ROOSEVELT PRAYER

(The following from the Tilden Citizen is labeled L. C. Hansen's favorite prayer.

Lord Roosevelt—I am only a Madison county farmer.
Thou knowest that when I had an abundance of food, and feed for my livestock, I was not satisfied and voted for a NEW DEAL.

We therefore thank you for the New Deal, the drouth, chinch-bugs, Henry Wallace and all other parasites.
We thank thee for a subsidy to farmers not to raise wheat, corn and hogs, and to aid us in violation of the laws of God and man, to kill our sows and pigs, while our fellowmen were starving.

We thank thee for taking gold from us and giving us beer, thereby improving the morals of our people.

We thank thee that thou didst chase the money changers out of the temple and stop speculation by making our national credit so uncertain that business was afraid.

We thank thee that thou didst create the Blue Eagle to take the place of the American Eagle and force a code on the coal dealers whereby I pay $2.00 more per ton for my coal.

We thank thee that thou didst remove the disabled war veterans from hospitals and place CCC workers in their beds in order to balance the budget.

We thank thee for championing man rights vs. property rights for we all know a man owning property is not human.

Our father, who art in Washington, Roosevelt is thy name; his kingdom come; his will being done, even to strikes and the licensing of land. Give us this day our corn bread (tax free) that Coolidge tried for four years to get us to eat and Roosevelt had us eating in four months, and lead us not into temptation to vote for another Democratic President; for Roosevelt has all the power; all the glory and all the radicals and we will be paying high taxes forever and ever.

AMEN.

PHOENIX HEN TRIES TO RAISE A FAMILY
What kind of a creature is the pheasant, anyhow? At a point just a little short of one mile east of the Northwestern depot here and about ten feet from the south rail where Elmer Neal cuts weeds and grass on the Northwestern right-of-way there is a nest of pheasant eggs, 13 in sight Sunday. A dog cracked one egg, revealing it to be strictly fresh. A shell nearby indicated one had hatched, perhaps by the sun as the nest is abandoned since cover reveals the eggs from 25 feet away.

It is presumed this hen had her nests wrecked repeatedly and is determined to serve her country but in late September her chances look mighty slim. Several of the eggs out of the nest were broken and appeared to have been cooked by the sun and this was possible since thundering trains and pedestrians are frequent at the spot. This hen may have had trouble from hungry, howling, teeth gnashing, ravenous packs of wolves perhaps responsible for nearby disappearances of domestic chickens recently and so moved her nest to what appeared a protective agency, the Northwestern railway with its ponderous iron horses and serpentine trains, whistles and bells and threats to most things in a wild state. But the pheasant eventually lost her battle, her prospective young crushed and abandoned between the monsters of civilization and the cannibals of jungles and prairies.

Ghost Story

"Daddy, there is something black out there and he made faces at me."

"It's dark outdoors; how could you see anything?"

"I guess it's moonlight. This thing got back of a tree and it almost got me cornered."

"The only tree in the yard is about as large as a clothespin, and there's no moon tonight."

"Well, I heard something say, 'I am it and this is my night to eat.'"

"Rats! Perhaps some neighbor's boy out to have some fun."

"Nope; this thing made a sound like a wild man and he went up a tree like a wild cat."

"This is interesting. Have any claws on his four feet?"

"Sure, great long ones and the awfulest grin on his face."

"Sure it's human in shape, are you?"

Gosh, yes; could see his whole body as plain as day."

"Were his shoes black or tan?"

"Black as ink and big enough for a giant."

"That's funny. Had shoes on and you say you saw his claws—claws on four of his feet?"

"Yes. But you see he removed his shoes to climb this here tree."

"Did this visitation squeal while climbing?"

"Oh, most awful. And made faces—gee, whillikers."

"I know what you encountered. You saw that democrat who failed to get a federal job under Roosevelt."

The grand sight on the ride on the special train to the Norfolk free feed and drink party last Thursday was presented in tall corn stalks and numerous stacks of wild hay. There is plenty of corn in this part of the country and all kinds of hay. It is pretty hard to judge a corn yield from a passing train but a rough guess is that fields between here and Norfolk will yield from 15 to 40 bushels per acre.

The dinner and card party given at the Golden Hotel last Thursday evening by Mrs. F. J. Biglin, Mrs. R. E. Gallagher, Mrs. W. H. Hart and Mrs. W. J. Biglin will live long in the memory of the participants as one of the real parties of the year. After a splendid dinner the guests played contract bridge. Mrs. C. E. Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Barnhart, of Norfolk, were in the city Thursday morning, visiting their son, William, of Barnhart's market. "Barney" has been a resident of this section of the state for over fifty years and has been engaged in the active practice of law for nearly sixty years, and is still going strong, although he has reached the age of 76 years. He is enjoying good health and says that he just thinks he will be active in the practice of law as long as he lives, as he just loves the work. He met many old friends in this city who were glad to see him.

Andy Wetlauffer, living in the Opportunity neighborhood, had the misfortune to break his arm last Sunday while cranking a Ford. A neighbor drove into his yard and when they were ready to leave for home the engine died. In order to save the driver from getting out of the car to crank it, Andy volunteered to do the job. Whether the Ford resented the handling of a stranger or just thru pure cussedness has not been determined, but it kicked back and Andy

The liquor tax is failing by nearly $20,000, to reach the average set up by the state board of equalization in fixing the state levy two months ago, present reports reveal.

The commissioner in charge of finances says September receipts totaled $109,836, the lowest in the full four months of operation.

The state board of operation figured the average monthly receipts at $128,680.

The board used that figure to hold the 1935 state tax levy down to 2.15 mills after it was believed the tax would have to be fixed as high as 2.5 mills.

Monthly receipts to date: June, $111,230; July, 188,811; August, $188,911; September, $109,856.

The new state commission for control of the feeble-minded, created by the 1935 legislature, was organized last week ready to carry out the law's protective society, for a consensus of a feeble-minded round table.

This commission will try to keep the feeble-minded from mating, but due to its lack of funds, it will not try to keep a record of all meetings of the feeble-minded as the original law required.
