Mr. Sinclair's EPIC program has now been interpreted as initiating "Easy Pickings in California."

President Roosevelt is going to have a conference of industrial and labor leaders. Let's see. Didn't President Hoover try something like that?

It is said that the total indebtedness of all the peoples in the world is four hundred billion dollars. There are no figures available as to how much of it will ever be paid.

When they are in college we call them "Rah, Rah," boys. But when they graduate and go down to Washington to run the government they are apt to be looked on as the "Raw, Raw" boys.

Secretary Ickes says that there is too great a flow of oil for the good of the petroleum industry. Maybe he can get congress to cut down the gas pressure when it gets in session this winter.

Jesse Jones, chairman of the RFC, is quoted as stating that he hopes "the day is not far distant when most government lending can be discontinued." But he probably doesn't mean before November 1936.

Jesse Jones, chairman of the RFC, says that the storm of the depression is over although there are still some rumblings. It is our opinion that the principal rumbling will come when the public has to foot the bill.

Word comes from several sections of the county, as well as other counties in the district, that the race for state senator is practically over, all but the counting of the votes. From all sections comes the word that Frank J. Brady, the republican nominee, is very strong and gaining ground every day, and it might be unanimous by election day.

Congressman Burke, democratic candidate for the United States senate, is billed to speak in this city tonight. As Mr. Burke is due to take part in the debate in Omaha this afternoon with his republican opponent, Bob Simmons, it clearly shows that he will be unable to be here for the night meeting, as advertised. Starting to fool the people before the election.

Dwight Griswold is making an aggressive, dignified campaign for the office of governor, a campaign that will land him in the governor's office after January 1. Traveling men, who are continually traveling over the state, are in a good position to get the public sentiment and they are almost unanimously of the opinion that Dwight will be elected and that with him the entire state ticket will go into office.

Bob Simmons has thrown a scare into the democrats of the state. Fighting Bob has been making such inroads into the democratic ranks that all candidates are now centering their fight upon him. Every day Bob is getting stronger with the voters of the state and it now seems certain that he will be successful at the polls in November and that with him will be elected the entire republican state ticket.

According to the daily press reports of the debate between Congressman Burke and Bob Simmons the Omaha Congressman does not think much of the small business men of the state. In this debate the press reports him as saying: "The NRA is fundamentally sound. The small business man who cannot meet its requirements and pay wages should get out of business." What does the small business men of the state think of Mr. Burke's ideas?

"Henry Grady made the best sheriff this county ever had," remarked a prominent Holt county citizen to the writer one day last week. "He made a splendid official and the people will again elect him to that important position when they go to the polls on election day." This is the word that comes from various sections of the county and it looks as if he would be a sure winner. The people want capable and efficient service from their officials and for that reason they will vote for and elect Henry Grady as sheriff.

According to one New England politician with a flair for figures, for every vote cast for Louis J. Brann, democratic candidate for governor of Maine in the recent election, $345 has been expended by the present administration at Washington for public work, relief, etc., in the Pine Tree state. Well, the republicans have been pretty good campaign spenders in years gone by, but we doubt whether they will be able to match that accomplishment dollar for dollar on the present campaign or in 1936 either for that matter.

J. J. Krska, republican candidate for county treasurer, is making an active and what appears to be a successful campaign for the office of county treasurer. Mr. Krska has spent practically his entire business life in accounting and is probably as competent a man as has ever aspired to this office in the county. He stands high in the estimation of the people of his own community, Atkinson, and they will support him loyally at the polls for they know that he is capable and competent to fill the office with which he aspires and that he is a splendid man.

Lloyd G. Gillespie, the republican nominee for state representative from this county, is one of the most aggressive campaigners in the county. He has been making a thorough canvass of the county and from the reports he is meeting with marked success with the voters of the county. Lloyd has been a life-long resident of the county and has always been active in the political and social life of the county. He is familiar with the needs of the people and is probably as well qualified as any man in the county to represent us in the state legislature. He is able, sincere and energetic and is bound to take a prominent part in the deliberations of the next house of representatives, as his election seems to be a fore-gone conclusion.

