ders, vessels; of their dung, fire; and of their calves skins, buckets, wherein they draw and keep water. To be short, they make so many things of them as they have need of, or, as many as suffice them in this life." (Gomara (1) p. 382). The Bison americanus, or oxen of Quivera, teemed to a number estimated at 75,000,000 between the Rocky Mountains and close to the Atlantic seaboard when found by the first whites. Even as late as 1850 the bison browsed on the prairies in sufficient numbers to mantle the ranges in wavering specks of brown. Traveling lines of bison 25 miles in length were common. From authentic sources it is given that there were gathered in the state of Kansas alone between the years of 1868 and 1881 on the prairies of that state the great number of 31,000,000 skeletal remains of bison which were sought by the makers of carbon. It required the skeletons of about 100 bison to weigh one ton and the price paid was $8. A seasoned hunter of the time said there were at least 50,000 of these skeletons on the Staked Plains of Texas and on the ground between there and Manitoba. These are but estimates but there is no question but what the skeletons were everywhere, an eye-sore and nothing more. (Continued next week.)

EXCAVATION SHOWS HOLT COUNTY WAS ONCE THE HOME OF MANY INDIANS (Continued from page 2.) as being super-sophisticated and ultra-modern to the nth degree. All that may be doubted if we read a few remarks made by those who saw some of the sights the Pawnee of Nebraska saw every day for hundreds of thousands of years and which were but routine scenes to them. Here are a few paragraphs about buffalo. The first was set down by some Spaniard who visited the Pawnee before contact with the white traders had affected their ways and the part of the country they lived in: ". . . the oxen of Quivera—their masters have no other riches nor substance; of them they eat, they drink, they apparel, they shoe themselves; and of their hides they make many things, as houses, shoes, apparel, and ropes; of their bones they make bodkins; of their sinew and hair, thread; of their horns, maws, and their blad-

Fire which started in an elevator in the yards of the Cornbelt Lumber company at York early Sunday, swept thru the yards and caused a loss estimated at $40,000, not including the loss of the elevator.
Fifty-six candidates have filed for county office in Scottsbluff county for the primary election August 14.
Last Saturday the Omaha market received the first shipment of 1934 wheat, shipped from Pickrell, Nebr. It had a moisture content of 14.9 and tested 58.1 pounds per bushel, which grain men called light. The grain was from a field which yielded 12 bushels per acre.
The presence of oil at a shallow depth on six farms near Homer, Nebr., has been detected in preliminary tests conducted by a Wyoming oil man. Several land owners in that vicinity are reported to have signed contracts for oil digging rights.
The first wheat combined in Richardson county for 1934 yielded but eight bushels per acre. The field was a ten acre tract and the yield was 80 bushels. Grain men in that section think other fields in the county will produce a greater yield.
ECONOMY LEAGUE MEETING
The Holt County Economy League will meet at O'Neill on Saturday, June 30, at 2 P. M. Taxpayers are reminded that the supervisors will make the county levy in August. Are you satisfied with tax conditions in Holt county? Martin Conway, Secretary.
