be announced whether the packers liked it or not.

"The people who handle farm products don't like it. They take their margin on every unit that goes thru their hands. If they make a margin of a cent a pound, the more pounds they handle the better pleased they are. If we reduce, as we must, the total tonnage handled, they will take less money. Naturally they aren't enthusiastic.

"Perhaps the most violent opposition will come from some of the people who still think that this nation was created to give them a chance to make millions of dollars by gambling with other people's products and other people's money. How they resist any effort of the government to interfere with that process. They cry aloud in defense of that they call their rights; they quote passionately from the constitution; and if their normal income is reduced from a million to half a million a year, they speak darkly of the inroads of communism, fascism, socialism, and so on and so on.

"To the farmer who has just lost his farm, to the laborer who is in the bread line, I don't imagine these efforts of government seem so shocking. In any event, it might be wise for speculators of this type to prepare themselves for a few more such shocks."

T. M. Harrington, of the O'Neill leather house, says quotations on the skins of jackrabbits have almost gone out of fashion. A few years ago good wages were made hunting and skinning this prairie bouncer, often each skin bringing the producer as much as 25 to 40 cents. The hunts were made at a time when farmers had some leisure and enjoy excitement.

Speaking of drouth, bothering everywhere, someone told of shooting wild ducks within the city limits here years ago when too much rain fell every spring and summer. Prairie chickens were shot within the city limits by many persons living here today, it was stated, and Mike Enright, just to show how numerous the wild chicken was in the 1890's, said he bought a shotgun and was given one box of shells in a deal with the late J. J. McCafferty and before the sun set that day he had paid for the gun by killing and selling prairie chickens.

A concern maintained a chicken freezer here, paying 30 cent for young and 25 cents for old chickens which were sold at fancy prices to wealthy of the East. Mike used to get out with the crack shots the ammunition companies sent around shooting to advertise their products and he made more than one so ashamed they went back east and resigned.

A titled lady was once canvassing for votes at a parliamentary election and stopped at a house, the door of which was opened by a burly woman who eyed her none too graciously.

"May I ask," said the lady sweetly, "to what party your husband belongs?"
"Certainly!" answered the woman. "I'm the party to whom 'e belongs," and well 'e knows it!"—Montreal Gazette.

A young couple came to the manse of a popular minister to be married. After the ceremony, there was an awkward pause. The man and his bride maintained an embarrassed silence. The minister, in order to relieve the situation, said to the bridegroom: "Well, salute the bride."

Whereupon the bridegroom shook her by the hand saying: "I congratulate you."—Shiller's Bulletin.
