CALLING ALL SOURDOUGHS

In California the volatile inhabitants of the state were all excited about the celebration marking the centennial of James Marshall's discovery of gold nuggets in the tailrace of Sutter's sawmill near Coloma. Here, L. W. Loomis, in charge of mining exhibits at the Coloma centennial, pans gold near site of Suter's mill. He is aided (like no prospector was aided in 1848) by Delmira Ferrera (left) and Jean Ovieta, centennial girl of El Dorado county.
