or fodder. In some cases it may even pay to grind it coarsely in order to stretch a short supply over a longer period of time. Such roughage lack mineral constituents, therefore some mineral should be fed.

Calves waste whole fodder and cannot eat enough whole corn fodder or stover to do well. Where it is used as the only roughage and with little or no grain fed, fodder may well be ground for calves. Calves fed ground corn fodder with the corn in and one pound per head daily of cotton seed meal, made quite satisfactory gains through the winter at the Nebraska experiment station, while those on whole corn fodder and cottonseed meal lost weight continuously.

For calves on a full feed of grain, depending less on the roughage than the stock calves, fodder or stover run through the silage cutter or shredder has proved a satisfactory source of roughage provided some linseed oil-meal, cottonseed meal or other protein concentrate is fed to make up the protein deficiency. Calves being fed corn and cob meal need considerably less roughage than those eating shelled corn. Calves or yearlings not on full feed but being fed some grain consisting of ground oats, corn and cob meal or a combination of the two, can get alone quite satisfactorily on shredded stover or corn fodder run through the silage cutter, if protein supplement is fed. Silage of course is preferable to fodder or stover prepared in any of the ways suggested, but where silage is not available the corn fodder can be used as a substitute.

Wherever it is necessary to feed beef calves with little or no legume roughage the use of a good simple mixture at the rate of around an ounce per head daily or self fed will usually improve the health and thrift of the calves. The Kansas Experiment Station found that finely ground limestone of high calcium-used with a ration of silage, prairie hay, corn and cottonseed meal gave almost as satisfactory results from the standpoint of rate of gain and thrift on fattening calves as a ration without the limestone in which alfalfa furnished most of the roughage. A very satisfactory sort of mixture is made up of equal parts of high calcium ground limestone, bone meal and common salt or the same simple mixture as used for swine and known as "the Iowa simple mixture" is satisfactory for use with cattle so long as the bonemeal rather than bone black or rock phosphate furnish the phosphate in the mixture.

Alfalfa needs Top Growth for Winter
 Alfalfa fields in drouthy areas which have been revived by late rains should not be pastured this fall unless there is a foot or more of growth. There will be a temptation on the part of many growers to pasture these fields. If there is only a limited amount of growth, pasturing may cause severe damage to the root system of the alfalfa plants. The alfalfa should be allowed to go into the winter with as good a top growth as possible.

During the fall days after the hay crops have been removed, the alfalfa plants should be allowed to store within their roots the materials necessary to insure a vigorous growth next spring.

Investigations have shown that the sugars and starches built up on the plant during the late summer and fall months enable the plant to better survive winter conditions. Furthermore a certain amount of top growth helps to modify the temperature of the soil immediately around the crowns of the plants and also helps to hold snow which serves to increase the moisture content of the soil.

Death of Richard Janzing

The people of central Holt county were inexpressibly shocked last Friday when they heard that Richard Janzing of Schuyler died that morning at St. Mary's Hospital, Columbus, Nebraska. He had been complaining of illness since October first, but was able to attend to his work as manager of an oil station. He went to the hospital on October 16 and was operated on for appendicitis the following morning. The surgeon found that the appendix was ruptured and that peritonitis had already set in. Everything that science and loving care could do were brought into action to save his life but in spite of all efforts he passed away. His wife and his father, brother and sisters were with him for four days before his death. He realized that the Lord had called him and he accepted the call with christian fortitude and resignation. Biglin Brothers brought the body to O'Neill on Friday and after being prepared for burial he was taken to his father's home five miles northeast of Emmet. The funeral services were held from the Catholic church in Emmet at 9 o'clock on Monday morning, the Rev. M. F. Byrne officiating at Requiem High Mass. It was the largest funeral ever held from the Emmet church. Many were forced to remain outside the every available foot of space within the church was utilized. Father Byrne preached a very impressive funeral sermon during which he eulogized Richard Janzing for his strict adherence to the principles of religion and for his clean and honest behavior as a boy and as a man. Burial was in the Catholic cemetery in O'Neill. Right Rev. Monsignor Cassidy, assisted by Father Byrne, officiating at the cemetery. The pall bearers were boyhood friends of Richard Janzing. They were William Troshynski, Paul Hoehne, Joseph Pongratz, Rudolph Clausen, Dan Troshynski and Carl Hoppe.

