

They Call This a Winter Beach Sport

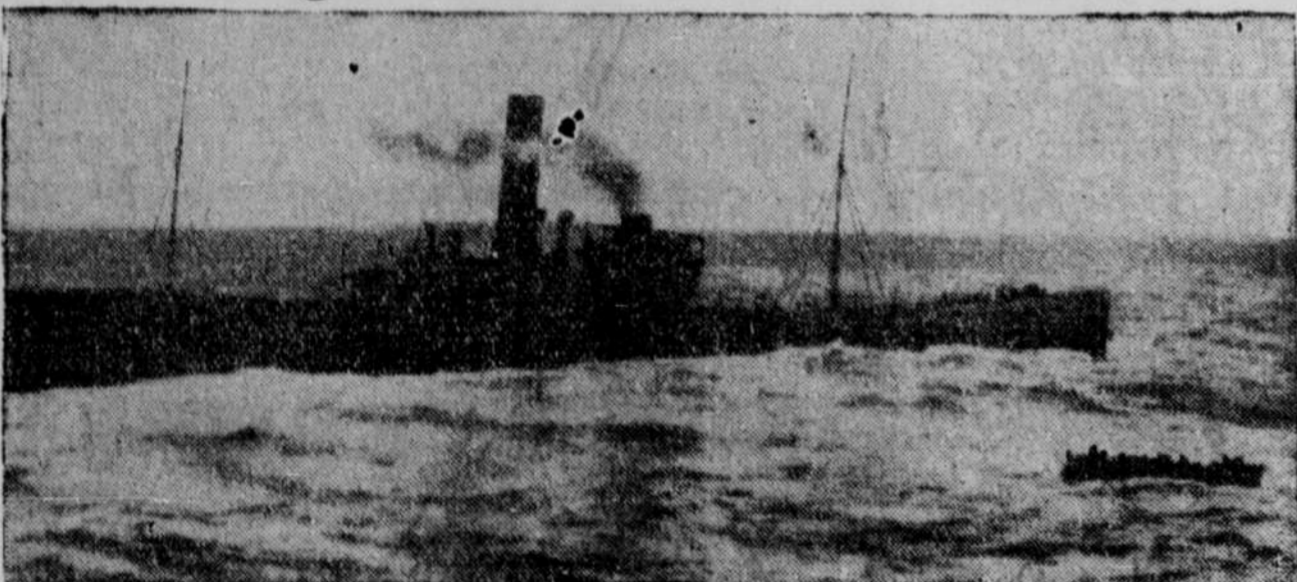

Out in Venice, Cal., where cold winds blow not and incarnadined noses are unknown, they call this Winter sport. Half a dozen toy balloons filled with natural gas, a tightrope line, and lo, there's beauty in the air. Dancing the light fantastic along the line is the way the beach beauties ushered in the Winter season. You ought to try it sometime—say about the middle of August.

Lost Fight for Sons' Movie Career

Lita Grey Chaplin (right), former wife of Charlie Chaplin, famed screen comedian, is shown with her two sons, Charles, Jr., and Sidney, into the films. Charlie fought his former wife's petition and won the court decision. The boys had already been signed to appear in a picture with their mother.

Belgian Mariners Rescued at Sea

The Belgian cargo steamer Scheldstad, wallowing in the Atlantic with a broken propeller and flooded engine room, forms a grim background for this lifeboat. The crew of 22 of the ill-fated vessel is being rowed to safety by the lifeboat crew of the British ship Lancaster in this thrilling rescue scene.

PORTO RICO HURRICANE LEAVES 245,000 HOMELESS

This Associated Press telephoto shows some of the wreckage in Hato Rey, suburb of San Juan, Porto Rico, after the hurricane which killed 212 persons, injured more than 2,000 and left 245,000 homeless.

Millionaire Nurse

Desiring to make herself useful rather than ornamental to society, Miss Betty Offield, of Chicago, granddaughter of the late William Wrigley, chewing gum king, plans to become a visiting nurse in the Kentucky mountains as a member of the Frontier Nursing Service. Miss Offield is a millionairess in her own right, being the possessor of a fortune exceeding $4,000,000.

Nobel Winner

Professor Edgar Douglas Adrian, of Cambridge University, England, who shares with Sir Charles Sherrington, of Oxford University, the 1932 Nobel Prize for medicine and physiology. Both scientists are world-famous for their discoveries in the study of the neuron. The value of the prize is about $40,000.

