If these republicans had remained in their own party it will be seen at a glance that in the primary contest in this county the parties would have been about equal. But that election is over and now for the real battle in No-

There was little interest in the campaign until the last three or four days of the campaign. Then it was learned that another writein campaign was under way. That the name of former Judge J. J. Harrington would be written in as a candidate for district judge and that the name of T. J. Coyne, former county assessor and later clerk of the district court, would be written in for county judge. Several workers were on the streets all day election day urging voters to write in these two names on the ballots and a large number did so. When the complete vote had been checked over, except the mail ballots, it was found that the vote on these two offices stood as follows: For district judge, R. R. Dickson, 2,814; J. J. Harrington, 441. For county judge: C. J. Malone, 2,838; T. J. Coyne,

For the life of us we cannot conceive how they expect to meet the requirements of the law and have a candidate for county judge nominated by writing in his name. The law specifically states that where a man does not file for the office of county judge or county superintendent to get his name on the ballot, that in order to qualify as a candidate he must receive ten per cent of the vote cast in the county at the last general election for governor. As Cochran and Dwight Griswold received together 7,397 votes at the general election two years ago it would take 740 voters writing in the name of their favorite candidate to get a name on the ballot for this office. As to the office of district judge we do not know as we have looked up the law regarding that office.

One of the surprises of the election was the defeat of John Steinhauser, for the republican nomination for supervisor from the Sixth district. John has been a member of the board for a good many yes and he appeared a cinch for nomination, but he went down defeat.

In the Second district, which been represented by John A. C son, republican for the past for years, he won a renomination over Robert Smith

Vetal Hatton, 30, of St. Francis, Danceland at an early hour Wednesday morning, by being run over by an automobile driven by Clarence Potter.

A coroners jury was empaneled by Sheriff Duffy on Wednesday morning and they found that Hatton came to his death by being run over by an automobile driven by Clarence Potter. That said accident was uavoidable and that Potter was not to blame.

Hatton's body was first identified as that of Ralph Ripke, but Ripke turned up at Stuart during the day and Marvin Ripke, U. S. Indian agent at Rosebud identified. the body as that of Hatton.

Gene Runalson, of Ainsworth, who was with Hatton Tuesday night said he was unable to recall much of what had occurred. He said the automobile they were driving, a new Dodge pick-up, ran out of gasoline and that Hatton started down the road for fuel when he was struck by a car.

Potter said his automobile struck the body but told the jury he did not know whether Hatton was dead at that time. He said he did not see the man until after the car ran over him. He then notified the authorities and Sheriff Duffy went and Mrs. Bert Shoemaker. He is out to the scene of the accident a graduate of the O'Neill high about 4 o'clock Wednesday morn-
