church on Sunday, June 26, I have taken my pen in hand for the purpose of writing a description of the same, as I saw it, but bearing in mind that a few words about their Sunday School would not be out of place on the start.

Fred Lindberg, the superintendent, conducted the Sunday school in his usual characteristic way. His genial and happy manner in which he conducted the same made a strong appeal to the audience. Fay Puckett, the bible class teacher, instructed the class.

Rev. S. Halgrimson opened proceedings with a few well chosen remarks, after which the congregation sang the song, "What a Friend We Have in Jesus," followed by a prayer by Rev. Halgrimson. Then the Misses Day took charge and the first thing on the program was a recitation by a large group of children, each child repeating a verse itself, which was well rendered. Next on the program was a song by four girls entitled, "I Have A Father in the Promised Land." The primary class then repeated the 117th Psalm. A dialogue followed entitled, "What Could I do Without Him," given by four juniors. Another song followed entitled, "A Good Thing to be a Christian." The next thing on the program was the twenty-third Psalm, repeated in concert by the young folks, followed by a song by two girls entitled, "I Am the Lords Forever." "Little Birdies and Two Little Hands" was another selection by the boys primary class, which was well rendered.

Next came a demonstration by the juniors in repeating the names of all the books in the bible, which was followed by the singing of a song by two little girls. Next was an exhibition of individual prayers by a part of the group, which showed the importance of teaching children early in life to pray. The next thing on the program was a piano solo by a little girl, and was much appreciated. Next the girls in the senior department sang a song entitled, "I Am so Glad that Jesus Loves Me." This was followed by "Bible Salutes", which was something new in this kind of work. "Everybody Ought To Love Jesus," was sung by the entire bible school. Next was a song by a quartette of young girls, with each day of the week having a part in it, and it was very well rendered. Rev. S. Halgrimson closed the demonstration with a talk which was worth hearing. He pointed out in his remarks the duty of everyone to obey the laws of God and man.

NORTHEAST NEBRASKA TOURNAMENT

One of the largest entry lists in the history of the event is expected when devotees of the grand old game of golf gather in Norfolk next Sunday for the qualifying round in the Northeast Nebraska tournament. The event this year will be the seventeenth. Last year the golf carnival was held at Fremont and not since 1929 has the Norfolk Country club had the privilege of entertaining the affair.

Eighteen holes of qualifying play are to be run off on Sunday, July 3, with championship match play scheduled for the Fourth of July and July 5. There will be sixteen players in each flight, including the championship flight.

A tournament committee which includes prominent golfers from several towns in northeast Nebraska is now at work perfecting the arrangements. Jerry A. Brown of Norfolk is general chairman. The other members are: Leland 'Pat' Wilcox, pro at the Norfolk Country club; E. M. Hiebenthal, Norfolk; Dr. L. R. Loerke, president of the Meridian Heights club of Norfolk; Harry Houston, Plainview; Henry Schultz, Stanton; Roy Wiggins, Wakefield; Jim Ahern, Wayne; F. W. Marquardt, Creighton; J. F. O'Donnell, O'Neill; W. W. Mahannah, Butte; Dr. Charles Hartner, Madison; Charles Chilvers, Pierce; R. Hyatt, Fullerton; and J. McIntosh, Battle Creek.

There will be special entertainment for the women.

A dinner for all of the tournament guests will be served at the club Sunday evening and a Fourth of July program including a fireworks display is scheduled for Monday evening.

HOLT COUNTY FARM BUREAU NOTES

Poison Recommended for Ants

Many housewives are complaining at this time of year about presence of ants in their kitchens. For control purposes ants are placed in groups—those that eat greasy foods, and those that eat sweet foods. A quick-killing poison is not desirable since it is best to have one which can be carried back to the nests and fed to the young. In that way it will kill not only those ants that are hunting around for food but also the young in the nests as well as the queen.