For the first time in the history of the state a political party is appealing to the voters of the state, for their support, because they have spent enormous sums of the taxpayers money in this state. According to their advertisement—published in another part of this issue and paid for by the democratic state committee—they have, that is the federal government, which is at present in the control of the democrats, expended in this state the sum of $135,720,398. That is the amount spent in Nebraska alone, our readers can estimate the amount spent in the various other states many of them having received five and six times as much as Nebraska. Oh, my, what a headache for the taxpayer and property owners when they come to pay the bill.

Holt county citizens will have an opportunity to vote for a Holt county man for a state office at the coming election, Robert J. Marsh for state railway commissioner. Bob has been a resident of this county practically all his life, coming here with his parents when a small boy. He spent many years on the farm and later engaged in business in this city and served the people of the county as a member of the county board and later as postmaster of this city. He has had a varied experience and is capable of handling the business that would come before him as a member of the railway commission. He is one of the common herd, without frills and would do his best to see that everyone got a square deal. As a matter of county pride, if for no other reason, he should be given a splendid vote at the general election, irrespective of political affiliations.

DAVID LAWRENCE BOOSTS SIMMONS

Nebraska City News-Press: "Out in Nebraska the republicans have nominated former Representative Bob Simmons, as able a man as has been in congress in many years. He is not a standpat republican, but an independent, far more in sympathy with the Senator Norris type of republicanism than the eastern species."

David Lawrence reminds his millions of readers throughout the country that Bob Simmons, republican nominee for the U. S. senate, is not a stand-patter, "but an independent, far more in sympathy with the Senator Norris type of republicanism than the eastern species." We've been preaching that in Nebraska but the World-Herald won't believe it, even the Simmons' 10-year record as a congressman shows that he is to be trusted to represent the people and not the special interests. He is neither a fanatic nor a reactionary. He is just the right type to be senator for all groups. When it comes to ability he will match up with anybody mentioned for the job; as for experience, Mr. Burke doesn't stand on the same platform with him. Burke admitted when he left congress that he had introduced no bills, made no speeches, but had supported Mr. Roosevelt's program through and thru. Simmons did better than that, and when it comes to supporting the President, he will do that, too, as long as the President supports the people—socially and politically, not through doles, I mean.

PLATFORM

Let us suppose that one of the presidential candidates in 1932 had promulgated as a platform the following:

1. I propose to undermine confidence in the business leadership of the country generally by parading before the American public through congress and commission investigations outstanding examples of mistakes and malfeasance in all lines of business. I propose that the exposes shall be stated in such a way as to give them the utmost publicity possible, with a view to creating the impression that these cases of wrong doing whether intentional or not, are typical of all business. I shall, in my inaugural address, charge the depression and the ills of the public generally to the business leadership of the country, and shall state in that inaugural address that the business leaders have been not only incompetent and stubborn but also dishonest in many activities.
2. I propose to encourage and extend government competition with many lines of private business and to institute government control and regulation of business activities through at least fifty new bureaus and commissions which

I will set up in Washington.
 3. I shall oust the more experienced government employees and supplant them with new appointees exempt from the Civil Service examinations, and chosen by my political campaign manager, and I will add at least fifty thousand additional government employees to the federal payroll in the first year of my administration.

4. I propose not only to abandon the gold standard, but to debase our currency, repudiate the promises of the government to pay in gold, make it a crime for private citizens to have gold in their possession. I shall call upon some college professors to establish by experiment a new monetary system with no definite and fixed value for the monetary unit.

5. To assist agriculture, I shall pay a bounty for the killing of many million pigs and sows, and the plowing up of one-fourth of our cotton acreage, and I shall furthermore distribute to farmers, from the federal treasury, sums aggregating several hundred million dollars in such a fashion that the farmer will receive greater revenue for non-production than he will for production. Cotton being one of our principal export commodities, I shall raise the price so that American cotton will be at a disadvantage in world markets, and thus stimulate the expansion of cotton production in foreign countries. In other farm commodities I shall fix the prices regardless of the supply and demand. The consumer will pay more for his food and for his clothing, and this money will be turned over to the farmer as his reward for producing less.