Richard Janzing was born 5 miles northeast of Emmet on July 22, 1899. He was the eldest son of Garret D. Janzing. His mother died when he was ten years of age. He spent his boyhood and young manhood on his father's farm. He was married to Lillian Meagher at Cornlea, Platte County, Nebraska, on October 6, 1920. Three children were born to them, the oldest boy being now 10 years and the youngest boy two years and six months. The other boy died five years ago. Richard Janzing and family moved to Schuyler eight years ago. He had by his kind and gentle manner made many friends in Schuyler and vicinity as was proved by the fact that both the Colfax County Oil Men's Society and St. Augustines Catholic church of Schuyler sent large delegations to attend his funeral. The many beautiful flowers were sent by friends also proved his popularity both in Colfax and in Holt counties.

He leaves to mourn his loss his wife Lillian, his two sons, his father Garret D. Janzing, his brother Herman, his two sisters Mrs. Joseph Babl of O'Neill and Mrs. Nicholas Bogner of Oelrich, S. D. Also his uncle Herman B. Janzing Sr., and his stepmother Mrs. G. D. Janzing. We assure the relatives of Richard Janzing that they have the sympathy of their many friends of the Emmet and O'Neill districts in their bereavement.

Congressman Here Nov. 5

Claude Hancock has word from Congressman Simmons that he expects to visit Holt county for the last time officially during November. Holt county is to be in the Fifth district hereafter.

Mr. Hancock has arranged for Mr. Simmons to give a stereopticon lecture on the evening of November 5 in O'Neill. It will be held at the high school auditorium. Views of scenes in Alaska will be shown.

A schedule of his trip through Holt county will appear later in these columns.

The public is invited to the lecture here next Thursday and are assured of something worthwhile. Large audiences are greeting Congressman Simmons where he shows these pictures.

Disasters Hit 38 States in Past Year

U. S. Gov. Map

In a year of unusual weather conditions all over the world, the United States was especially hard hit, and in the twelve months ending June 30, 1931, the American Red Cross had given disaster relief in thirty-eight of the forty-eight states.

With the exception of a mine explosion, an epidemic of typhoid fever, a mine cave-in and a railroad accident, these disasters were all due to the elements. They were forest fires, tornadoes, floods, storms, cloudbursts and drought.

The drought, which spread over twenty-three states in the summer and fall of 1930, and has again wrought unfathomable havoc in northwestern states in 1931, accounted for Red Cross relief in twenty-three states. The other disasters were, without exception, carried on simultaneously with the drought relief, and placed a heavy burden, not alone upon the funds of the national Red Cross, but upon its trained personnel of disaster relief workers.

At the peak of the drought relief, more than two million persons were being fed, clothed or given other help, and in all of the work more than 2,750,000 men, women and children were cared for by the Red Cross.

Funds for the drought relief were obtained, in part, through public contributions, because of the magnitude of the numbers affected. The public gave more than $10,000,000 and the American Red Cross appropriated $5,000,000 from its treasury. The cost of the other disaster relief operations was borne from the Red Cross treasury, and local funds contributed in the stricken communities.

This disaster work of the Red Cross is supported, in part, from the annual roll call for members which occurs each year between Armistice Day and Thanksgiving Day. Each person who joins as a member of the Red Cross is contributing toward this effective and important emergency relief, should calamities occur anywhere affecting lives of their fellow citizens.

Northwestern Agent After Business

L. J. Rigwood of Norfolk, traveling agent of the Chicago & Northwestern railway, was in the city yesterday calling on business concerns and talking with shippers. The railroads are seriously affected by the large amount of truck business developing through this section and officials are out seeing what they can do about getting back some of the shipments, which they say will have to be done if the present schedules of trains are maintained.

Mr. Rigwood says his road is paying $30,000 a year taxes in Holt county, which they feel entitles them to more of the freight and live stock shipments than they are now getting in this community.

Educational Notes

The Nebraska State Teacher's Association is in session, this week Thursday, Friday and Saturday, in the various districts over the state. The meeting for District No. 3 is being held in Norfolk. These are very interesting and instructive meetings and new inspiration is given to teachers to pass on to their students. A number of Holt county teachers are in attendance.

