

Where Man Tamed the Mighty Colorado River

Here is a self-explanatory picture and diagram showing the progress made on the gigantic Hoover Dam project at Boulder City, Nev., where diversion of the mighty Colorado River was recently achieved for the first time in history. The boxes in the picture explain how the work is being done.

Cripples Throng to "Wonder Healer"

A seemingly endless line of wheel-chairs with cripples is shown outside the home of Dr. M. W. Locke, a so-called "wonder healer," of Williamsburg, Ontario, as sufferers await their turn for treatment. It is said that Dr. Locke cures many ailments by a certain twist of the foot, charging only $1.

Where Earthquake Struck Twice

They say that lightning never strikes twice in the same place, but evidently the same is not true of earthquakes. Here is a bridge in Wairoa, New Zealand, that was being constructed to replace the one that had been damaged by an earthquake in 1931. While the new span was in process of construction, the earthquake again got a shivering fit with the result shown above. Now they'll have to start a third bridge.

Champion Cause of Jobless Musicians

Here are members of La Boheme, an artists' club in New York, who discussed arrangements for their inaugural gathering, the proceeds of which will be devoted to the relief of unemployed musicians and actors. Left to right, are: Kenneth Murchison, Frances Alda, Neysa McMein, Peter Arno, Samuel R. Piza and Kay Francis. Stars of stage and screen, as well as famous musicians, will donate their services.

Prodigal Net Queen

Looking as charming and fit as ever, Helen Wills Moody, tennis star, artist and writer, is shown as she arrived at New York on S. S. Paris after a lengthy sojourn in Europe. Mrs. Moody announced that she will play in the national tournament next Summer. This year she did not defend her title.

Turning the Tables

Imagine the astonishment of hard-boiled New York cameramen and news photographers when they met James Cagney's train on arrival in the metropolis to be confronted with this "Tough Guy" Cagney had turned the tables on the boys by bringing his own camera along. It developed that he is practicing for his next movie role, that of a news photographer.

Navy Queen

Miss Laura Dodge, of Evanston, Ill., who was selected queen at the annual Navy Ball of Northwestern University's naval training unit. Miss Dodge is 18, blue-eyed and blonde, proving that admirals, even in embryo, are always gentlemen.

To Explore Jungle

Ambitious to gain the distinction of being the first white woman to invade the domain of the head-hunters of Venezuela, Mrs. Ana Max McGrath, of Tucson, Ariz., will lead an expedition into the treacherous wilds of the Andes Mountains this Winter. The expedition, sponsored by the University of Arizona, will spend three months among the savage tribes of the country.

Gotham's Hidden Beauty

Only when a photographer climbed to the top of the recently-completed RCA building in Rockefeller Center was it revealed that the architect had designed a perfect cross as the roof of St. Patrick's Cathedral nearby. An idea of the height of the new building may be gauged from the picture. The camera was actually looking down on the tall spires of the church.

THE COVERED BRIDGE

The covered bridge of yester year!
But few of them remain;
They live today in sketch books old,
And eke in memory's train.

Recall the blistering heat of noon,
The sun bit, dusty road
You trudged along, a bare foot kid,
Or on old Dobbin rode.

And then the bridge, ash-gray and frail,
A succor from the glare;
The splash of water far beneath,
The breath of cooler air!

Remember echoing horses' hoofs
On loud resounding planks!
You trudged you were a captain bold,
At head of troop of Yanks.

An emblem of that vanished time
Before the days of speed,
When leisure ambled and had time
Each wayside bit to heed.

World Botanical Center May Be Recognized

Philadelphia — (UP) — Philadelphia may soon be recognized as the botanical center of the world. This was the prediction of Thomas S. Gates, president of the University of Pennsylvania, when he announced the gift of the Morris Arboretum to the university.

According to leaders in the field of botany, the Morris Arboretum is equalled only by the Arnold Arboretum in Boston.

The Arboretum, willed to the university by the late Miss Lydia Thompson Morris, includes the two estates she owned in Philadelphia and Montgomery county. The land covers over 170 acres and overlooks the beautiful Whitmarsh valley where the American army under Washington encamped after the retreat from the Battle of Germantown.

Man Is Center of Mixed Family Ties

Porterville, Cal. — (UP) — Berman Rinear is the husband of his father's wife's daughter. Not only that, but he is his father's best man, and his mother's son-in-law. And, if you want to look at the other side of the picture, Mrs. Berman Rinear is her mother's bridesmaid and her father's daughter-in-law. Of course, that makes her father her father-in-law and his son her husband.

However, it isn't as mixed up as it sounds. Mrs. Rinear's mother, a widow, married B. C. Rinear, Berman, his son, and his wife's daughter, Helen Dixon, also were married. The marriages were performed at a double ceremony, each couple "standing-up" for the other.

Drop of Adrenalin Saves Boy's Life

El Paso, Texas — (UP) — A drop of adrenalin injected directly into the heart of Hector Briseno, six, was credited with saving his life in Masonic hospital.

The boy apparently had died of injuries received when a one-pound shell tore off his right hand and cut a leg.

Dr. E. J. Cummins, who injected the adrenalin, said, however, that the boy's heart had not stopped beating and that the stimulus of the adrenalin restored it to normal pulsation.

Missed One Point During Grid Season

Wilkes-Barre, Pa. — (UP) — Tom O'Malley, Kingston high school football player converted the try for point after touchdown into a score on every attempt but one during the early season, and that miss cost his team the game.

O'Malley's kick struck an up-right in the game with Wilkes-Barre G. A. R. high school and the contest ended with G. A. R. winning 14-13.

His ninth straight extra point, weeks later, enabled Kingston to tie Nanticoke high, traditional rivals, 7-7.

original idea of covering nine-tenths of his display window with black paper, leaving an uncovered strip at the bottom for "Peeping Toms" whose attention he invited with the inscription in white block letters: "Defense is Regarded" (You Are Forbidden to Look). A roaming reporter who noticed the sign hovered in the neighborhood half an hour, saw 342 men, women and children pass, of which eight stopped, looked and went on, and two, both children, tried to peep, but were not tall enough.

French Use U. S. Advertising Tricks

Paris — (UP) — One thing the French are still borrowing liberally from America is trick advertising. The varying success met by freak displays here, however, is strikingly exemplified by the case of a bathtub store in the rue 4 Septembre, one of the capitol's busiest commercial thoroughfares. Feeling the tide in the bathtub trade to have turned the wrong way, the proprietor conceived the
