SOUTHWEST BREEZES

What has become of the Klux-Klux-Klan?

Raymond Bly and family visited Sunday with Mrs. Bly's parents down by the lake.

An Omaha youth tried suicide when his girl quit him because he couldn't buy her beer. As the famous Mr. Dooley once said: "What do you think of that?"

The E. E. Young family were guests of Mrs. Riley and Mr. and Mrs. Baker Saturday evening, spending a pleasant and interesting social hour.

The Clemens boys and Morris Kennedy were among others from the southwest at O'Neill Friday last equipping themselves to perform the part of Santa Claus in the near future.

Thieves, like the poor, are always with us. Stealing sheep has long been regarded as the embodiment of all that is contemptible even by those of the thieving fraternity. Jay Roblyer, a former Swan resident but now near Atkinson, was the victim recently of a night raid of his barnyard, when two sheep were stolen.

Swearing, beer-drinking and cigarette puffing gals with greasy, pimpled complexion and an ambition to be tough merely succeed in being rowdies.

P. J. Kennedy tells his friends he is quitting the ranch shortly. He sold the cattle this fall and recently made a sale of a portion of the hay on the place and now expects to sell the ranch equipment. Mr. Kennedy has been a long time resident of Swan precinct and will be missed by neighbors over his way.

The persons on "direct relief" need not feel that they are "charity patients" any more than those receiving the corn-hog annuities. Further, the white-collared fraternity and administrative functionaries and supernumeraries are also on the federal relief rolls. Though not technically classed that way these three classes are all in the same boat.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Baker and John Bower departed Tuesday on a business trip to Omaha and Lincoln.

To drop in his tracks not to rise again occasionally occurs among horses, authorities pronouncing it heart disease. A recent case of this kind was at the George Meals farm up toward Atkinson. The boys were bringing in a load of hay when one of their team, a pair of old grey favorites, dropped dead.

A Bit of Graveyard History. Frank and Tom were the participants of a remarkable episode of our graveyard history. Frank gives the details. Do not be frightened. This is not a ghost story. The afternoon sun stood about half masted on a hot August day early in the present century. The regulator at B. F. Cole's on upper Fourth street indicated just 4 o'clock. Frank and Tom, team and light wagon, were starting from O. F. Biglin's establishment for the care of the dead with casket and rough box to bring the remains of a deceased citizen in from far distant Holt Creek for burial. By the time Holt Creek flats were reached the stars were twinkling. Night had come. Not one of those hot, mosquito-infested nights. The prairie breeze fanning faintly carried a chill. A teeth-chattering night, that sometimes follows a hot day in late summer. "What's that ahead of us," asked Tom, "elephants?" "Them's haystacks." "Haystacks your eye. Who ever saw haystacks moving around on the prairie?"

"Taint prairie. That's water." "You're not tellin' me them's haystacks floating around in water?" "Yep. Can these horses swim?" "Sure, if haystacks can float out there, horses ought to swim." "Well, this is the crick with a flowing well somewhere sprung a leak." "That so? Well you get back there and keep that box out of the water and I'll take you through." "Got your order. Now just a minute until I get this joyful stuff up on my shoulders. There—let 'em go." "Mike, Brownie, steady now; your going to swim the Great Lakes." "Better pull 'em a little to the right there." "Don't you know it is fatal to any craft to use landlubber terms on the water; you should say starboard and larboard." "We're not on water—we're in it. Just what do you know about maritime usages, anyway?" "Me? I used to pilot a stern wheeler up and down the Father of Waters." "Well, its up to you right now to pilot this four-wheeler out of the Mother of Waters." "Don't get alarmed, Frank. How are you getting along back there?" "Bad. I'm about to let this emblem of rest down and drop into it." "See that hump just off our port side? I'm turning our prow straight into that with full steam ahead." A safe landing was made. Twenty-four hours from the time of departure they were back home; and probably it is the first and only instance of man or devil standing up in the back of a wagon and balancing the interior and exterior casings for the remains of a dead man on his shoulder while crossing a stream.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF HOLT COUNTY, NEBRASKA in the Matter of Mothers Pensions for Holt County, Nebraska: ORDER

Now on this 29th day of October, 1935, there came on for consideration before the Court the matter of extending and granting of mothers pensions; and the Court being fully advised, and having made independent investigations as far as possible, and having submitted the applications for mothers pensions for consideration to the members of the Board of Supervisors of Holt county, Nebraska; and after due consideration,

The Court finds the statements contained in the different applications for mothers pensions to be true; and finds that the persons named herein are entitled to receive mothers pensions for the amounts set opposite their names, for the period of six months and no longer commencing with November 1, 1935, and payable each month; the Court reserving the right to make cancellation of any pension hereinafter granted if for cause the Court sees fit, and that without notice or hearing.

Mrs. Mary Driskill, Stuart, Nebraska, $10.00.

That the pension granted to Lydia Lee be for the period of three months, and no longer.

It is further ordered as to the mothers pension granted to Mrs. Walter Jacox that the same be paid to Mrs. E. R. Riley, of Inman, who shall supervise the spending of the same for the best interests of the family.

That the mothers pension payable to Margaret Posvar, Emma Jardee, Myrtle Coats and Winifred McTaggart be paid to Roberta Arbuthnot, she to supervise the spending of such pension in the interest of the families.

It is further ordered that as to the pension granted Clara Graham that the same be paid to August Schutts, to be expended by him for the best interest of the family.

As to the petition of Edith Black, the Court finds that she is the grandmother of Geraldine Black, 2 years of age; that said child's mother, as well as the child, are dependent upon the petitioner, Edith Black, for their support and maintenance; that in the opinion of the Court, instead of granting the application of the mother of Geraldine Black, she being qualified to receive a mothers pension, and the paying of the money to the child's mother; that it should be paid to Mrs. Edith Black for the support and maintenance of said child, Geraldine Black.

It is therefore, ordered and adjudged by the Court that the Board of Supervisors of Holt county, Nebraska, enter an order directing payment of the pensions heretofore granted, and that the clerk of this Court deliver to the County Clerk a certified copy of this order.
