BACKGROUND FOR ERP

Lewis Douglas, U. S. ambassador to Great Britain, came bearing charts to congress to warn the legislators that timidity and reluctance to face facts on European aid may lead to "incalculable consequences" for America. Appearing before the senate foreign relations committee, he gave the group the state department's statistical background supporting the four-year European recovery plan.

Out of Old Nebraska — Sunday-School Missionary An Unsung Hero of West

By Supt. James C. Olson
State Historical Society

One of the unsung heroes of the Nebraska frontier was the traveling Sunday-school missionary.

In the early days it was impossible for each struggling pioneer community to support a church. To meet the need for religious work under such conditions, the American Sunday-school Union, with headquarters in Philadelphia, Pa., commissioned missionaries to travel about the frontier organizing Sunday-schools and making some provision for religious education in the various settlements.

In Nebraska, one of the most active of these Sunday-school missionaries was Chaplain C. H. Frady. A resident of Basile Mills in Knox county when he began his missionary work, Chaplain Frady devoted his time to the new settlements in northwestern Nebraska and the Black Hills region of South Dakota.

This area was just about the nation's last stronghold for the "wild and woolly" westerner and Chaplain Frady's attempts to bring Sunday-schools to the region taxed his resourcefulness, courage and faith to the utmost.

Chadron Escapade

An experience at Chadron clearly illustrates the sort of problem he was up against. He arrived there a few days after the Chicago & North Western railroad had been built into the town. He was told that the day before some of the cowboys had welcomed a minister at the station by shooting off his high silk hat. Shortly after his own arrival, it appeared that Chaplain Frady was in for the same sort of thing.

He was warning himself before an open fire when he was startled by a single file of cowboys on horseback coming on a high lope in his direction yelling at the top of their lungs and shooting bullets into the ground near his feet.

Chaplain Frady, however, was no tenderfoot, and instead of running for cover he cheered the boys on. Finding they could not intimidate him the boys gathered round and were told that the chaplain was holding a meeting at 10 a.m. and wanted them all there.

Sure enough they all came. After preaching a sermon the chaplain's next object was to provide supplies for a Sunday-school. He turned to the cowboys with these words:

This morning you had your fun, then you passed the buck to me. The game is still on, it is a dollar ante, every mother's son of you is expected to chip in.

And chip in they did — to the tune of $50. The cowboys had had their fun but Chaplain Frady got his Sunday-school.

Elkhorn Project Club in Meeting

Mrs. Lyle Green, with Mrs. Helen O'Donnell as assisting hostess, entertained the Elkhorn Project club at a meeting held January 14. The lesson, "Breakfast, a Family Affair," was presented by the leaders, Mrs. Bernice Fetrow and Mrs. Agnes Lawrence, who substituted for Mrs. Della Cook, who was ill. A luncheon was served. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. D. N. Loy with Mrs. Ray Lawrence as assisting hostess.

JOINS AIR FORCE

Eldon Wright, 17, son of Mrs. Lillie Smith, of O'Neill, has enlisted as a private in the air force at Offutt Field, Ft. Crook. Private Wright has been transferred to indoctrination division, air training command, at San Antonio, Tex., for 13 weeks of basic training.

When You and I Were Young — Rehearsals of Big Blizzard Dominate the Week's News

60 Years Ago
January 26, 1888

Not much news only rehearsals of how people got through the recent blizzard. Miss Etta Shattuck, the young lady who was so long in a hay stack south of Emmet, was brought to O'Neill Monday and on Tuesday was taken to her home in Seward, this state. Her father came up last week to take her home, but the weather was so bad they did not start out until Monday. The train being late on that day they were obliged to wait at the depot from morning until 3:30 p.m.

Miss Shattuck appeared very cheerful and looks upon the bright side, although the doctors say both limbs will have to be amputated below the knees. This is a very sad case, one we don't see often, a fact we ought to be thankful for.

We have all read, no doubt, of such cases, yet we cannot realize how terrible they are until we are brought face to face with them.

