THE NEBRASKA SCENE

 state are inclined to be skittish about legislation proposed by solons from the Nebraska metropolis when the legislature is in session.

While admitting that chislers are bound to get on the relief rolls and that some of the recipients of federal relief may not be overly ambitious, E. F. Witte, NERA administrator, is ready to stand up for the majority of the people on relief.

Concerning the much-publicized action of several mid-western states in shutting off relief during the harvest season as a result of the alleged refusal of relief recipients to accept harvest jobs, Witte says:

"Persons on relief rolls in Nebraska are willing to work when the opportunity presents itself. In a very few instances a man might be reported as turning down a job, but investigation in those cases shows a living wage was not offered. A man might be offered $2 a day to work, but if that work only called for two days a week, that could not be called a living wage."

The NERA has announced that all work relief was to be discontinued Aug. 1 in counties which are primarily agricultural, and in all other counties by August 16, unless extenuating circumstances might arise. The July FERA appropriation of approximately $1,200,000 was pared down by nearly $500,000 in the request for August funds.

Reasons for cutting out work relief in Nebraska, according to Witte, include the elimination of any possibility of anyone charging NERA competition with farmers for labor, and the transfer of work projects to the WPA.

Present plans call for planting 75,000,000 seedlings next year in the federal shelter-belt which runs thru Nebraska, according to Paul D. Roberts, acting director of the project. Altho the planting for this year was completed only several weeks ago, $345,848 has already been allotted for the work in this state next year, and jobs will be provided for 256 men.

This year 125 miles of shelter-belt were planted. In three years, Roberts said, the 1935 planting will be four to six feet high, and five years eight to 14 feet high. By that time, he declares, they should be demonstrating their purpose as soil savers, especially in the breaking of wind.

The project takes in sections of six states and the planting to go on for 10 years. This year a million acclars was spent, and $1,790,985 has been allocated for 1936. The completed project calls for an expenditure of $75,000,000.

The provisions of Nebraska's pauper laws, making immediate relatives of an indigent person responsible for his support, are no bar to an old age pension (if and when such pensions become available), the attorney general has ruled in an interpretation of the O'Brien pension act passed by the 1935 legislature.

The attorney general also holds that county boards, which are old age pension boards under the law, need make no inquiry to determine whether an application for a pension has relatives who could be held liable for his maintenance under the pauper law.

The 1935 state levy will be 2.5 mills, it is unofficially stated. This is .4 mills above the 1934 levy, and the highest since 1921 with the exception of 1927 when a special 1.5 mill tax was added to the regular levy to wipe out a deficit which had been accumulating for several years. The 1921 levy was 3.3 mills.
