Dairy Conference Is Held At Kansas City

Nebraska dairymen, representatives of their organizations, and officials of the Agriculture College at Lincoln attended a dairy conference at Kansas City April 2 and 3rd where they discussed the new adjustment plan of the Department of Agriculture. Four states were represented at the Kansas City meeting.

Effect of the dairy program upon the raw milk markets of Omaha, Lincoln and Sioux City, upon butterfat prices, and upon cattle as well as details of administration of the plan in the state were topics of greatest interest to Nebraska men. Just how soon the program will start in Nebraska is not known.

Briefly the tentative plan includes the payment of forty cents per pound or about $1.50 per hundred for raw milk which the producer would agree not to put on the market in 1934. His reduction for this pay would be limited to from ten to twenty per cent of his marketings of the last two years, 1932 and 1933. He could make the reduction any way he chooses, by feeding or by culling, by milking fewer cows, or by using more of his products at home. Some additional money would be used to support the beef cattle market at the time the extra dairy cattle are marketed, and also to help with other phases of the adjustment program.

Money to pay the benefit payments is to come from the processing tax of one cent per pound on butterfat content of milk or cream. The tax is to be gradually increased to five cents per pound. A compensating tax will be levied on oleomargarine.

The number of cows milked has increased eighteen per cent in this country since 1928. The supply of dairy products, if nothing is done to adjust production, is likely to be so large this summer that prices will be ruinously low. During the past few months, butterfat prices have been about 23% of parity levels.
