SOUTHWEST BREEZES

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh L. James went to Long Pine Saturday, visiting with friends there over Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. William Carpenter took their little daughter, Maude, who has been ill most of the winter, to Stuart last Friday for medical consultation. A minor operation is to be performed to-morrow or the day following.

The senior Mr. Hazelbaker has lost seven head of cattle and two horses this winter. He attributes it to other causes than a lack of feed, of which he has been fairly well supplied, feeding some four tons of "cake" besides hay and the winter range.

John Baker and sons got moved into their quarters last Sunday, being the only day, John explained, he could get a truckman to do the job. He expects to spend most of the summer sawing cottonwood lumber around the neighborhood.

Jesse and Lloyd James made a business trip to Stuart today—Thursday—expecting to return to Atkinson in time for the meeting there concerning the cattle testing program. It is a long time since anything has stirred up this portion of Holt like this testing business has.

Farmers Against Test

The meeting at Amelia the evening of March 13, called because of notices sent out from the state agricultural college that this county was in for a tuberculin test, was largely attended, cattle raisers from a radius of miles around coming early and showing a marked interest. Several petitions were handed around and signed by everybody, showing a unanimous sentiment against the test at this time. Jack Widman acted as chairman and questions and discussions came from all quarters of the hall. Those circulating the petitions reported 125 signatures. Under the statute, as interpreted by those active in opposing the test, a majority of cattle owners or those owning 60 per cent of the cattle of a county in Nebraska must ask for tuberculin test before such work can be started. The letter, accompanied by a circular of which 175,000 have been printed at no small cost to the state, which was sent to the people of this community contains no provisions—no "ifs" nor "ands" whatever. Coming from the agricultural college at Lincoln it is frankly stated Holt county has been designated for cattle tests, a veterinarian headquartered at O'Neill and he will notify us when he is coming to our premises. The sentiments of those at the Amelia meeting may be summarized as follows:

The proposed test in this county is not in compliance with the statute; cattle are thin after a winter of shortage of feed and are in no condition for any kind of a test; cream going to market is pasteurized before being made into butter and beef is government inspected on the markets; both beef and butter are imported from many countries and no one knows anything about the cattle from which it comes being tested; it is another move to bring on still more encroachments on the liberty of Nebraska farmers to manage their own affairs; further unnecessary and uncalled for expense which tax payers in the long run have to pay. At 9 o'clock the meeting adjourned.

thing about the cattle from which it comes being tested; it is another move to bring on still more encroachments on the liberty of Nebraska farmers to manage their own affairs; further unnecessary and uncalled for expense which tax payers in the long run have to pay. At 9 o'clock the meeting adjourned.

Emmet School Notes

George Fernholz resumed his studies in the Freshman class after being absent from school for about a week due to illness.

Anna Rose O'Donnell gave a book report during English class Thursday on "The Beloved Vagabond," by William J. Locke.

The English X class are trying their luck at giving interviews as part of their study on newspaper work.

Joe Sesler was absent from school Monday afternoon.

The pupils of the Commercial Arithmetic class are studying ratio and proportion.

We are convinced that Spring is on its way at last. One of the Intermediate room pupils brought a bunch of Pussy Willows to school Monday.

Following are a number of limericks and quatrains written by the English X class:

There was a young dancer named Bill,
Whose dancing made my feet chill,
He stepped on my toes and then on my nose,
But to someone he might be a thrill.

There was a young pupil named Faye
Who had such a wonderful way
Of writing such exquisite notes,
Over which each green Freshman gloats.

But to her dismay,
The teacher will pray
That to her desk the notes will float.

There was a young scholar named Wayne
That went buggy and also insane.
This is the end of this verse
'Cause they took him away in a hearse.

I sat at my desk sad eyed
When the teacher came along and sighed—
"Why don't you go to working and quit your chinking?"
She said, "I was titched in the head."

The annual spelling contest was held last Friday afternoon in the High school room. The winners are as follows: High school, Anna Rose O'Donnell, first; Mary Ann Winkler, second. District No. 20: First grade, Bob McNally, first, of District 192; Darwin Wilson, second, of District 20.