The Nebraska College of Agriculture recommends the use of tartar emetic. This is a white powder that can be stirred directly into the bait, for the grease-eating ants take 20 parts of the grease they are eating and mix with it one part of tartar emetic. If they are sweet-eating ants use 20 parts of honey, or syrup, and one part of the tartar emetic. As soon as the poison is stirred into the bait it is ready to use, but one should not mix anymore of the poisoned bait than will be used right up. This bait can be spread with a knife on objects near where the ants are working. In a few days after the ants have disappeared, it can easily be washed off. A little placed under the door sill or under the window sill on the outside of the house, or even along the baseboard, in the house will attract and soon kill the ants. They will not die in the house. Since the baits are poison, the usual precautions should be taken to prevent poisoning of human beings or domestic animals.

Fly "Dope" for Livestock

The College of Agriculture suggests three formulas for making fly repellants. A mixture of one gallon of used crank case oil and one pint oil of tar or coal tar stock dip will be effective in repelling flies from livestock and will serve to repel the flies from ten cows for 90 days.

One application daily of the following formula is said to be effective: One gallon fish oil, one-half gallon oil of tar, and one ounce crude carbolic acid.

Another formula consists of 3 bars laundry soap, 4½ quarts coal tar dip, 4½ quarts fish oil, 3 quarts kerosene, 2 quarts whale oil, and 1½ quarts oil of tar.

If these preparations are applied very lightly they will not injure the animals or discolor the hair.

Ten Grain Binder "Ifs"

Attention given to the rusty and worn parts of the grain binder now may help avoid delay later when the farmers are anxious to get their grain in the shock.

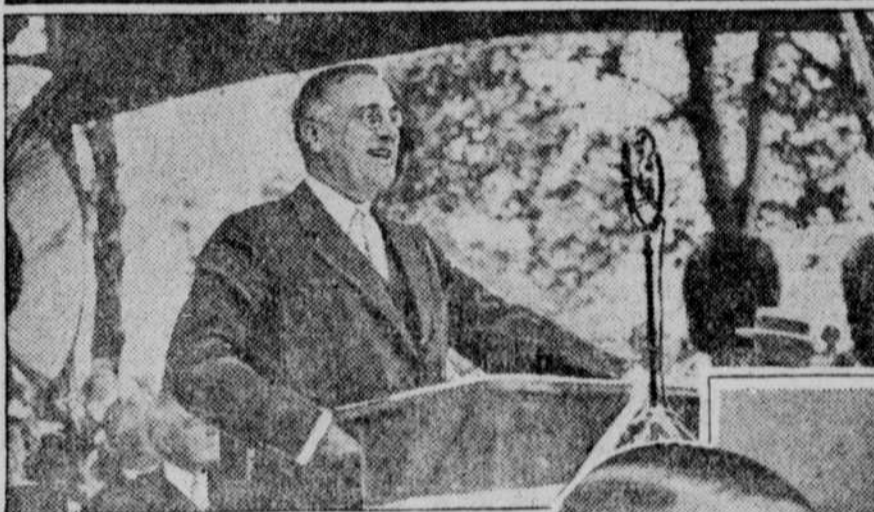

Squirting kerosene over the rusty parts a few days before the machine is to be used will help loosen up the parts. All kerosene should be wiped off and the parts well oiled before starting the machine. The Nebraska Agricultural College offers the ten binder "ifs" in adjusting the machine:

1. If the machine travels with a jerk motion, the main drive chain is too loose or it may be dry. Try a little oil on it.
2. If the slats rip off the canvas, the elevators are not square.
3. If the knottor hook is rusty and rough, it will not work properly. Polish it with fine emory paper.
4. If the binder attachment is not timed properly it certainly will not work. Some binders are timed in as many as five places.
5. If the knottor hook does not turn far enough to close the fingers on the twine, no knot will be tied. Look at the knottor pinion. If it is worn, replace it with a new one.
6. If the twine slips thru the cord holder, the twine will be pulled out before the knot is tied. Adjust the cord holder spring. It should take 40 pounds to pull the twine from the disk.
7. If the disk does not move far enough, the knottor hook grasps only one cord, hence a loose end band.
8. If the needle is bent or out of shape, there will be a loose end band. The needle is malleable iron and may be hammered back to shape.
9. If the twine is pulled from the hook before the knot is tied, try the knife, it may be dull.
10. If you wish to change the size of bundles, do it with the bundle sizer spring, not the tension or compas spring.
