

Over the County

SOUTHWEST BREEZES

Cooler Monday. A refreshing shower Sunday night.

Raymond Bly and family were at Chambers last Thursday.

Mrs. Saunders went to Atkinson Sunday for a few days with friends.

John Baker was at Chambers Friday for a minor surgical operation.

If you think you have a tough job, try milking five or six cows hot evenings.

A load of heavy cattle from the Hazelbaker herd were sent to the Omaha market Monday.

The industry of the ant is theme for a classic and inspired writer. The ant has nothing on the fly.

Disposing of all porkers on the place a year ago when feed was expensive, Tom Baker has launched mildly into that industry again, securing an old one with her brood of ten.

John Bower reports two dead cows in his pasture seven miles from the home ranch, on different dates last week. He does not know whether the cows were killed by lightning or other cause.

In the homestead days sod was the building material in southern Holt. It still has its uses walling up cellars and furnishing "banking" material for buildings. The heavy slough grass sod is sought for this purpose and can lay up an experienced and careful hand can expand a wall that is not to be sneezed at.

A cattle truck belonging to Archie Reed has been parked at the cross roads south of the Berry school house for a week with a broken axle.

Mrs. Casper Addison is enjoying a visit from her mother, who arrived last Thursday. She had been visiting in Wyoming and Colorado, her home being at Allen, Nebr.

Elmer Fix threshed last week at the following places: Riley's, Young's Bower's and James'. Oats and rye have been yielding from 20 to 25 bushels per acre thru this community.

Bill Majors, one of the old timers of Chambers and in boyhood a resident of McClure precinct, is a harvest and haying hand at the E. E. Young place.

Mr. Green, high official of the amalgamated labor organizations which take themselves rather too seriously, is evidently "raving, caving, stark staving mad" over the status of labor organizations in Germany and calls for a boycott in this country of German manufactured goods. This outburst is liable to swing the sentiment of many in the opposite direction.

Mrs. Gail Boise, of Ewing, spent the past week here visiting at the home of Mrs. Anna J. Clark.

The official board of the M. E. church voted to give their pastor, Rev. Mertie E. Clute, a vacation during the balance of August. The Sundayschool and Epworth League will hold their regular services.

Mrs. Emma Stevens, of Page, who is lovingly known as "Aunt Em" to all her friends, is here this week visiting with her son, Earl, and family.

Miss Lila Gardner, of Wayne, was a week-end guest of Miss Lois Moore the past week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Butler and daughters, of Neligh, were here Sunday visiting among relatives.

Mrs. J. J. Hancock, of Casper, Wyo., who visited here at the home of Mrs. Mary Hancock for 10 days, left Thursday for Newman Grove for a further visit with relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Colman, who have been visiting at the home of their son, Richard, at Chadron, returned home Monday night.

Miss Wilma Brown, who attended a Holiness campmeeting at the Yellow Banks near Meadow Grove, has returned home.

Mr. and Mrs. George Wilcox and children drove to Oakview Park Sunday to attend a family reunion of Mrs. Wilcox's relatives.

A large crowd of voters of the Inman school district gathered at the I. O. O. F. hall Saturday to again vote on the site for the new school house and again the vote was in favor of retaining the old site. The vote was 56 for and 50 against.

MEEK AND VICINITY

The Ladies Aid met with Mrs. A. L. Borg Thursday afternoon. A good many of the members were, for different reasons, unable to attend. Mrs. Borg, assisted by Mrs. Sam Robertson, served a delicious lunch.

Those who gathered at the Eric Borg home on Wednesday evening for a farewell reception for Grandpa Hanson were: Mr. and Mrs. Howard Rouse and children, Mr. and Mrs. George Hansen and children, Betty Jane Henifin, Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Hubby, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Hensen and children and Mrs. Clifford Wells and children. A delicious lunch was served and all departed for their homes wishing Grandpa a successful journey back to his home at Ponomo, California.

Mrs. Roy Spindler called on Mrs. Frank Griffith Wednesday evening. Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Henifin and family, Granpa Hansen and Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Wells and family were guests at the Dan Hansen home on Thursday.

Laverne and Helen Borg were overnight guests of Roxie and Betty Puckett on Wednesday.

Miss Hayward and Miss Busch, who have been teaching Bible school at Joy, were guests at the Sam Robertson home on Wednesday night.

