When You and I Were Young — Counterfeit Coins May Have Been Made by Local Talent

60 YEARS AGO
March 1, 1888
Last Friday while Joe Miller and Will Cropper were working in the old Wilcox lumber yard they found about a dozen counterfeit 10-cent pieces. They were of the years 1886 and 1887, pretty well executed, but readily detected if one took a second look at them. One of them was quite imperfect and had a piece of metal clinging to it where it ran into the molds. It had been thought for some time that counterfeit money was being made here and this find rather confirms the rumor. Some time ago Dr. Morris found a number of quarters at the rear of his barn. A. H. Corbett has purchased McCoy's photograph gallery and will continue the business at the old stand. He will remove his dental office to the parlor of the same building and run the two in connection. The doctor's well-known promptness and methodical way of doing business will insure the public satisfaction in all respects.

It is desired that the business men and citizens of O'Neill, who are interested in her future prosperity and advancement, meet at the law office of M. F. Harrington Friday evening for the purpose of organizing a board of trade or association of some kind, whose object shall be the furtherance of the general interest of the town.

Atkinson Graphic: Messrs. Butterfield and Hornbeck, who are boring for coal on the latter's place about 23 miles north of here, were in town yesterday endeavoring to work up an interest in their enterprise among our business men. They have already reached a depth of about 200 feet, and have the very best indications of coal.

50 YEARS AGO

March 3, 1898
Az Perry was in the city Wednesday on his way home from Omaha, where he had been looking after his railroad project. It is the intention of Az and the party to build a railroad from O'Neill or Atkinson to Butte, the road to be built this season. Arrangements have progressed so far that a party of Omaha gentlemen will be here next Monday to investigate the project for Eastern capitalists.

If this road is built and indications are that it will bedroom of the restaurant operated by Glen Davis and wife.

From all reports the water was low in the supply tank and along with numerous complications that arose the firemen were unable to control the fire until the building occupied by the Davis restaurant, Peterson soft drink parlor and the Jacobsen shoe store were totally destroyed.

A musical program given by the O'Neill Woman's club was well received last Friday evening. Part of the program consisted of the story and musical excerpts from the opera "Shanewis." Miss Anna O'Donnell read the story while Mrs. H. J. Reardon and Miss Irma Stout sang and Mrs. Clifford B. Scott played the musical excerpts.

Mrs. Ada M. Conklin, wife of William E. Conklin, of this city, died at her home Wednesday evening at 10 following many months of failing health. One daughter, Mrs. Ethel M. Selah, of Bloomfield, and one son, Cecil W., of this city, survive her.

Paul Beha left Sunday night for Casper, Wyo., where he will look over the prospects for a business opening.

NEBRASKA CELEBRATES 81 YEARS OF STATEHOOD

MARCH 1 marks the eighty-first anniversary of Nebraska as a state. A glorious history of progress has been written in those four score and one years since President Johnson signed the bill giving our great commonwealth statehood. The history of Nebraska's growth and development is one in which every citizen can take pride. One chapter of this illustrious history is entitled "The Development of Electric Power." And on these pages is written the fascinating story of the magic of electric energy favorably affecting almost every phase of the state's economic and social development. Electricity is a basic factor that has contributed greatly to the increase of Nebraska's business, industrial, farm and home life through the progressive, efficient forces of better living. In recent years the history traces the development of hydro-electric power and the manner in which it has contributed to expanding irrigation in Nebraska. Through this influence irrigation has gained great impetus until today approximately one million acres are so benefited. Yes, the history of Nebraska has been glorious and efficient, economical electricity has played a major role in this vital drama of the building of an inland empire.

Nebraska Beer and Liquor Licenses Expire April 30

The tavern-keepers who will sell beer in your town for the year starting May 1 will be selected soon.

All must apply for a new license. The elected officials in your town will make the selections. Who will these tavern-keepers be? Will they be men of whom you approve?

YOU have an obligation in the selection of licenses. A public hearing affords you the opportunity of protesting the selection of any you find should not have a license.

Your interest in improving beer-selling conditions is genuinely welcomed by the beer industry. They, too, are anxious that only those are selected who observe the State's liquor control laws.

You will serve your community by urging the selection of none but good licenses.
