PROSPECTS FOR ORGANIZED BASEBALL 'SLIM' WITHOUT ARCS

The city council Tuesday night heard a proposal for providing O'Neill with facilities for night baseball and softball. The plan would incorporate the present lights being used for night football.

Richard ("Dick") Tomlinson, O'Neill businessman and head of the O'Neill Rockets baseball team, told the council that the city's chances for future baseball "are slim" without lights.

Tomlinson, meanwhile, has been heading a solicitation of funds for the purchase of additional electric facilities. Todate the solicitation has netted $1,705.

Tomlinson was informally told that if the canvassing would raise $3,000 the city would consider assuming the balance, which would be in the neighborhood fo $2,400. It is estimated that $8,750 in electric apparatus is required to "adequately" light the Carney park playing field for multi-purpose use. The present facilities cost $3,350, leaving a dif-ference of $2,400. Meanwhile, the members of the American Legion in session decided to actually back the movement for lights. The Legion plans to field a junior baseball team again this year, and lights are considered imperative in order to create interest.

Manager Tomlinson said that four members of the O'Neill club have already been offered contracts by other teams. Acceptance is contingent upon whether or not the O'Neill Rockets will play again this year.

O'Neill is a member of the Holt-Boyd county league. Plans are already underway for installation of lights at Butte and Lynch, members of the same league.

Outside the league the night-playing facilities are being installed at Clearwater, Bassett, Valentine and Rushville.

Among cities and towns with present night facilities are:
Norfolk, Plainview, Osmond, Wausa, Ainsworth and Hartington. City officials took the view that the existing 1-mill park levy supplemented by some money from the general fund could be used to help finance the project.

Action was deferred pending completion of the canvass for

CHANGE IN PROCEDURE COMPELS

During the recent session of the legislature a new assessment law was passed which will go into effect this year. Some of the more important features of the law changed the assessment date from April 1 to March 10, precinct assessors were dispensed with, property holders must come to one of several deputy assessors instead of having the assessor come to the property owner, and the penalties for failure to abide by the

Under the new law the office of assessor is made a fulltime job and he will employ an office deputy and as many other deputies as necessary to assist the taxpayers in filing

The new assessment date is March 10, and all property on hand that date must be listed for taxation at its actual value, according to Couny Assessor L. G. Gillespie. The return must

The law requires, Mr. Gillespie points out, that every person over 21, firm, corporation, agent, receiver, administrator, or anyone owning or controlling property must make out and verify under oath a statement of all property owned or controlled within the county March 10. This applies to both res-
