — before the condition becomes serious or wide-spread.

This provides speedy and flexible control to meet changing conditions and problems.

The Nebraska Committee serves the industry and the public interest by informing tavern owners of their duties and responsibilities . . . and by supplying suggestions for helping improve tavern conditions.