T. W. Jones had a very narrow escape the day of the storm which we did not learn of until this week. He was west of town about three miles when the storm came up. Thinking he could make it by keeping the wind to his left he started for town. Some time after he found himself at the southwest corner of the school section on the river west of Hagerty's place. By some well-known marks there he knew where he was and followed around the section to the northeast corner and thence to Mr. Hagerty's place, which he followed until he came to the depot. From there he had hard work to find the depot, but finally succeeded. It quite a miraculous escape for a man of his years, but he is used to roughing it and is better able to take care of himself than many a young man.

The heavy snows of this winter will, in all probability, bring good crops next year. At least that is generally conceded and we hope it will prove true. Good crops next year would do much to place out people in a better condition financially.

From the Atkinson Bee: Butterfield has returned from the Sandy. He says that an 8-inch vein of coal has been struck at a distance of 50 feet from the surface. This is a sure indication of some veins below. Mr. B. examined the mineral and found it to be the genuine article. As soon as the weather permits operations will be renewed. Northern Holt is destined to become the seat of extensive coal mining in the near future.

Patrick Barrett died last Monday at his home 3 1/2 miles north of O'Neill. Several years ago Mr. Barrett suffered from a severe attack of the grippe that shattered his strong constitution and he never fully recovered. It was from the effects of that disease that he died. Mr. Barrett came to Holt county in an early day and was one of our highly respected and substantial farmers. The funeral took place Wednesday at the Catholic church.

Miss Mamie Wingartner and Grant Hatfield were united in marriage Saturday evening, January 22, at the Methodist church, Rev. C. E. W. officiating. The bride is a young lady who has resided in O'Neill for several years and has many friends. The groom is one of our young business men who has spent many years in O'Neill and is well liked by all.

Editing a paper is a nice business. If we publish a joke people say we are rather brain-brained. I we publish original matter they say we don't give enough selections. If we give their selections. If we are too lazy to write. If we are a man a puff we are partial. If we compliment the ladies, men are jealous. If we don't we are publishing a paper not fit to make a bustle of. If we are too proud of our office with the "common herd." If we are not attending to business. If we wear good clothes we don't pay for 'em. Now what shall we do? Some may say we stole this from an exchange. We did.

CELIA SIDELIGHTS

Mrs. Alpha McKathnie arrived at the Stanley Johnson home last Thursday night and will visit with them for awhile.

Lee Terwilliger, of the Celia neighborhood, Mrs. Ernest Gotschall and daughter, Francis, accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Jack Wining to the livestock show at Denver, Colo. They left January 20, returned Sunday.

Mrs. Ed Bausch dropped in on Mrs. Stanley Johnson January 19. The day previous, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Johnson were guests at the Ed Bausch home. Also present at their home were: Mr. and Mrs. Herman Bausch and daughter, of Leigh, and Mr. and Mrs. Waver Bausch and daughter, Pauline, of Atkinson.

Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Pease, of O'Neill, spent January 21 at the Ray Pease home. Since they had not been there for sometime, they took time to look over the cattle, after the fashion of one farmer visiting another.

Perry Terwilliger cabled two stacks of hay for Claude Miller last Thursday.

Milton McKathnie was a dinner guest at the Stanley Johnson home on Friday.

Alex Frickel was a Sunday dinner guest of Ray Pease and family.

Conrad Frickel jr., Herman and Alex Frickel and Bob Pease attended the Weichman farm sale 13 miles north of Stuart on Friday. There was a "fairly good crowd" despite the bitter cold.

Mrs. Olgot Hammerberg, Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Samms and daughter, Dianne, went to O'Neill on January 20 to shop.

What is the Nebraska Committee's Function?

This Committee's single purpose is to help prevent abuse that might occur in the sale and consumption of beer; to see that conditions surrounding such sales and consumption are not against the public interest.

To accomplish this purpose, the Nebraska Committee (1) works for proper operation of beer retailing places, (2) helps correct or eliminate offending retailers, and (3) encourages public interest in these matters so law violations will be reduced to the minimum.

Progress has been encouraging. Most tavern owners now strive to conduct their places in the public interest. Most tavern patrons are moderate in their use of alcoholic beverages. Many citizens who are not tavern patrons cooperate by demanding strict enforcement of law and orderly conduct.

Still greater cooperation is encouraged.
