

"Electric Eye" Telephone Invented for Airplanes

Messages Between Air and Ground Are Easily Made

Communication between ground and airplanes by means of invisible light in two-way conversation will be made possible with an invention perfected by A. A. Arnhy, a member of the Illinois National Guard. A photo cell of the type used for television pickup is the main feature of the new equipment. Arnhy, who is a German-born scientist, states that the electric eye weapons will be the major factor in the next war. The photograph shows Mr. Arnhy receiving a message from a plane, with R. D. Lougini, who aided him.

Man Is Improving
Men with the dignity, common sense and simple greatness of a Lincoln are rare; but as time goes on the average rises.

Digging Themselves Out From Flood Debris

Throughout the eastern and New England states, as the great floods receded, the people in the devastated regions speedily began the hard task of cleaning up their cities and towns. Characteristic scenes are here presented. 1—WPA workers clearing the mud and wreckage from streets in Pittsburgh. 2—View in Johnstown, Pa., as citizens digging out the debris. 3—Man and wife in a Pittsburgh suburb doing their "spring house cleaning" after the waters had left their bungalow.

Germany's New Zeppelin on a Test Flight

From an airplane flying above it, this excellent snap of the LZ-129 was made, as the great zeppelin that was built for passenger service over the Atlantic, from Frankfurt-am-Main to Lakehurst, N. J., was maneuvered over Lake Constance on its first test flight.

Sergeant Morgan Is Rewarded for Heroism

Alaskan Flier Showed Bravery in "Flu" Epidemic

The Soldiers' medal, the army's highest peace-time award, was pinned on the breast of Master Sergeant Stanley Morgan, Alaskan flier, by Col. Henry A. Finch, commandant of Fort Lawton, Washington. Morgan received the decoration for his heroic work during the influenza epidemic that ravaged an Alaskan settlement some time ago. He also aided in the recovery of the bodies of Wiley Post and Will Rogers.

Takes First Air Trip Across U. S. at Age of 84

From covered wagon across the Indian-infested plains of the Middle West to luxurious air line travel is a far cry and covers a lot of time, but Mrs. J. H. Pierson has enjoyed that experience. In celebration of her eighty-fourth birthday Mrs. Pierson flew one of the United Air

Lines' Overland Trail transports from Chicago to San Francisco. It was her first flight and she liked it so well that she immediately formulated plans for flying across the continent, which she crossed back in 1897 in a covered wagon at the age of fifteen, two years after the Civil war was over and before the coming of the railroads to sunny California.

View Plans for "Perfect Air Field"

Philadelphia is pointing the way for the rest of the world in aerial transportation, with work being started on what will be the "perfect air terminus." Facilities for air, rail and water transportation and accommodations for the mooring of lighter-than-air craft are planned. Mayor S. Davis Wilson of Philadelphia, right, is seen here with Admiral King, center, head of the navy flying corps, and Maj. Al Williams, the navy's speed ace, as they inspected the plans.

Congress Discovers Leif Eriksson

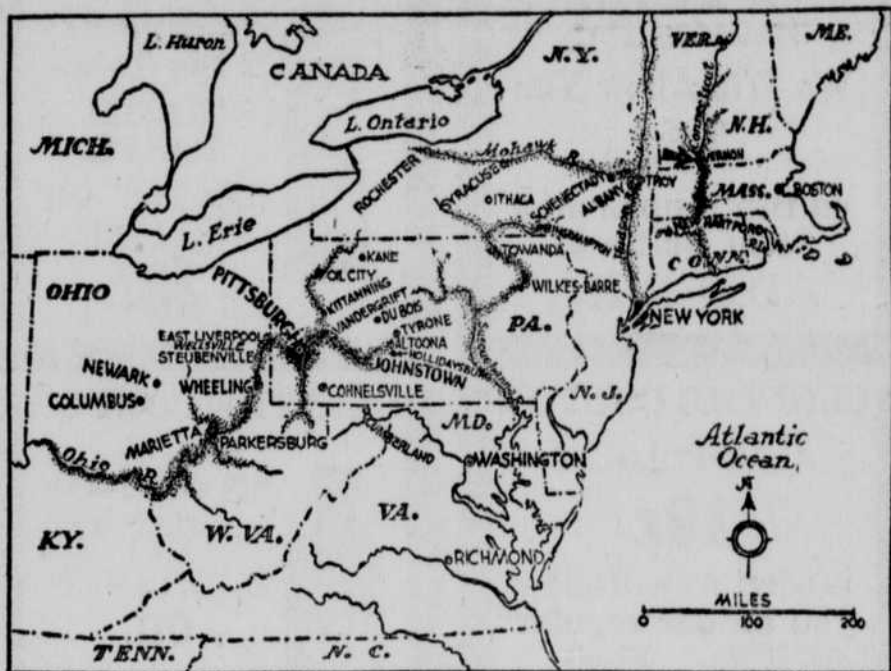

This gift of the Norwegian friends of America to the congress of the United States, "Leif Eriksson Discovers America," a copy of a larger painting by Christian Krohg in the National gallery in Oslo, was unveiled the other day in Statuary hall in the Capitol. Later it will be hung in a gallery in the senate wing.

Campaign for Early Diagnosis of Tuberculosis

Forty years ago this spring joke-smiths were making the world laugh at an amazing news item from Wurzburg, Germany. A professor of physics at the university there had announced the discovery of a ray which permitted him to see through solid objects. When he asked what it was he said he didn't know—it was invisible. He had proved it was not light, yet it would take a photograph. He frankly called it an "X" (unknown) ray. The local scientific society voted that the new ray should be called after its discoverer. So today it is called either the X-ray or the Roentgen ray, after William Konrad Roentgen. The National Tuberculosis association, which is conducting throughout April an "Early Diagnosis Campaign," has for its slogan, "Fight Tuberculosis

With Modern Weapons," and calls attention to the fact that the X-ray and tuberculosis test are the weapons it means. The illustration shows the necessary apparatus and a portrait of the immortal Roentgen. The National Tuberculosis association is receiving the aid and support of health officials, physicians and surgeons in all parts of the country. Persons who have reason to suspect that they have contracted the disease are urged to submit themselves to the tests, which may be given in innumerable cities and towns in all the states, both in private laboratories and in those maintained by municipalities. Cure of tuberculosis is now comparatively sure if treatment is begun in its early stages, so no time should be lost in determining its presence.

GOOD STRIVING

Failure after long preservation is much grander than never to have a striving good enough to be called a failure.—George Elliot.
