

In Wake of Puerto Rico Hurricane

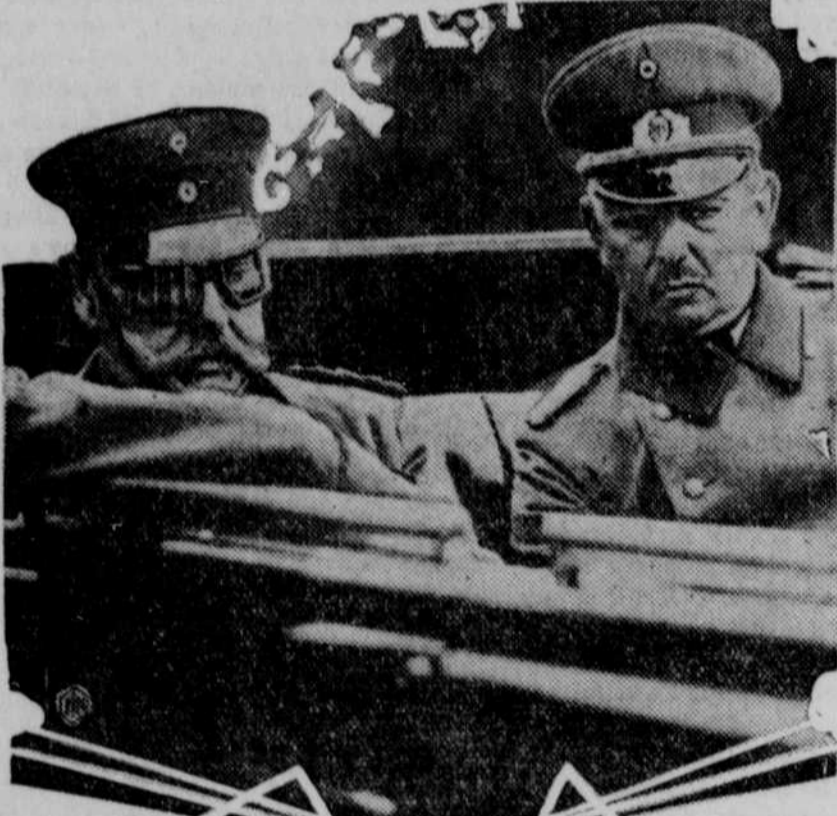

Only scattered, splintered fragments of lumber stand in the place where once stood a fine house in this corner of San Juan, Puerto Rico, following the disastrous hurricane that took at least 212 lives, rendered thousands homeless and did terrific damage to crops and property. Scenes like this are all too common in the city as workers under Governor James Beverley rush the task of relief.

Want a Vest-Pocket Plane?

It has come at last. Now you may buy a plane that you can take home and park in the clothes closet when you're not using it exploring the clouds. The model shown here was exhibited at a recent air show in Berlin, Germany. It is sold to the customer, with fuselage, propeller and motor attached, but the wings and tail must be adjusted by the airman himself. Packed, it takes up no more room than a medium-sized trunk.

Reviewed German War Games

This unusual photo of Germany's aged soldier-President, Field Marshal Paul von Hindenburg, was made at the recent Reichswehr maneuvers at Frankfurt-on-the-Oder, which were reviewed by the 85-year-old statesman. With the President is his son, who is a lieutenant general in the German army. Imitation artillery and armored cars were used in the warlike warfare in accordance with the Treaty of Versailles, which heavily restricts armaments in Germany.

Safety First in New Sub

One of the features in the United States newest submarine Dolphin is this special hatch, designed to enable the crew to escape in the event of an accident while submerged. Here is Torpedo-man Williams demonstrating the emergency exit during the Dolphin's trials off Provincetown, Mass.

Empress Jones!

Bobby Jones was Emperor of Golf until he retired, and now it looks as if Mrs. Bobby is making a bid to succeed to his throne. Here is Mrs. Jones on an Atlanta, Ga., golf course, where she has been taking lessons for more than a year.

Prince's Partner

The dream of many a young maiden was realized by this beautiful Swedish girl, Miss Greta Stephan, prominent Stockholm blue-blood, when she was chosen as one of the dancing partners for the Prince of Wales during his visit to the Swedish capital. Wales was the guest of the Swedish royal family.

Praised Kidnappers

Happy at being back home with mother and dad, 8-year-old John Arthur Russell, of Brooklyn, N. Y., who was kidnaped and held for ransom, but returned when the chase got too hot, nevertheless had a good word to say for his abductors. John, unable to give a description of the men, told how they told him jokes and showed him comic strips to keep him entertained.

Real Alger Girl

Starting her career twenty years ago as an errand girl, this young woman, Miss Anna Nelson, has just achieved the latest step in a brilliant career by becoming a member of a fashionable Fifth Avenue, New York firm. Miss Nelson attributes her success to a love for her job, which consists of designing, selecting and adapting fashions to fit the buyer's personality.

Veteran Trouper

Though this baby is but six months old, he may already be written down as a veteran thespian. He is Gerard Cony, known as the youngest actor in Europe, pictured when he made his 100th public appearance in Paris, recently. Gerard performs with an army of marionettes.

Record Marred

Sylvia Concel, youthful apprentice jockey, whose career, one of the most promising in turf history, has been marred by a suspension for foul riding at Laurel, Md. The young jockey, who is under contract to Mrs. Payne Whitney, was set down by the stewards on a charge of having grabbed the saddle cloth of another horse during a race. He has been leading all jockeys in the number of winners ridden.

Fall Chapeau

No matter how well dressed milady may be from the neck down, the effect is ruined if the hat is not in keeping with the rest of her costume. Here is a charming hat, designed to go with the new Fall styles. It has a stitched crown and brim, accentuating the backward movement and held on the side with a marcasite ornament.

Winning Pair at Hair Fair

Woman's crowning glory, they call it. And now you know the reason. Here are two examples of hair-dressing that won first and second prize in "fantasy competition" at a London, Eng., hair fair recently. The coiffure at left is entirely of gold hair, the creation of an African native. That on the right is called the "peacock."

Simple Beauty

For Chilly Days

To stroll beneath Autumn leaves is so pleasant that it could not be made pleasanter with this lovely Fall costume as part of the scenery. The suit, worn by Sheila Terry, is of hand-made tweed in brown and orange mixture, trimmed with high collar of brown galyak. The skirt is of the wrap-around variety and the jacket has bloused sleeves and side closing.

Grecian simplicity marks the lines of the evening frock worn here by Diane Wynyard, M-G-M actress. It is of blue white crepe and fashioned in the new silhouette. Two white gardenias are pinned to the front of the V-neckline. A kerchief scarf ties around the throat as a wrap.

"Little Caesar" Turns Tables

Edward G. Robinson, movie gangster hero, is shown as he snapped the snappers when photographers ambushed him on his arrival at New York from the West Coast. This is one of the few times that a movie player has discovered a new way to pose for the lens men. But then Robinson isn't happy unless he's shooting at something.
