

Over the County

SOUTHWEST BREEZES

Petitions to the federal and state Agricultural departments started circulating Tuesday here and around Atkinson protesting against the proposed tuberculin tests in cattle. Notice was received individually thru the mails last week that this county was to be invaded by state authorities to test our herds. The petitioners believe that tuberculosis among cattle in Holt county is negligible and this proposed program is putting additional expense on the taxpayers. A meeting is called for Wednesday night at Amelia to organize the livestock interests of this section to deal with the situation.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester Kiser, living on the Roblyer place. The past year, have moved to Iowa. It is understood that John Baker will occupy the place from whence the Kiser's have departed.

Tom Baker has recovered from a severe sore throat and touch of fever which confined him in bed a few days. Mr. and Mrs. Baker found it necessary to make two trips to O'Neill in one week recently and Tom had to go to bed after returning from the last trip.

A daughter was born the 7th to Mr. and Mrs. Elloia Carpenter. Mrs. Sigman, of Amelia, mother of Mrs. Carpenter, is looking after things in the home for the present.

The compiler of these items sustained the loss of a heifer in an unorthodox way last week. During the night the heifer was tossed by an obstreperous inmate of the barn into a manger. It was found in the morning with hoofs turned up to the loft and was hauled out and skinned.

Considerable moisture—rain and snow—dampened this territory the first ten days in March. Meadows with clover and blue grass sprinkled thru the native grass are showing some green, which looks good to the anxious stockmen who are about out of hay.

A mysterious light in a lonely hill section north of the James ranch started general telephone activity in a wide circle one night recently. Word that a 300-pound hog had been stolen and butchered at Atkinson suggested the possibility that a beef from some of the ranches around was being put to the slaughter over in the hills. This supposition has not been verified.

A pile of road surfacing material on the highway in the vicinity of Swan lake proved bad medicine for a lone car out in a recent blizzard. At a turn in the highway the driver did not see the snow-buried pile, and ran into it. The car was somewhat wrecked and one occupant, an elderly man, was injured, being taken to Burwell for medical attention.

John Bower, of Inez, was an over-night guest at the Riley ranch one night last week.

Probably the last of baled hay that will be hauled from this section to market, was taken out Friday from Bly brothers' Meadows.

After 30 years a resident of the farm two miles west of Amelia, Charley Green's place has been sold to Tom Doolittle. It is understood his son Earl and family will occupy the place.

Radio fans hereabouts resent what some are broadcasting urging the adoption of the child labor amendment. A lady speaker with a burden for the oppressed and nigger driven youth of Nebraska has excited opposition to the cause she advocates by admitting she knew little about boys and girls of the family circle helping on the farm and in the home because in her aristocratic parental abode "servants did the work." Youngsters, dad and mother alike, out over the prairies and valleys of Nebraska who stand on their own, feel they need no advice on this subject from those reared in the lap of luxury.

Someone with a talent for statistics has nosed into the cigarette business and plucked from thence a line of figures which would be the despair of the Linotype operator to ask him to repeat them, and makes the large items of appropriation at Washington look like the family budget. By a fair count, one dozen He Men of this community are called to mind who had no part in piling up this long line of figures. They are free from the taint of lady nicotine in any form.

This is somewhat unusual in a rural community, where pleasures are supposed to be few. The interest and charm of natural living down here in southwest Holt are such that artificial means of consolation are not so much thought of; the wide sweep of country and rolling prairies kissed daily by the breezes; the pink glow of early dawn, the full glare of midday and the golden shafts of "sunset and evening star"—even the crash and roar of storms—provide a varied and ever present source of interest.