Mr. and Mrs. William Hubby called at Frank Griffith's on Monday afternoon. Neva June Schelkopf was an overnight guest at the George Weldon home at Emmet on Saturday.

Miss Maude Rouse, of O'Neill, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Griffith and Cecil, were guests at the Herbert Rouse home at Inman on Sunday. Floyd Keyes and sons, Ermand and Cecil and daughter Merle, called there in the afternoon.

Mrs. R. D. Spindler and daughter, Leore, left Sunday for Omaha to visit James and other relatives. They will also go to Glenwood, Iowa, to visit Mrs. Spindler's mother, Mrs. Blair.

The two youngest children of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Graham have been quite ill with a swelling of the glands of the neck. Two of the older children had it first. A Doctor was called and said it was caused by heat and dust. The little ones are much better at present.

Miss Mildred Hansen was an overnight guest of Ladoma Kurts on Sunday. George Hansen and son, Charles, left Thursday night for Harlan, Iowa, where they expect to visit a sister of Mr. Hansen's enroute to their home at Ponomo, Calif. The sister is 90 years old and she and her brother have not met for nearly seventeen years.

Mrs. Roy Spindler called on Mrs. Graham Friday afternoon.

Oscar Lindburg and daughter, Helen, were dinner guests at the Frank Nelson home on Sunday. Eric Borg had the misfortune to lose one of his work horses on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Sol Gallentine and Delmer Clark, of Nancatur, Kan.; Mrs. Leah Crouse, Mr. and Mrs. Orville Hartland and Neva June Schelkopf were dinner guests at the Geo. Weldon home at Emmet on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Fay Puckett and daughter, Betty, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Searles and children were dinner guests at Howard Rouse's on Sunday.

Dorothy Cole and Florence and Lavone Walters spent Friday afternoon at Eric Borg's.

Mrs. Frank Griffith and Cecil called at the Morris Graham's on Saturday afternoon.

Irene Searles is spending the week with her cousins, Lorene and Helen Borg.

Robert Vierboom, of New York, is visiting at the Frank Griffith home. Mrs. Pete Hereford, of O'Neill was also a dinner guest on Tuesday.

There will be a base ball game Sunday at Midway between the Midway and Phoenix teams.

PLEASANT DALE

This vicinity received a nice shower Sunday evening.

Threshing is well under way and the farmers are quite well pleased with their yields.

The average Nebraska who would have difficulty in recognizing a $10-bill if he saw one will be interested in the monetary figures that have been floating around the state house in recent days.

To begin with, highway paving bids of $1,300,000 are to be called August 22, and this doesn't even represent a portion of the $7,500,000 WPA road funds to be forthcoming soon in Nebraska.

Next, the federal government has come to the aid of the flood-damaged Republican river valley by allocating $500,000 from WPA funds for rehabilitation purposes. This is the first actual allocation in Nebraska under the works progress program.

This sum is exclusive of the $194,000 federal program for reconstruction of secondary bridges wiped out by the flood, and funds aggregating $540,000 which will be used to reconstruct major bridges on state and federal highways in the flood zone. The total funds earmarked now for rehabilitation of the flood damaged area is more than $1,200,000.

Plans for seven camps of rehabilitation workers in the valley have been announced. The camps are to be located at Oxford, McCook, Benkleman, Trenton, Cambridge, Alma and Red Cloud. Approximately 90 per cent of the labor is expected to come from relief rolls.

Nebraska's FERA relief grant, drastically slashed to less than a third of the first budget request for August, is $341,500. This curtailment is a positive indication of the federal government's avowed intention of cutting relief to a minimum under the FERA in preparation for the WPA program.

Critics of the new deal have been prone to forget certain events of the Hoover administration, as indicated by documents recently exhumed by disinterested parties around the state house.

One is an unofficial endorsement of the home improvement and building program similar to the PHA but minus the government loans.

The other, produced by O. S. Bare, extension entomologist of the college of agriculture and a republican, is a bulletin issued by the federal farm board of Sam McKelvin states in part:

"Grow Less—Get More. Millions of dollars and hours of work are lost in over production. Size of the crop depends largely on acreage farmers plant.

