When You and I Were Young —

Deaths, Hardship, Electric Phenomena in Great Blizzard

60 Years Ago January 19, 1888 Several persons report a peculiar electric phenomena during the recent blizzard. Rev. D. C. Winship, on going into the kitchen without a light, noticed a peculiar sound, and looking toward the stove from which it seemed to emanate, he discovered bright sparks apparently of electric nature. An examination revealed the fact that the stovepipe had slightly separated and the sparks were passing from one part to the other. It was found by placing a finger in the space that the current was unpleasantly strong. On uniting the pipe a distinct charge of electricity was elicited by touching it with the finger. Similar tests revealed the fact that a heavy current of electricity was passing on the pipe of each of three stoves.

Miss Nellie Brown, who is teaching school west of Inman, stayed in the schoolhouse, keeping the children with her the night of the storm. A number of other teachers throughout the county did the same, the best thing under the circumstances that could have been done.

Fourteen deaths are known to have occurred in the county so far and there are possibly one or two more, yet we hope not. Including two in other counties we report 16 deaths from freezing during the recent storm.

The tram that was blockaded at Emmet last Thursday morning arrived in O'Neill Saturday morning. The passengers were glad enough to get away from their "prison" and tell some great stories of their experience. They were obliged to cut and burn the seats for fuel and they almost ran out of grub. At a recent bank meeting of the First National bank, the following officers were elected: W. G. Palmanteer, president; M. Flannigan, vice-president; E. S. Kelly, cashier; Finley Lyon, assistant cashier. These gentlemen and the following additional persons constitute the board of directors: Miss Mary Hecker, Frank Van Liew, W. W. Stewart and Robert Wormald. The bank had a prosperous year in 1947 and the year just opening promises to be equally so.

50 Years Ago January 20, 1899 How time does fly! While passing down the street the other day we noticed a sign, "Valentines," and the sight of it reminded us again that time, urged on by the spur of the moment, or something else, is truly fleeting. It seems but a few days since our Fourth of July headache; then came Thanksgiving indigestion; then a financial straggle at Christmas, followed by New Year resolutions which are long since broken. It will soon be Fourth of July and Thanksgiving and Christmas and New Years again, and thus the world wags away. Pope had the situation sized up about right when he said that man had just about sufficient time on this earth to look about him and to die. Married yesterday was Stephen Vauch and Miss Mollie Nitz of Leigh. Mr. Vauch is from Emmet where he is engaged in farming and stock raising. The couple will make their home of the farm. Tom Tierney made a trip out to Joe McCaffrey's ranch during the storm Monday. It happened in this way: Dominick McCaffrey was in the city and in a crowd spoke of it being a pretty tough ride out. Andy Morgan, who lives in the vicinity of the ranch, spoke up and said it was a pretty bad trip. Tom Tierney remarked that the boys were tenderfeet to be afraid of a day like that. Morgan said, "Huh, I'll bet you five dollars you don't dare drive it." Tierney produced his little old well-stuffed wallet, put up the money, hitched up his team and started. He was to return by 12 o'clock that night and bring a note from McCaffrey certifying that he had been there. The distance to the ranch is 20 miles, through a sparsely settled country, but Tom made the trip and had time to spare.

25 Years Ago January 17, 1923 At a recent meeting of the school board it was decided to add a commercial course to the present course of study in the public school. The course will consist of bookkeeping, shorthand and typewriting. John H. Potter has been employed to teach the subjects. It has become almost a necessity to teach good business methods in town schools.

Grand Duke's Hunt One of State's Colorful Sporting Events

Seventy-six years ago this January the newspapers of Nebraska were filled with accounts of one of the most spectacular sporting exhibitions ever produced in the history of the state—the great buffalo hunt of the Grand Duke Alexis, son of Alexander II, Czar of Russia.

The Grand Duke was in America on a goodwill tour, and someone decided that no trip to America would be complete without looking at the wild and woolly west. So Gen. Philip Sheridan of Civil War fame arranged to conduct the Grand Duke on a buffalo hunt in western Nebraska.

The arrival of the royal entourage in Omaha enroute to the buffalo fields was the signal for a hilarious celebration in Nebraska's metropolis. The Grand Duke was dined and wined at the home of Ex-Gov. Alvin Saunders and as soon as the dinner was completed the public rushed in to meet the Prince.

And a gaily assorted public it was, too. Everything from young men in full dress, to unshaven and unwashed frontiersmen with their trousseaus stuffed in the tops of their boots. When the Prince's train pulled out of the station in Omaha shortly after 3 a.m. the visiting dignitary was tendered a last gesture of western hospitality when someone in the crowd called out, "goodbye Alex."

Omaha Daily News: V. S. Marshal Dennis Cronin is back from an official trip to Washington after an interview with President Calvin Coolidge. "The president is greatly interested in agricultural conditions out here," Cronin said, "and he appeared well posted on the situation. Coolidge asked many questions and said he felt that improvements in farmers' affairs would continue."

Stuart Advocate: Tuesday morning a scene unparalleled in the annals of Stuart was viewed by many of our townsmen. A magnificent mirage made plainly visible the Rocky Mountains hundreds of miles away. They appeared so natural that it seemed that one had but to go to the west edge of town to start climbing. This was no cloud formation—no fake. It was a real mirage and the actual image of the stately Rockies appeared in the sky. A train pulling into Newport was plainly visible. On the south Burwell could be seen in the sky.

Such mirages are very rare and accompany peculiar atmospheric conditions when the light, temperature and humidity must be in a proper balance.

Out of Old Nebraska... Grand Duke's Hunt One of State's Colorful Sporting Events

saddle horses and a company of cavalry to get the group to its hunting camp. When they arrived they found the famous Indian Chief Spotted Tail and his braves waiting for them. That night the Indians put on a war dance for the Grand Duke which was so realistic that it sent shivers up the spines of the soldiers watching the demonstration. Too many of them had suffered the consequences of the real thing.

The next morning, with Buffalo Bill leading the way, the Grand Duke went in search of his buffalo. He finally came upon an old bull and, getting almost close enough to touch him with his gun, he fired. Needless to say, he got his buffalo. The next day he got another—this at a hundred yards with a heavy Navy revolver.

This ended the hunt and the party returned to the railroad to be carried back to civilization. Any who are interested in reading further will find a carefully detailed and highly interesting account in "Pioneers, Indians and Buffaloes" by Judge Bayard H. Paine, of the Nebraska state supreme court.

Surprise Party for Smiths—Friends of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Smith surprised them on Friday evening by coming to their home for a party. It was in a nature of a farewell party at the Smiths are moving to a ranch in Cherry county late in January. During the evening cards were played and Mrs. George Layh, sr., and Clarence Sausser won high scores. Low score winners were Mrs. Vern Grenier and George Bayh, sr.

Attends Frat Dinner—Larry Schaffer went to Lincoln on Friday and on Saturday evening attended the Sigma Nu "pig" dinner.

Mrs. White Hostess—AMELIA — The Amelia Progressive Club met last Thursday with Mrs. Pearl White.
