Roosevelt vs. Roosevelt

(In regard to the reduction of state and local taxes.)

THE PLEDGES

"A third process of permanent relief for agriculture can come from national leadership in the reduction and more equitable distribution of taxes. With respect to this I propose to exert thru the Presidency, as I have done thru the Governorship, such influence as I can in favor of a national movement to reorganize local government in the direction of eliminating some of the tax burden which now bears so heavily on farms."—Gov. Roosevelt, Sept. 14, 1932, Topeka, Kans.

"I shall use this position of high responsibility (the Presidency) to discuss up and down the country, in all seasons, at all times, the duty of reducing taxes. * * * This I pledge you, and nothing I have said in this campaign transcends in importance this covenant with the taxpayers of this country. * * * The cost of state government has increased two-fold and even three-fold in the past ten or fifteen years. In this field I believe that substantial reductions can be made. While the President of the United States rightly has no authority over state budgets, he has the same moral responsibility of national leadership for generally lowered expenses, and therefore for generally lowered taxes.—Governor Roosevelt, Sept. 29, 1932, Sioux City, Ia.

"I can state the condition (burden of high taxes) best by quoting one paragraph from a document published a week ago and signed by both Alfred E. Smith and Calvin Coolidge:
"All the costs of local, state and national government must be reduced without fear and without favor. Unless the people thru unified action, arise and take charge of their government, they will find that their government has taken charge of them. Independence and liberty will be gone, and the general public will find it in a condition of servitude to an aggregation of organized and selfish minorities."—Gov. Roosevelt, Oct. 19, 1932, Pittsburgh, Pa.

THE REPUTATION

The reputation of these pledges came quickly after the inauguration of Franklin D. Roosevelt as President.
In order to foist the New Deal program upon the country, and so to interlock it with state and local governments as to make it difficult ever to return to the condition of independent state sovereignty, one of the first steps of the New Deal was to insist that all state governments make themselves a part of the federal New Deal program. They were asked to pass state N. I. R. A. laws so that there could be no doubt as to the ability of the federal government to regulate to the minutest detail all local business and industry. They were asked to enact other legislation paralleling federal legislation of the New Deal.
All this, of course, called for increased costs in state and local governments.
Then came the Federal Emergency Relief Administration, demanding as a price of the continuation of federal relief that state governments increase their taxes in order to provide certain relief funds, also having no control over their expenditure.
Finally, the PWA, in order to get its program tied in with state and local governments, demanded that where state constitutions or laws prohibited further bond issues or increases in tax rates, that the laws be changed or that the state constitution be amended.
It is a matter of record that official releases of the PWA pointed out that Administrator Ickes had set up a large special legal staff for the sole purpose of ascertaining how state and local laws prohibiting increases in tax rates or prohibiting further bond issues might either be repealed, changed, or evaded, and then drafting legislation to accomplish those ends.

Groups of lawyers were employed by other emergency set-ups in the federal government drafting legislation which was sent to the several states of the Union with demands that it be passed as written.
Some states in Democratic control were as subservient as the Democratic Congress. In other states the legislators refused to abdicate their duties and responsibilities, and take orders from Washington.
The net result of all this has been to push state and local taxes and to increase state and local bond issues to the highest point in the history of the United States.
In many states where it has been impossible, by reason of constitutional prohibitions, to raise the property tax rate or the assessment value on real estate, new means of taxes have been devised. These taxes, like all taxes, are eventually paid by the common people, most often in increased cost of food and clothing and in higher rents—or in lower values for property.

PRETTY AS HER HEROINES—THAT'S MARTHA OSTENSO

Her Newest Novel Will Begin In This Newspaper Next Week, Running Serially.

MARTHA OSTENSO

Meeting Martha Ostenso would not be unlike meeting Silver Grenoble, the pretty blonde girl whose problems form the basis of "There's Always Another Year." Miss Ostenso's latest novel, which this newspaper now brings to you in serial form. Although she is only in her early thirties, she has already written eight successful novels, the first of which won her the Dodd, Mead first novel prize. The author was born in Ostenso township on the Hardangerfjord in Norway, and came to America at the age of two. She learned to speak English in South Dakota, and when the family moved to Canada she began to earn money by writing it for the Manitoba Free Press. Like many reporters she succumbed to the call of New York where she did newspaper work and social service.
"Wild Geese," her first novel, was already framed in her mind, and it was not long before she got it on paper and with it won world-wide recognition. "The Dark Dawn," "The Mad Carew," "Prologue to Love" and others followed it. "There's Always Another Year" has been called a climax of her brilliant career. Read every installment as this story unfolds serially in these pages.

Many Important Laws Passed by 74th Congress

by Congressman Karl Stefan
The end of the first session of the 74th Congress came shortly after midnight on August 27. The end came just on the stroke of midnight, when Vice President Garner banged his gavel and said "The United States Senate stands adjourned sine die."

Just exactly what this Congress did and which affects most of our entire population is summed up this way:
Social Security Act—Provides immediate Federal contributions to assist state in pensioning the needy aged; established permanent Federal old-age annuity system; establishes federal-state unemployment insurance systems; provides Federal contributions to states for needy mothers and children, crippled children and blind.
Wagner Labor Disputes Act—Attempts to guarantee to all workers within scope of Federal power the right to organize and bargain collectively thru representatives of their own choosing; sets up Federal Labor Relations Board to enforce the act.

Banking Act of 1935—Reorganizes the Federal Reserve System giving the Administration increased authority over it; centralizes control of "open market operations," rediscount rates and other devices by which Reserve banks affect flow of credit and money; provides for credit expansion by liberalizing rediscount rules; continues Federal bank deposit insurance; requires state banks with more than $1,000,000 to join the Reserve System in order to have such insurance after July 1, 1942.
Relief—Gave the President $800,000,000 for direct relief, and $4,000,000,000 for work relief to create 3,500,000 jobs by Nov. 1.
Taxes—Passed new taxes to yield $250,000,000 annually, largely from higher income levies on persons receiving more than $50,000 a year; higher taxes on large estates and higher rates on the more profitable corporations.
Income Tax Publicity—Repealed last year's "pink slip" law which would have made personal income tax records open to the public.
AAA Amendments—Approved processing tax rates and farm benefit payments in effort to protect legality of New Deal crop control program; restricted suits for recovery of processing taxes to those who can prove they did not pass tax burden onto consumers or farmers; prohibited price fixing except on milk; continued Bankhead Cotton Control Act and Kerr-Smith Tobacco Control Act for another crop year; authorized potato control system.
TVA Amendments—Gave TVA specific power to sell power, a point challenged by courts; authorized a $50,000,000 bond issue for expansion; forbade TVA to buy whole existing power distribution systems, but authorized cities to borrow TVA funds to buy such systems.

Bus and Truck Regulation—Placed interstate bus and truck lines under I. C. C. regulation with respect to rates and safety measures.
Railroad Pensions—Provided for Federal pensioning of rail employees at 65 or after 30 years' service, replacing last year's pension act which was held invalid.