"One thing successful manufacturers learned a long time ago was that they could not make money when they produced more than they could sell at a profit. So they adopted a policy of adjusting production to demand, at the same time doing everything they could

to increase demand. "The agricultural marketing act recognizes the need for applying this same principle to farming if this industry is to get on a sound financial basis. Government assistance is provided not only for building up a farmer-owned and controlled marketing system, but also for adjusting production to the potential consumer demand. "It is the judgment of the Farm Board that the American farmer can not continue to compete successfully with other countries in the production of wheat and that production should be gradually adjusted downward until we reach a domestic consumption basis. . . .

A prime feature of the 1935 state fair will be a home improvement exhibit par excellence engineered by John Aldrich, administrator for the FHA in Lancaster county. A ramshackle house will be moved to the fair grounds and remodeled on one side, while the other half will be left in its original run-down condition. After the fair, the house will be completely renovated and auctioned off to the highest bidder. FHA men during the fair will inform the public how they may obtain loans for home improvement. After the project is completed and sold, should there be any remaining funds, they will be given to the Red Cross.

to increase demand. "The agricultural marketing act recognizes the need for applying this same principle to farming if this industry is to get on a sound financial basis. Government assistance is provided not only for building up a farmer-owned and controlled marketing system, but also for adjusting production to the potential consumer demand. "It is the judgment of the Farm Board that the American farmer can not continue to compete successfully with other countries in the production of wheat and that production should be gradually adjusted downward until we reach a domestic consumption basis. . . .

A prime feature of the 1935 state fair will be a home improvement exhibit par excellence engineered by John Aldrich, administrator for the FHA in Lancaster county. A ramshackle house will be moved to the fair grounds and remodeled on one side, while the

other half will be left in its original run-down condition. After the fair, the house will be completely renovated and auctioned off to the highest bidder. FHA men during the fair will inform the public how they may obtain loans for home improvement. After the project is completed and sold, should there be any remaining funds, they will be given to the Red Cross.

to increase demand. "The agricultural marketing act recognizes the need for applying this same principle to farming if this industry is to get on a sound financial basis. Government assistance is provided not only for building up a farmer-owned and controlled marketing system, but also for adjusting production to the potential consumer demand. "It is the judgment of the Farm Board that the American farmer can not continue to compete successfully with other countries in the production of wheat and that production should be gradually adjusted downward until we reach a domestic consumption basis. . . .

A prime feature of the 1935 state fair will be a home improvement exhibit par excellence engineered by John Aldrich, administrator for the FHA in Lancaster county. A ramshackle house will be moved to the fair grounds and remodeled on one side, while the

other half will be left in its original run-down condition. After the fair, the house will be completely renovated and auctioned off to the highest bidder. FHA men during the fair will inform the public how they may obtain loans for home improvement. After the project is completed and sold, should there be any remaining funds, they will be given to the Red Cross.

to increase demand. "The agricultural marketing act recognizes the need for applying this same principle to farming if this industry is to get on a sound financial basis. Government assistance is provided not only for building up a farmer-owned and controlled marketing system, but also for adjusting production to the potential consumer demand. "It is the judgment of the Farm Board that the American farmer can not continue to compete successfully with other countries in the production of wheat and that production should be gradually adjusted downward until we reach a domestic consumption basis. . . .

to increase demand. "The agricultural marketing act recognizes the need for applying this same principle to farming if this industry is to get on a sound financial basis. Government assistance is provided not only for building up a farmer-owned and controlled marketing system, but also for adjusting production to the potential consumer demand. "It is the judgment of the Farm Board that the American farmer can not continue to compete successfully with other countries in the production of wheat and that production should be gradually adjusted downward until we reach a domestic consumption basis. . . .

A prime feature of the 1935 state fair will be a home improvement exhibit par excellence engineered by John Aldrich, administrator for the FHA in Lancaster county. A ramshackle house will be moved to the fair grounds and remodeled on one side, while the

other half will be left in its original run-down condition. After the fair, the house will be completely renovated and auctioned off to the highest bidder. FHA men during the fair will inform the public how they may obtain loans for home improvement. After the project is completed and sold, should there be any remaining funds, they will be given to the Red Cross.

to increase demand. "The agricultural marketing act recognizes the need for applying this same principle to farming if this industry is to get on a sound financial basis. Government assistance is provided not only for building up a farmer-owned and controlled marketing system, but also for adjusting production to the potential consumer demand. "It is the judgment of the Farm Board that the American farmer can not continue to compete successfully with other countries in the production of wheat and that production should be gradually adjusted downward until we reach a domestic consumption basis. . . .

