"MORE ABUNDANT LIFE" "Under massive, gilded chandeliers in the paneled ballroom of the former Edward B. McLean home a staff of news writers now on the employment rolls of the Works Progress administration is completing a 250,000-word guide to the city of Washington," says a United Press dispatch from Washington. "Officials of the project, known as the writers' project, said the guide would be in final form within a month. But exactly what use would be made of it NO ONE connected with the project could say. No provision has been made to publish it and no funds are available for that purpose."

Farmers Can't Get Help; WPA Jobs Lure Hands

Springfield, Ill.—From all over Illinois directors of the Illinois Agricultural association are receiving complaints that farmers cannot obtain sufficient help this spring because the men they customarily hire now work for the WPA and prefer the easy work and good pay to the more rigorous tasks of farming. Farmers in past years have been able to get skilled help for $25 or $30 a month and keep, according to the association. "This year farm hands in many cases refuse to take jobs on the farm and frankly say that they would rather work for the WPA three or four days a week," says an IAA statement. "They say that while the farm wages with board give them more money than the $54 a month WPA wage, they prefer to work less and take less pay."

A survey by a Rockford newspaper showed a need for 1,000 farm hands in Winnebago, Boone and Ogle counties. L. W. Braham, Will county farm adviser, reported many appeals from farmers for help. "The farmers resent the idea that they are unable to get help when there are so many men on relief," said Braham. "These farmers say the relief situation has reached the point where they must compete with the federal government."

Similar complaints were heard in Kankakee, Cook, De Kalb, Du Page, La Salle, Vermillion, Champaign, Edgar and Douglas counties. Of recent weeks shortage of help has been reported in Minnesota, Wisconsin, Michigan, Kansas and other states, because hands preferred to work for the federal government and let the taxpayer foot the bills.

Prairie States Boil Over Farley's Slur

Washington.—Rumblings of indignation against Postmaster-General James A. Farley's slur against the prairie states in a speech made at Grand Rapids, Mich., came to a head in an outburst on the floor of the house of representatives by Dewey Short of Missouri. Farley had predicted that the Republican nominee in the coming election would be the governor of "a typical prairie state" whose experience as such scarcely fitted him for the White House. "I was amazed to read that statement," declared Short. "It is absolutely inexcusable in any member of the cabinet and chairman of his party. I want it understood that I am not advocating the candidacy of any person. There are many fit candidates in the Republican party. But I resent the slur and slander by the postmaster general passed not only upon the citizens of Kansas, but upon the citizens of Missouri, Illinois, Indiana and all the other great prairie states."

National Debt Skyrockets Washington.—The United States national debt, it is estimated, will be more than 34½ billions by June 20. More than 13½ billions will have been added since President Roosevelt was inaugurated March 4, 1933.

Wheat Imports Mount Winnipeg, Man.—Up to May 8, the quantity of Canadian wheat imported into the United States since the beginning of the crop year was 28,442,000 bushels, compared with 12,775,000 bushels in the corresponding period of 1935.

The county assessors' office has not heard yet from the State House on Holt county valuations but Assessor Sullivan says he has word the state levy will be lowered from last year's levy which was a fraction over two mills. The supreme court has held against the law permitting the payment of delinquent taxes by installment without the interest. Since this ruling the attorney general's office is said to hold that those who availed themselves of the payment plan will have to pay the interest. How it is to be collected and whether such a claim would constitute a cloud on the title to property might become a question of some interest.

Open Gates to Foreign Products.

By Representative Allen T. Treadway, of Massachusetts.

It is clear that instead of protecting the home market the New Deal has invited further competition from abroad. Such was its declared purpose when the legislation authorizing the trade treaty program was passed.

It was argued that the only way we could regain our foreign trade was by allowing foreign countries to sell us more of their products. In spite of the fact that two-thirds of our imports, on a value basis, were already free of duty, the New Deal insisted that the gates should be opened wider to foreign goods. The fallacy of the administration's program has already been demonstrated.

These trade treaties do not bind foreign countries to purchase any goods in our markets. What is happening is that they are taking advantage of the opportunity which the New Deal afforded them to sell in the United States, but they are spending their money elsewhere.

There is nothing to indicate that a continuation of the New Deal's "good neighbor policy" will have any different result. American producers are being sold out and we are receiving no compensating benefits from foreign countries.

Our farmers were promised an outlet for their surplus commodities as soon as the trade treaty program got under way.

Instead, they have seen their foreign markets shrink still further.

For example, our exports of wheat and wheat flour declined from 36 million bushels in 1934 to 16 million bushels in 1935. In the same period, exports of tobacco declined from 419 million pounds to
