ST. MARY'S ACADEMY NOTES

At the present time the Freshmen have gone into the furniture business. Their main effort is, not to sell a great deal of furniture, but to write real effective business letters. Their efforts are praiseworthy, and no doubt some day one or the other will be a business man or a business woman.

The standing in class is: Elsie Peter first, Mary Janet Kubitschek a close second and Marie Stewart and Gertrude Langer a tie for third place. Reading of Poetry will be our next venture and you shall hear about the result the next time.

English
As this goes to print the pupils of the English classes are participating in an essay contest sponsored by the Diocesan Rural. Probably we can give you an interesting surprise in the first March issue of the Frontier. A select group is also taking part in a short story contest, suggested by the Queen's Work. You will hear more about the achievement of this group later.

Latin I & II
Although there are a few of our little Miss and Mister Freshmen who look upon Latin as a hardship, the majority of the class is beginning to see the practicalness of the language and are devoting time and energy to the mastery of it.

In the Sophomore class, Ceasar has found some very staunch friends, the chief ones being Mary Catherine Coyne, Laureen Baumeister and Marguerite Zering. Time passes so quickly that often both the teacher and the pupils regret that the period cannot be extended for a half hour or more.

Science
This week the Biology class has made a rather intensive study of the digestion of foods. Again we find Donald Wehrstein leading the solution of the laboratory problems. In showing the digestion of the nutrients, protein, carbohydrates and fats, his set of chemical reactions were found to be the best. In a written test on this division of the course, the two best papers were those of Marguerite Zering and Mary Kathryn Coyne. Francis Soukup came in second and Laureen Baumeister third.

Rural Sociology
Last week our class spent three intensive days in "Character Building"—the days of our annual Retreat or Spiritual exercises, given by the Rev. A. J. Tallmadge, S. J., of St. Louis University. This was real Sociology. We profited greatly by it.

This week, the class has, as usual, engaged in several very weighty arguments. Discussion was stopped only by the insistent buzz of the period bell.

Papers on Rural Tenancy have been assigned and we intend to do quite a bit of research work.

We regret that our class roll will be considerably depleted this week when the Normal Trainers make their exodus to practice teaching in the rural schools. "We shall meet, but we shall miss them."

History
Biographies and talks on Lincoln were on the program of American history this week, and a pleasant and elevating task it proved to be.

"Our Lincoln," a true American who understood our people, perhaps, better than any other statesman America has produced, the memory of whose humble unselfish, just and straightforward character will live on and on, as long as men love and seek liberty and justice.

He had a long, severe training in defeat and knew how to be a good loser. He sought not honor and gain for himself but the welfare of America as a whole. Would that we had more Lincoln's in our present day difficulties, men with malice toward none but charity for all,—men who would dare to do right as conscience dictates and fearing only doing wrong.

Our great love and admiration for Lincoln does not diminish in the least, our loyalty to the great and noble Washington whose birthday is at hand. May these two great names be revered and honored in the future as they have been in the past.

The insignificant though vitally important Sophomores are progressing rapidly in World History.

A certain pupil who expressed his views concerning the length of time covered by the Industrial Revolution stated that he thought it would last forever. He was told that forever is a very long time.

Another student while reading this sentence: "Each villager received a compact piece of land and full compensation for his former right of sending his cattle to graze on the commons," made the ludicrous mistake of saying, "to 'gaze' on the commons."

The fellow classmates found no little amusement and were not slow in revealing it.

In spite of the names and dates that must be memorized, the class is thoroughly enjoying this chapter.

Commercial Notes

The Shorthand Class have been busy for the O. G. A. contest. This contest is sponsored by the Gregg Writer, a magazine devoted expressly to commercial work. The contest closes March 1, and if the Junior shorthand class obtain their membership certificates, they are then eligible for any of the transcription tests. The Seniors already have their 140 word pins, and are working hard to get the 160 word pin before the close of school.

The Bookkeeping class are quite taken up with their new set of books and one young gentleman remarked one day last week, he likes bookkeeping so well that he wishes he could work at it all day.

In Typewriting, the First year students recently had a general review of all exercises on the keyboard, and some found out to their sorrow, it was impossible to take a blind test, if they watched the keyboard. The Second year students have been busy learning how to cut and run off Mimeograph stencils.

Senior Normal Trainers

At this writing, the Senior Normal Trainers have departed or are preparing to depart for their rural schools. In the following schools, the named girls will be the busy little country school teachers for one week: Margaret Tyler in Mary Pribil's school, Rose Davis in Angela Pribil's, Teresa Thiele in Hazel McDonald's, Rita Reardon in Cecilia Breder's, Mona Melvin in Grace Quilty's, Mary Sullivan in Lenore Sullivan's, Evelyn Hoffman in Patricia Sullivan's and Mariellen Gillespie in Thelma Riley's.

Last week the Senior Normal Trainers each taught in some grade from the primary to the eighth, at St. Mary's.

Besides practice teaching in the city and rural schools, we are striving to find a school in which to continue our teaching during the coming year.

Spanish

Buenos dias! If perchance along the avenue you should hear the soft smooth tones of "Como esta usted?" or the exaggerated roll of the "r", don't be alarmed, it's only our Spanish class, most probably, sporting their knowledge to anyone they can persuade to listen. We've accomplished a lot in our reading exercises and are more than proud of our ability (meager though it is) to carry on a conversation in Spanish.