A prime feature of the 1935 state fair will be a home improvement exhibit par excellence engineered by John Aldrich, administrator for the FHA in Lancaster county. A ramshackle house will be moved to the fair grounds and remodeled on one side, while the

other half will be left in its original run-down condition. After the fair, the house will be completely renovated and auctioned off to the highest bidder. FHA men during the fair will inform the public how they may obtain loans for home improvement. After the project is completed and sold, should there be any remaining funds, they will be given to the Red Cross.

to increase demand. "The agricultural marketing act recognizes the need for applying this same principle to farming if this industry is to get on a sound financial basis. Government assistance is provided not only for building up a farmer-owned and controlled marketing system, but also for adjusting production to the potential consumer demand. "It is the judgment of the Farm Board that the American farmer can not continue to compete successfully with other countries in the production of wheat and that production should be gradually adjusted downward until we reach a domestic consumption basis. . . .

A prime feature of the 1935 state fair will be a home improvement exhibit par excellence engineered by John Aldrich, administrator for the FHA in Lancaster county. A ramshackle house will be moved to the fair grounds and remodeled on one side, while the

other half will be left in its original run-down condition. After the fair, the house will be completely renovated and auctioned off to the highest bidder. FHA men during the fair will inform the public how they may obtain loans for home improvement. After the project is completed and sold, should there be any remaining funds, they will be given to the Red Cross.

to increase demand. "The agricultural marketing act recognizes the need for applying this same principle to farming if this industry is to get on a sound financial basis. Government assistance is provided not only for building up a farmer-owned and controlled marketing system, but also for adjusting production to the potential consumer demand. "It is the judgment of the Farm Board that the American farmer can not continue to compete successfully with other countries in the production of wheat and that production should be gradually adjusted downward until we reach a domestic consumption basis. . . .

A prime feature of the 1935 state fair will be a home improvement exhibit par excellence engineered by John Aldrich, administrator for the FHA in Lancaster county. A ramshackle house will be moved to the fair grounds and remodeled on one side, while the

other half will be left in its original run-down condition. After the fair, the house will be completely renovated and auctioned off to the highest bidder. FHA men during the fair will inform the public how they may obtain loans for home improvement. After the project is completed and sold, should there be any remaining funds, they will be given to the Red Cross.

to increase demand. "The agricultural marketing act recognizes the need for applying this same principle to farming if this industry is to get on a sound financial basis. Government assistance is provided not only for building up a farmer-owned and controlled marketing system, but also for adjusting production to the potential consumer demand. "It is the judgment of the Farm Board that the American farmer can not continue to compete successfully with other countries in the production of wheat and that production should be gradually adjusted downward until we reach a domestic consumption basis. . . .

A prime feature of the 1935 state fair will be a home improvement exhibit par excellence engineered by John Aldrich, administrator for the FHA in Lancaster county. A ramshackle house will be moved to the fair grounds and remodeled on one side, while the

other half will be left in its original run-down condition. After the fair, the house will be completely renovated and auctioned off to the highest bidder. FHA men during the fair will inform the public how they may obtain loans for home improvement. After the project is completed and sold, should there be any remaining funds, they will be given to the Red Cross.

to increase demand. "The agricultural marketing act recognizes the need for applying this same principle to farming if this industry is to get on a sound financial basis. Government assistance is provided not only for building up a farmer-owned and controlled marketing system, but also for adjusting production to the potential consumer demand. "It is the judgment of the Farm Board that the American farmer can not continue to compete successfully with other countries in the production of wheat and that production should be gradually adjusted downward until we reach a domestic consumption basis. . . .

A prime feature of the 1935 state fair will be a home improvement exhibit par excellence engineered by John Aldrich, administrator for the FHA in Lancaster county. A ramshackle house will be moved to the fair grounds and remodeled on one side, while the

other half will be left in its original run-down condition. After the fair, the house will be completely renovated and auctioned off to the highest bidder. FHA men during the fair will inform the public how they may obtain loans for home improvement. After the project is completed and sold, should there be any remaining funds, they will be given to the Red Cross.

to increase demand. "The agricultural marketing act recognizes the need for applying this same principle to farming if this industry is to get on a sound financial basis. Government assistance is provided not only for building up a farmer-owned and controlled marketing system, but also for adjusting production to the potential consumer demand. "It is the judgment of the Farm Board that the American farmer can not continue to compete successfully with other countries in the production of wheat and that production should be gradually adjusted downward until we reach a domestic consumption basis. . . .