6. In order that I may not be hampered by the prejudiced viewpoint of adherents to the old system, I shall dispense with and ignore the advice of experienced business and political leaders and surround myself with brilliant and clever young men who have nothing to lose by abandoning the old system, but who are bitterly opposed to that system, and zealously devoted to the creation of a new order. To these young men I shall intrust the drafting of the important new legislation for carrying out my policies, and the legislation I will drive through congress, urging the necessity for this new legislation to meet the emergency. I can thus destroy the old order under the guise of trying to save it in an emergency.

7. I propose to tell our people that this being the age of plenty, they should work less and produce less and demand more for what they do, and to emphasize my belief in this program I shall employ millions of idle people to do unnecessary work, and pay them therefor higher wages than are paid by private employers for useful work.

8. I shall advocate the redistribution of wealth, arouse the workers against their employers, the producers against the distributors, and while urging the producers and distributors to increase wages and maintain prices, the consumers will be told that they are being robbed by the distributors and processors.

9. I shall prevent the criticism of my policies: first, by continual emphasis upon the terrible condition from which I am trying to save the country; second, by controlling the radio through the Federal Radio Commission; third, by establishing such intimate relations with the Washington newspaper correspondents as will cause them to interpret my actions and policies as I desire them interpreted, and by threatening their publishers with loss of advertising and circulation through popular revolt if they criticize. To be more obstreperous, I shall throw down the challenge that it is unpatriotic to criticize the President in times of such emergency.

10. To avoid the constitutional barriers I shall cause attacks to be made upon the strict interpretation of the constitution as being out of date and no longer adequate to protect the people, and where the judiciary seems unwilling to approve my legislation, I shall cause them to be attacked in the press and threaten them with investigation and popular disapproval.—From Dr. James E. Boyle, Cornell Uni.

More Help?

Atkinson, Nebr.,
 Dear Editor: One of the latest official gestures to "help the farmer" is the invitation to borrow money to modernize his buildings. It is not an opportunity to attach his signature to more notes and mortgages that the land owner wants. He doesn't want credit but a chance to realize a fair return on his investment and labor. If he can have fruitful seasons and a profitable market he'll get along.

Modernizing the old shacks sounds fine. Take a trip through rural districts surrounding such places as Norfolk and see the palatial houses and barns and then go to the mortgage records and you will find twenty to thirty thousand dollars indebtedness on these fine places. The land owner with his holdings free from debt even though his buildings are not so well as infinitely better off than those with these places.

It is a good thing for the lumber yards, and we wish them the best of luck. Wonder if they will release material for this "modernizing" program on a basis of exchange? Say take so many acres of the farm or so much livestock at the land owner's price. If the farmer gets anything from the lumber yard he must pay their price. Maybe there would be a lot of modernizing done if it could be arranged that way. Otherwise many of us will have to worry along with the little old cabins.

Possibly had the billions which tax exempt government securities have absorbed been diverted into industry so that idle families could have permanent and profitable employment these frantic efforts to "help the farmers" may not have been at all necessary. And that horrible nightmare of taxation would not be confronting us.

Pointed Paragraphs

The New Deal is killing live stock to raise prices and warning food dealers not to raise prices; it is establishing fair practices for industrial competition and then competing with industry with such unfair practices as selling below cost; it is pegging prices through NRA and denouncing business for gouging the farmer; it is condemning the bankers for not loosening up credit while it frightens credit with the threat of inflation; it is exacting a planned economy from business while the state of the budget shows that it has no knowledge of the meaning of economy.

Anyone who thinks the Brain Trust doesn't deserve credit should think twice before denouncing their mental capacity. The Brain Trustees are spending $2.50 of your money for every dollar they get. Try that on your own budget before you criticize.
