Walter Jacox, who has been a mental patient at an Omaha hospital the past five months, but who returned home about two weeks ago, wandered away from his home about 3 o'clock Monday morning. As soon as his absence was discovered a search was made by a large posse of men, who searched the country in all directions. About 10:30, four men, Paul Bitner, John Gallagher, Tom Colman and James Coventry, were passing the cemetery two and one-half miles south of town and decided to search it. In a dense grove of Jack pines they found him asleep. Mr. Jacox has labored under the impression for the past several months that he has killed his two daughters, and although the two daughters are at home, and with him all the time, he still stoutly declares that they are dead. On being questioned by the men, as to why he was dozing in the cemetery, he said he was looking for the graves of his two daughters. He was taken to O'Neill in the afternoon for an insanity hearing.