A prime feature of the 1935 state fair will be a home improvement exhibit par excellence engineered by John Aldrich, administrator for the FHA in Lancaster county. A ramshackle house will be moved to the fair grounds and remodeled on one side, while the

other half will be left in its original run-down condition. After the fair, the house will be completely renovated and auctioned off to the highest bidder. FHA men during the fair will inform the public how they may obtain loans for home improvement. After the project is completed and sold, should there be any remaining funds, they will be given to the Red Cross.

to increase demand. "The agricultural marketing act recognizes the need for applying this same principle to farming if this industry is to get on a sound financial basis. Government assistance is provided not only for building up a farmer-owned and controlled marketing system, but also for adjusting production to the potential consumer demand. "It is the judgment of the Farm Board that the American farmer can not continue to compete successfully with other countries in the production of wheat and that production should be gradually adjusted downward until we reach a domestic consumption basis. . . .

A prime feature of the 1935 state fair will be a home improvement exhibit par excellence engineered by John Aldrich, administrator for the FHA in Lancaster county. A ramshackle house will be moved to the fair grounds and remodeled on one side, while the

other half will be left in its original run-down condition. After the fair, the house will be completely renovated and auctioned off to the highest bidder. FHA men during the fair will inform the public how they may obtain loans for home improvement. After the project is completed and sold, should there be any remaining funds, they will be given to the Red Cross.

to increase demand. "The agricultural marketing act recognizes the need for applying this same principle to farming if this industry is to get on a sound financial basis. Government assistance is provided not only for building up a farmer-owned and controlled marketing system, but also for adjusting production to the potential consumer demand. "It is the judgment of the Farm Board that the American farmer can not continue to compete successfully with other countries in the production of wheat and that production should be gradually adjusted downward until we reach a domestic consumption basis. . . .

A prime feature of the 1935 state fair will be a home improvement exhibit par excellence engineered by John Aldrich, administrator for the FHA in Lancaster county. A ramshackle house will be moved to the fair grounds and remodeled on one side, while the

other half will be left in its original run-down condition. After the fair, the house will be completely renovated and auctioned off to the highest bidder. FHA men during the fair will inform the public how they may obtain loans for home improvement. After the project is completed and sold, should there be any remaining funds, they will be given to the Red Cross.

to increase demand. "The agricultural marketing act recognizes the need for applying this same principle to farming if this industry is to get on a sound financial basis. Government assistance is provided not only for building up a farmer-owned and controlled marketing system, but also for adjusting production to the potential consumer demand. "It is the judgment of the Farm Board that the American farmer can not continue to compete successfully with other countries in the production of wheat and that production should be gradually adjusted downward until we reach a domestic consumption basis. . . .

A prime feature of the 1935 state fair will be a home improvement exhibit par excellence engineered by John Aldrich, administrator for the FHA in Lancaster county. A ramshackle house will be moved to the fair grounds and remodeled on one side, while the

other half will be left in its original run-down condition. After the fair, the house will be completely renovated and auctioned off to the highest bidder. FHA men during the fair will inform the public how they may obtain loans for home improvement. After the project is completed and sold, should there be any remaining funds, they will be given to the Red Cross.

to increase demand. "The agricultural marketing act recognizes the need for applying this same principle to farming if this industry is to get on a sound financial basis. Government assistance is provided not only for building up a farmer-owned and controlled marketing system, but also for adjusting production to the potential consumer demand. "It is the judgment of the Farm Board that the American farmer can not continue to compete successfully with other countries in the production of wheat and that production should be gradually adjusted downward until we reach a domestic consumption basis. . . .

A prime feature of the 1935 state fair will be a home improvement exhibit par excellence engineered by John Aldrich, administrator for the FHA in Lancaster county. A ramshackle house will be moved to the fair grounds and remodeled on one side, while the

other half will be left in its original run-down condition. After the fair, the house will be completely renovated and auctioned off to the highest bidder. FHA men during the fair will inform the public how they may obtain loans for home improvement. After the project is completed and sold, should there be any remaining funds, they will be given to the Red Cross.

to increase demand. "The agricultural marketing act recognizes the need for applying this same principle to farming if this industry is to get on a sound financial basis. Government assistance is provided not only for building up a farmer-owned and controlled marketing system, but also for adjusting production to the potential consumer demand. "It is the judgment of the Farm Board that the American farmer can not continue to compete successfully with other countries in the production of wheat and that production should be gradually adjusted downward until we reach a domestic consumption basis. . . .