Heads U. S. Surgeons

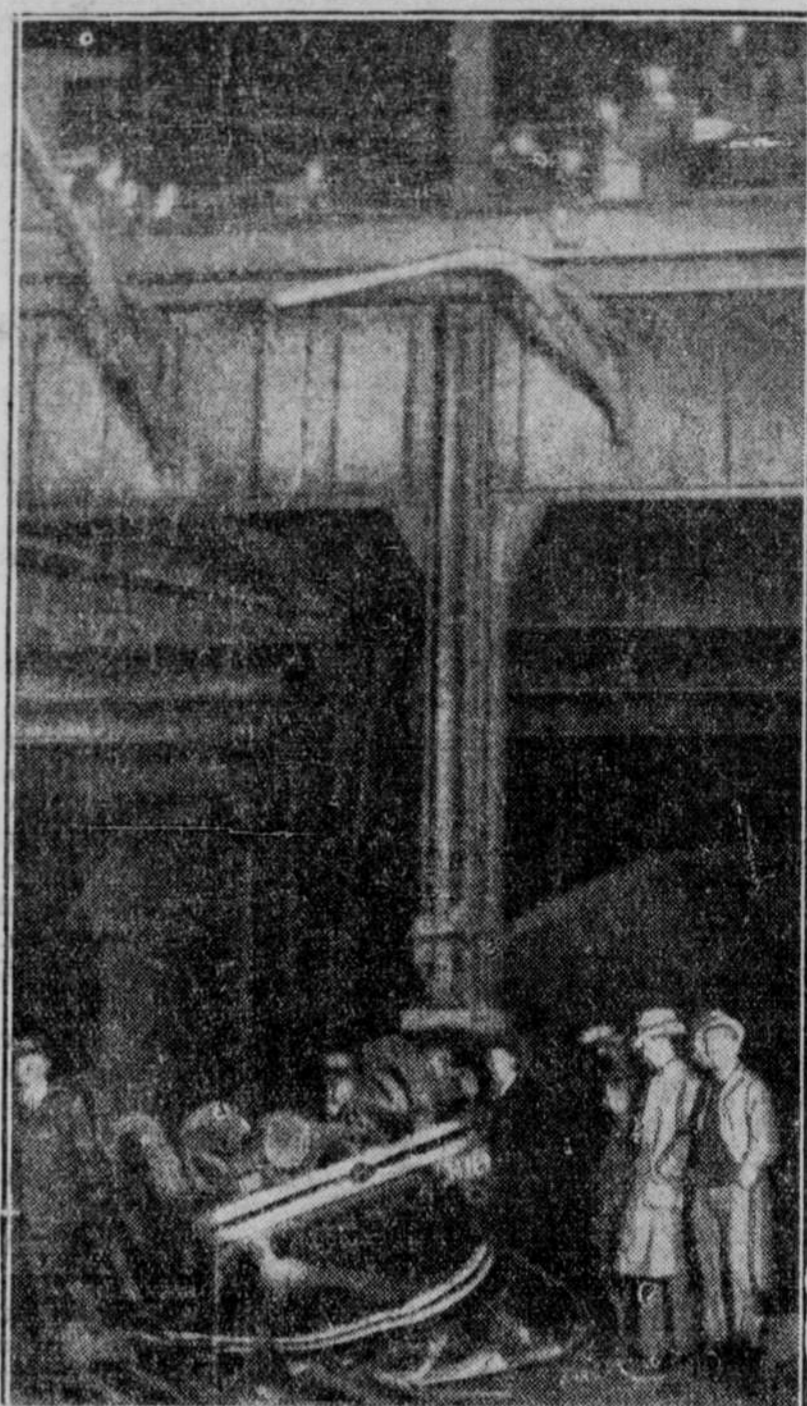

A recent photo of Dr. William D. Haggard, of Nashville, Tenn., new president of the American College of Surgeons. Dr. Haggard was elected at the recent congress held in St. Louis, Mo., which was attended by famous surgeons from all over the world.

Tale of a Pin

After suffering from what was believed to be tuberculosis for five years, eight-year-old Mildred Libby of Coal Hill, Ark., is as good as new today. A recent examination at the bronchoscopic clinic of Temple University, Philadelphia, revealed that a pin the child swallowed when she was three was embedded in her lung. The pin was removed and Mildred is okay.

Had His Four-Leafed Clover

Talk about miracles. Frank Knight, the driver of this taxi, experienced a couple of them when his cab, trying to avoid another car on Chelsea, Mass., bridge, crashed through the railing on to the railroad tracks, 50 feet below. Not only did he escape death in the crash, although the car was demolished, but he was not even seriously injured.

Talented Society Beauty

A charming portrait study of Eleanor Post, society beauty and graduate of the exclusive Mount Vernon Seminary, Washington, D. C., whose talent matches her beauty to such an extent that she has been given a long term contract by one of the major motion picture corporations. Miss Post displayed remarkable thespian ability in amateur theatricals and is considered a natural actress by Hollywood experts.

Safe in Buddha's Arms

When prohibition agents raided the "Golden Fan," said to be the swankiest night club in San Francisco, recently, this strange sight met their astonished eyes. The cat, disdainful to flee from the premises, took refuge in the arms of Buddha and refused to leave. The agents decided not to interfere with the feline's sanctuary.