Nebraska News Items

Villages and trade centers in the vicinity of Bassett have banded together baseball nines to form what is to be known as the Bassett Trade Territory baseball league to be composed of nines of Duff, Davids, Carns, Newport, Fish Lake and Bassett. The playing season is to run from May 6 to September 2, with each nine playing 15 games and having three open Sundays. There has never been a ball league in the vicinity of Bassett.

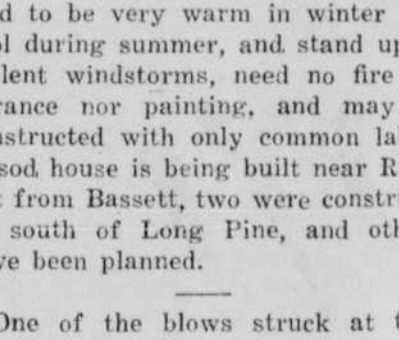

About 60 miles west of here houses of sod are being built in considerable numbers on homesteads, many of which have been abandoned for years. High cost of lumber and scarcity of money is believed the reason builders are turning to sod homes, which are said to be very warm in winter and cool during summer, and stand up in violent windstorms, need no fire insurance nor painting, and may be constructed with only common labor.

A sod house is being built near Rose, out from Bassett, two were constructed south of Long Pine, and others have been planned.

One of the blows struck at taxpayers of Nebraska by numerous dust storms this spring is the filling of roadside ditches, in the eastern part of the state. Drainage ditches also may have to be dug a second time, the damage being estimated at thousands of dollars.

I wish I might be able to go home and campaign a little for the approaching Congressional primary, but the call of public duty must be superior to the call of politics. Duty impels me to remain in Washington as long as the Congress shall remain in session. How long that will be no man knows. Those of my home folks who approve my work in Washington will find my name on the Democratic primary ballots. Of course, I would like to be nominated and re-elected. My record is my only campaign argument. I leave the result with my home folks, and will cheerfully abide by their decision.

Sincerely,

Edgar Howard

at Washington, heavy rains fell in sections of those states. Challman is agent for the Farm Credit association. He reached Washington about the time rains changed the situation in the two states.

Several tornados appeared in the vicinity of Petersburg at the same time, doing considerable damage. Buildings on three farms, destroyed three years ago by a tornado, were badly damaged.

Horse thieves made off with two teams of horses valued at $500 at the farm of J. F. Dancer, of Sutherland. The thieves made two trips with a truck and there is no clue.

When Pinneo, 18, dived, dislocated a neck vertebra and William Beckenhauer dived, crawled on the bottom of a sand pit water hole near Fremont and brought Pinneo to the surface. He was under water five minutes and revived.

Fifty years ago William Bossbarger, John Hanlen, William Cunningham and Al Hopkins, of Neligh, went to Tilden and while there Hopkins cut a potato in four pieces and each man kept a piece. Three of the men are dead now and Hopkins still is carrying his piece of potato which has turned to stone. Hopkins made the first homestead filing in Antelope county.

A $5,000 farm residence was destroyed and Mrs. Conrad McNertney, bride of but two weeks, seriously burned about her face and hands when friction of cloth caused a cleaning fluid to flame. In a bed in the residence, owned by the bride's mother, was $400, which was burned. There was some insurance on the house. Neighbors saved some furniture. The farm, owned by Mrs. Elizabeth Shankline, is near Broadwater.

The first consignment of cattle, 41 head, from the grass and water deficiency district of South Dakota has been moved into Nebraska and from unofficial sources it was estimated that if conditions do not improve 125,000 head of stock may be moved to the Nebraska sand dune country by the national farm credit administration.

An overturned oil truck near Clay Center caught fire and burned to death Bob Sautter, 18, and Jack Lewis, 20, both of Grand Island. It was surmised the driver of the truck fell asleep and that the truck ran into the ditch. The Wise Oil company owned the truck.

Mrs. Paul Patrick, 63, fed her chickens some medicine containing some acid, for treatment of disease, 25 of the flock died, then, after realizing she had sold eggs and her family ate one of the treated chickens, she committed suicide by drowning in a water trough on her farm near Randolph. She feared that those who ate the eggs and chicken would die of poison.

The wheat crop of Nebraska was pronounced practically ruined by drouth by several experts who looked fields over a few days ago.

BRIEFLY STATED

The public school closes its doors this Friday and the boy pupils can see nothing sad about that.

Blankets and comforters were necessary for sleep Monday night when the thermometer went the other way so far one could imagine fall was enveloping the outdoors.

Horse sleeping sickness, which it was feared might break out this spring because of the late start the sickness got last fall in Holt county, has not, as far as known, attacked any horses in the county.

M. F. Tomjack, one of the pioneers of Deloit township now residing in Ewing, was an O'Neill visitor Monday and made this office a pleasant call, ordering his name enrolled on The Frontier's subscription list for the ensuing year. Mr. Tomjack recently made a trip to counties to the east of us and he said that conditions there were much worse than they are here, on account of lack of moisture. In many places, even in Antelope county, the alfalfa is turning brown from a lack of moisture.

E. E. Cole, who has been postmaster at Star for the past 26 years, was a pleasant caller at this office last Saturday, advancing his subscription to The Frontier. Mr. Cole was on his way to Grand Island, where he was to attend the annual meeting of the association of Nebraska Postmasters, which was held in that city last Monday and Tuesday. It is doubtful if any of those in attendance at that meeting can equal the record for length of service of the Holt county man.