A prime feature of the 1935 state fair will be a home improvement exhibit par excellence engineered by John Aldrich, administrator for the FHA in Lancaster county. A ramshackle house will be moved to the fair grounds and remodeled on one side, while the

other half will be left in its original run-down condition. After the fair, the house will be completely renovated and auctioned off to the highest bidder. FHA men during the fair will inform the public how they may obtain loans for home improvement. After the project is completed and sold, should there be any remaining funds, they will be given to the Red Cross.

to increase demand. "The agricultural marketing act recognizes the need for applying this same principle to farming if this industry is to get on a sound financial basis. Government assistance is provided not only for building up a farmer-owned and controlled marketing system, but also for adjusting production to the potential consumer demand. "It is the judgment of the Farm Board that the American farmer can not continue to compete successfully with other countries in the production of wheat and that production should be gradually adjusted downward until we reach a domestic consumption basis. . . .

A prime feature of the 1935 state fair will be a home improvement exhibit par excellence engineered by John Aldrich, administrator for the FHA in Lancaster county. A ramshackle house will be moved to the fair grounds and remodeled on one side, while the

other half will be left in its original run-down condition. After the fair, the house will be completely renovated and auctioned off to the highest bidder. FHA men during the fair will inform the public how they may obtain loans for home improvement. After the project is completed and sold, should there be any remaining funds, they will be given to the Red Cross.

to increase demand. "The agricultural marketing act recognizes the need for applying this same principle to farming if this industry is to get on a sound financial basis. Government assistance is provided not only for building up a farmer-owned and controlled marketing system, but also for adjusting production to the potential consumer demand. "It is the judgment of the Farm Board that the American farmer can not continue to compete successfully with other countries in the production of wheat and that production should be gradually adjusted downward until we reach a domestic consumption basis. . . .

A prime feature of the 1935 state fair will be a home improvement exhibit par excellence engineered by John Aldrich, administrator for the FHA in Lancaster county. A ramshackle house will be moved to the fair grounds and remodeled on one side, while the

other half will be left in its original run-down condition. After the fair, the house will be completely renovated and auctioned off to the highest bidder. FHA men during the fair will inform the public how they may obtain loans for home improvement. After the project is completed and sold, should there be any remaining funds, they will be given to the Red Cross.

to increase demand. "The agricultural marketing act recognizes the need for applying this same principle to farming if this industry is to get on a sound financial basis. Government assistance is provided not only for building up a farmer-owned and controlled marketing system, but also for adjusting production to the potential consumer demand. "It is the judgment of the Farm Board that the American farmer can not continue to compete successfully with other countries in the production of wheat and that production should be gradually adjusted downward until we reach a domestic consumption basis. . . .

A prime feature of the 1935 state fair will be a home improvement exhibit par excellence engineered by John Aldrich, administrator for the FHA in Lancaster county. A ramshackle house will be moved to the fair grounds and remodeled on one side, while the

other half will be left in its original run-down condition. After the fair, the house will be completely renovated and auctioned off to the highest bidder. FHA men during the fair will inform the public how they may obtain loans for home improvement. After the project is completed and sold, should there be any remaining funds, they will be given to the Red Cross.

to increase demand. "The agricultural marketing act recognizes the need for applying this same principle to farming if this industry is to get on a sound financial basis. Government assistance is provided not only for building up a farmer-owned and controlled marketing system, but also for adjusting production to the potential consumer demand. "It is the judgment of the Farm Board that the American farmer can not continue to compete successfully with other countries in the production of wheat and that production should be gradually adjusted downward until we reach a domestic consumption basis. . . .

A prime feature of the 1935 state fair will be a home improvement exhibit par excellence engineered by John Aldrich, administrator for the FHA in Lancaster county. A ramshackle house will be moved to the fair grounds and remodeled on one side, while the

other half will be left in its original run-down condition. After the fair, the house will be completely renovated and auctioned off to the highest bidder. FHA men during the fair will inform the public how they may obtain loans for home improvement. After the project is completed and sold, should there be any remaining funds, they will be given to the Red Cross.

to increase demand. "The agricultural marketing act recognizes the need for applying this same principle to farming if this industry is to get on a sound financial basis. Government assistance is provided not only for building up a farmer-owned and controlled marketing system, but also for adjusting production to the potential consumer demand. "It is the judgment of the Farm Board that the American farmer can not continue to compete successfully with other countries in the production of wheat and that production should be gradually adjusted downward until we reach a domestic consumption basis. . . .

