Some New Ideas

We are all interested in learning new ideas to try in our clubs, aren't we? Last week, I enjoyed visiting a number of clubs in Thayer county. At Gilad the seventh and eighth grade club gave demonstrations meeting and told us all about their Adventure Boxes and their Thrift Box.

At each meeting each club member writes on a slip of paper some Adventure in which he feels he needs to succeed in order to be able to work better with other people. Some of these Adventures were: "I will try to have my lessons prepared when class is called;" "I will try to remember not to talk without permission;" "I will comb my hair neatly before I enter the school room;" "I will try not to pout on the playground when a game is suggested that I do not like to play."

These Adventures are dropped into a blue box during the week and read by the president at the club meeting time. After reading, all the Adventures are transferred to an orange-colored box to be read at the next meeting. Each time an Adventure is read from the orange-colored box, the club votes as to whether or not all the members agree that the one member has succeeded in his Adventure. If agreed that he has succeeded, he may have a recording of that Adventure on his Individual Castle, and should endeavor to keep up that Adventure all the rest of the time. If the club votes that he has failed, the Adventure is returned to the orange-colored box to be read at the next meeting.

Each time a committee reports that an improvement of some kind is needed, each member asks himself if he is the one who needs to make that improvement, and if he feels that he is the one who needs to make that improvement, he chooses that as his Individual Adventure. The club members reported that they enjoy their Adventure Boxes and feel that they are helpful.

This club also keeps on its club table a Thrift Box. Into this box is put anything which a member does not want, such as pens, pencils, etc. Once a month numbers are given to the club members and the box is opened. Number one may have first choice of what is in the box, number two second choice, and so on. They find that most things that are thrown away are wanted and can be used by someone else. Would you like to have a Thrift Box.