Talks on Spanish life and customs have been assigned for class on Monday.

If our class continues to be as interesting and profitable in the future as it has been in the past, we hope to be linguists of the highest order.

Must Have Had Poor Team

From the Pierce Leader of 19 years ago last week: A large crowd gathered at the opera house last Friday night to witness the one sided game of basketball between the high school teams of O'Neill and Pierce. Pierce took the lead from the first, Witten making a field goal right off the reel and from then on it was rather hard to keep track of the baskets the local team piled up. In the second half the Pierce team was instructed by their coach to play team work only and they displayed some of the fastest passing that was ever pulled off on this court. After the game was over the score stood 69 to 9 in favor of Pierce.

CHURCH NOTES

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH
Sunday School 10:00—R. M. Sauer, Superintendent.

Morning Worship 11:00—"Our Name Enrolled." Every member is urged to be present for this service.

Intermediate C. E. 6:45—Elizabeth Graves, Leader.

Evening Service 7:30—"God's Greatest Gift."

Every service attended by every member is the goal of our church for the pre-Easter season. Friends are invited.

H. D. Johnson, Pastor.

M. E. CHURCH NOTES

A cordial welcome always awaits you at our Sunday services. The hours for church services are eleven and seven-thirty. Sunday school is at ten o'clock, Epworth League at six-thirty.

Next Sunday evening at 7:30 the League will reproduce the play "Out of the Fog." This is in response to many requests. The play was originally written for Sunday use. There will be no charge for admission, but a silver offering will be taken and the money set aside for the League summer institute.

In place of the evangelistic service announced for next week we are glad to give way to a missionary service. Miss Mabel Sheldon from Lidia will be the speaker. Miss Sheldon has interesting and vital things to tell and reports from other churches assure us a worth while evening. Everyone is invited. Tuesday at 7:30.

F. J. Aucock, Pastor.

176 Leaguers Attend Institute At Osmond

The local Methodist church sent ten delegates to the Epworth League Institute last Friday and Saturday at Osmond. One hundred and seventy-six delegates were present. Rev. F. J. Aucock is dean of the institute. Those attending from here were Ruth Leach, Twila Bradley, Ethel Aucock, Esther Sexsmith, Aladene Kee, Francis Aucock, Mervin Kee, Gail Bressler, John Gaddy and Rev. Aucock. Gail Bressler, Mrs. C. J. Davis and Mrs. Enard Leach kindly provided transportation.

The sub-district mid-winter meeting of the Epworth League held at Osmond last Friday and Saturday was attended by 176 leaguers, divided by towns as follows: Chambers, 20, Page 21, Ewing 13, Inman 6, Spencer 20, Bristow 21, Plainview 23, O'Neill 10 and others from several towns.

The institute was held at the Osmond public school building. Methodists returning here from Osmond reported many of those there who furnished food and sleeping quarters to the leaguers were Catholics. Lodging was furnished 155 free of charge. The leaguers here said they found John Kersenbrock better known at Osmond than in the town of O'Neill. The summer Epworth League institute is to be held at Wayne June 20 to 27. O'Neill is in the Norfolk district.

Has Nice Relic Collection

William Wolf, farming two miles east of the fair grounds, had specimens of a cigarbox full of fine Pawnee arrowheads, knives, scrapers and other artifacts in town last Friday, which he picked up on his farm. Bill has one fine arrowhead of copper and three of whiskey barrel steel.

Under a magnifying glass, the copper head shows it was hammered to shape. The metal points have a patination or corrosion, on the surface which indicates great age.

How the heads of metal got to this part of the country is not easily figured out. One large stone piece may be either a knife or a "stunner" arrowhead, one with which to strike game on the head and only stun it, so the blood would not stain it. Such a head is a well known piece to archaeologists. This collection has several books of history wrapped up in it and several hours spent looking it over would be very educational.

Stamp Club Organized

Following an initial meeting held in January, has grown a stamp club here that may be the first one established in north Nebraska. One is surprised at the number of persons, young and old, who collect cancelled stamps. There is President Roosevelt, as an instance.

The official name of the club started here is the O'Neill Stamp club. The following were elected officers Roy W. Carroll, president; Ray Toy, vice president, and Hugh McKenna secretary. The club commenced to function about February 1, 1934, when a meeting was held at the Toy residence.

Dr. H. L. Bennett has on his specimen table at his office several extremely hard stones, one of which weighs almost a pound, which he removed from the jaws of horses. The doctor said a bit of straw or other material entering a saliva duct gathers lime and eventually a growing rock forms.

"LITTLE WOMEN"

KATHERINE HEPBURN
Joan Bennett, Jean Parker,
Francis Dee, Paul Lucas
Edna May Oliver
Douglas Montgomery

From the book by Louisa May Alcott. A delightful film of mixed tears and laughter in which we re-live, with sympathetic participation, the lives of four New England girls, Meg, Jo, Beth and Amy, and their mother, in Civil War times. For those who have loved Louisa May Alcott's books, this film is a rare treat, and it's genuineness and sincerity will appeal to fastidious cinema fans. As near the perfect picture as has so far been made.
