College and University

There is no clear line of distinction drawn between a college and a university, although in the United States the college is primarily an institution of higher learning having but a single faculty or curriculum; or is an institution for special instruction, says Pathfinder Magazine. An American university usually comprises a college and one or more graduate or professional schools. In Great Britain the college was originally a corporation founded to assist its members to pursue university studies.

The jiu-jitsu bout of Japan is the roughest two-man sport. All kinds of fouls are permitted and broken necks and ankles, dislocated hips and shoulders and torn tendons are not uncommon. When a combatant is in a painful grip and about to receive a disabling injury, he is supposed to give in and end the round. Rather than face this humiliation, however, he sometimes allows himself to be punished to the point of insensibility. — Collier's Weekly.

COST OF CARING FOR OLD PEOPLE PUT IN FIGURES

Three-fourths of the American families whose members must earn their own livings must expect some time to carry the additional burden of supporting a penniless grandfather or grandmother. It is computed by statisticians of a New York life insurance company.

Although support of old people by their own families is known to be one of the chief items of expense in a civilized society, no actual statistics of the magnitude of this have been compiled, to compare with existing statistics of the support at public expense of old people who have no children or whose children are unable to support them, reports the Baltimore Sun. In the absence of such actual figures the statisticians have computed probable figures from known death rates at different ages and similar data.

These computations indicate that 90 per cent of people who are 30 years old have one or both parents living, although at this age a considerable percentage of these parents still are self-supporting. The maximum demand for support by the old probably comes when the children are about 40. At that age 73 per cent of Americans have one or both parents living and probably unable to support themselves unless the family has saved money or has some outside resource. Beyond 40, the cost of caring for parents gradually decreases, because more and more of the parents are dying.

For sons and daughters of 50, the insurance company's figures indicate that only 5 per cent have both parents living and 37 per cent have one parent living. At an age of 60 less than 14 per cent still have one or both parents alive.