All teachers in schools having seventh and eighth grade pupils should now be teaching Farm Accounting. Any teacher who has not already started the work should get the material at once and start her class. Each school should have a manual and notebook for each pupil in the class and a notebook, manual and key for the teacher. This material may be gotten from Ralph H. Cole, Extension Service, University of Nebraska, Lincoln.

On October 22nd, County Superintendent Luella A. Parker visited in District No. 47 and found the district observing Patron's Day. Miss Lucy Perry, Red Cross Nurse was there and examined the children for physical defects and talked to the parents on the Health of the School Child. Mrs. Parker gave a short talk on the Value of Co-operation between Parents and Teachers for the good of the children in Rural Schools. At the close of the afternoon delicious home made ice cream and cake were served. Nearly every patron in the district was present and their interest in the work and their kindly attitude toward Miss Genevieve Sire, their teacher, gives assurance of a happy, successful school year for this District.

County Superintendent, Luella A. Parker, has visited the following schools during the past week: Districts No. 2, 17, 23, 37, 47, 62, 97, 110, 138, and 171.

A thorough check of the County on the school attendance of children of compulsory school age is being made. Two months of school has been held and every child in the County between the ages of 7-16 who have not completed the Eighth Grade should be enrolled in some school unless there is some valid reason for the contrary.

SCHOOL NOTES

The people of O'Neill will remember the play "Kibitzer" which was presented by Mr. E. R. Misner and his company about a year ago. Mr. Misner, with his players, will present "New Brooms" at the school auditorium next Monday afternoon and evening, November 2, 2:30 and 8:00 P. M. "New Brooms", by Frank Craven, deals with and appeals to fathers and sons, first of all.

Since it is a portrayal of one phase of an American home, mothers and sisters watch the play with understanding smiles and hope earnestly for a final mutual agreement, which the sea lacking so often between a father and his boy. The curtain descends upon a scene of readjustment with the two men standing shoulder to shoulder, facing the future with a happier understanding of each other, and with hopes and prospects of greater business success through sympathetic cooperation. In these days of depression, it is refreshing to get the spirit of the work of Earnest Raymond Misner and his company of artists, and in this comedy we feel safe in saying that this play is not only an outstanding comedy but can truly be classed as a production. The price of admission will be ten cents for grade pupils, fifteen cents for high school pupils, and twenty-five cents (25c) for adults at either the matinee or evening program.

The operetta "Gypsy Rover" will be presented soon by the glee clubs of the school. Watch for announcements of place and date.

O'Neill Scout Wins Place of Honor

Twenty-two of the 4,000 scouts and Area, Boy Scouts of America, will be scout officials in the Covered Wagon initiated to membership in the Tribe of Nani-Ba-Zhu, national honor campers' organization, during the tribe's 12th annual two day festival at Camp

Gifford, Omaha, October 31 and November 1.

Garland Bressler, a member of Troop 178, O'Neill, will be one of the scouts honored. Bressler earned honor rating during the district camp period at Spencer this summer.

Membership in Nani-Ba-Zhu is one of the coveted honors among scouts, it being awarded only to boys and officials who have won Black Diamonds as honor campers during the preceding summer season. The concluding ceremonies of the annual festival at Camp Gifford are among the most colorful and impressive in scouting and as a rule draw several thousand spectators.

Scouts to be honored this year are: Winifred Wright, Long Pine; Garland Bressler, O'Neill; James Coriell, Fullerton; Harold Crowe, Columbus; Robert McDonald, Alliance; Hugh Mabie, Stanton; Lewellyn Whitmore, Wayne; Otto Guretsky, West Point; Earl Clark, Clyal Walling; Robert Lewis, Stanley Peterson, Fremont; Robert Hoerner, Wahoo; Lewis Lundstrom, Tekamah, and Fred Rosenberg, Max Marcus, Henry Hoff, Loren Dodds, Vance Senter and Richard Marshall, Omaha. Two officials, L. Crow superintendent of schools at Pender, and director of the area's roving camps, and Kenneth Burkholder, director of Camp Pani-Le-Shar, Fremont, will also be honored.

The Lions Club took their records from The Frontier office this afternoon. Mr. Templeton had been local secretary.
