That on said date the plaintiff was the guest and riding with the defendant in said automobile; that they were traveling westward on highway number 20, between the towns of Stuart and Newport and that defendant with utter disregard of the safety and well being of the plaintiff was carelessly, negligently and recklessly driving and operating said automobile at a high and excessive rate of speed; while thus driving, due to a faulty and defective steering apparatus and defective and insufficient brakes on said automobile she lost control of said car and drove into a ditch several feet deep along the side of said highway.