A prime feature of the 1935 state fair will be a home improvement exhibit par excellence engineered by John Aldrich, administrator for the FHA in Lancaster county. A ramshackle house will be moved to the fair grounds and remodeled on one side, while the

other half will be left in its original run-down condition. After the fair, the house will be completely renovated and auctioned off to the highest bidder. FHA men during the fair will inform the public how they may obtain loans for home improvement. After the project is completed and sold, should there be any remaining funds, they will be given to the Red Cross.

to increase demand. "The agricultural marketing act recognizes the need for applying this same principle to farming if this industry is to get on a sound financial basis. Government assistance is provided not only for building up a farmer-owned and controlled marketing system, but also for adjusting production to the potential consumer demand. "It is the judgment of the Farm Board that the American farmer can not continue to compete successfully with other countries in the production of wheat and that production should be gradually adjusted downward until we reach a domestic consumption basis. . . .

A prime feature of the 1935 state fair will be a home improvement exhibit par excellence engineered by John Aldrich, administrator for the FHA in Lancaster county. A ramshackle house will be moved to the fair grounds and remodeled on one side, while the

other half will be left in its original run-down condition. After the fair, the house will be completely renovated and auctioned off to the highest bidder. FHA men during the fair will inform the public how they may obtain loans for home improvement. After the project is completed and sold, should there be any remaining funds, they will be given to the Red Cross.

to increase demand. "The agricultural marketing act recognizes the need for applying this same principle to farming if this industry is to get on a sound financial basis. Government assistance is provided not only for building up a farmer-owned and controlled marketing system, but also for adjusting production to the potential consumer demand. "It is the judgment of the Farm Board that the American farmer can not continue to compete successfully with other countries in the production of wheat and that production should be gradually adjusted downward until we reach a domestic consumption basis. . . .

A prime feature of the 1935 state fair will be a home improvement exhibit par excellence engineered by John Aldrich, administrator for the FHA in Lancaster county. A ramshackle house will be moved to the fair grounds and remodeled on one side, while the

other half will be left in its original run-down condition. After the fair, the house will be completely renovated and auctioned off to the highest bidder. FHA men during the fair will inform the public how they may obtain loans for home improvement. After the project is completed and sold, should there be any remaining funds, they will be given to the Red Cross.

to increase demand. "The agricultural marketing act recognizes the need for applying this same principle to farming if this industry is to get on a sound financial basis. Government assistance is provided not only for building up a farmer-owned and controlled marketing system, but also for adjusting production to the potential consumer demand. "It is the judgment of the Farm Board that the American farmer can not continue to compete successfully with other countries in the production of wheat and that production should be gradually adjusted downward until we reach a domestic consumption basis. . . .

A prime feature of the 1935 state fair will be a home improvement exhibit par excellence engineered by John Aldrich, administrator for the FHA in Lancaster county. A ramshackle house will be moved to the fair grounds and remodeled on one side, while the

other half will be left in its original run-down condition. After the fair, the house will be completely renovated and auctioned off to the highest bidder. FHA men during the fair will inform the public how they may obtain loans for home improvement. After the project is completed and sold, should there be any remaining funds, they will be given to the Red Cross.

to increase demand. "The agricultural marketing act recognizes the need for applying this same principle to farming if this industry is to get on a sound financial basis. Government assistance is provided not only for building up a farmer-owned and controlled marketing system, but also for adjusting production to the potential consumer demand. "It is the judgment of the Farm Board that the American farmer can not continue to compete successfully with other countries in the production of wheat and that production should be gradually adjusted downward until we reach a domestic consumption basis. . . .

A prime feature of the 1935 state fair will be a home improvement exhibit par excellence engineered by John Aldrich, administrator for the FHA in Lancaster county. A ramshackle house will be moved to the fair grounds and remodeled on one side, while the

other half will be left in its original run-down condition. After the fair, the house will be completely renovated and auctioned off to the highest bidder. FHA men during the fair will inform the public how