TRAILERS BOOMING TRAVEL CONOCO EXPERT DISCOVERS Current heavy sales of auto trailers foreshadow increased expenditures by motorists on long trips, edging travel closer to the status of America's leading industry, Joe H. Thompson, travel expert of the Continental Oil Company declared last week. Thompson said the unexpected "trailer factor" necessitates upward revision of tourist business estimates for this and subsequent years. Last spring Thompson estimated $4,000,000,000 would be spent during 1936 by approximately 10,000,000 touring parties on trips averaging 3,500 miles. "With orders to trailer manufacturers indicating a volume of 200,000 units a year, and with something over 250,000 trailers already on the road, on long if not permanent trips, we can safely add another $200,000,000 to the 1936 estimate," Thompson said. Whether time will prove the accuracy of Roger Babson's recent pronouncement that 65,000,000 persons, or half the population of the country, will be living permanently in trailers within twenty years is "hard to tell now," Thompson said, adding: "I didn't know we had that many potential permanent tourists in our midst, but we may have. I think it is significant that the trailer business will be only six years old next year, when it expects to be producing 200,000 units, whereas the automobile industry was twelve years old before it attained this volume. "It is also tremendously significant that there is a market for 200,000 trailers annually, while in 1935, the last period for which figures are available, less than 100,000 new homes were built," the Conoco Travel head declared. Chicago.—"Women are beginning to understand that under the New Deal this is a government for the people, of the people and BUY the people," said Mrs. Henry R. Caraway of New York, president of the Women's National Republican club. She added that New York women "are seething with zeal over the Republican ticket." "Women want to get away from the Tammany influence," she continued. "They cannot see the distinction between the Farley organization and Tammany in New York, since here Farley controls every federal job just as Tammany controls every city job in New York city."

U. S. Loses Trade by New Treaties Foreign Nations Dump Products Here Under Latest New Deal Policies. Washington, D. C.—American foreign trade balances are shrinking rapidly as a direct result of the New Deal Party's reciprocal tariff treaties, latest figures released by the Department of Commerce show. The United States is losing daily with every country with which the New Deal treaties have been put into operation, the figures show. At the same time, United States imports jumped upward, from $1,644,055,000 in 1934, before the treaties went into effect, to $2,047,287,000 in 1935 after the agreements were in operation. Only Germany Barred. Germany is the only country in the entire world that does not reap the benefits of the tariff reductions in the New Deal treaties, because Secretary of State Cordell Hull ruled Germany out of the reciprocal tariff system. All in all, for the first six months of 1936, foreign trade books of the United States were in the red $9,011,000 as compared with a black ink showing of $29,645,000 for the corresponding period in 1935. Meanwhile, the American trade position with Germany improved more than 400 percent. The report reveals that with 14 of the 51 nations of the world, American exports actually declined in the first six months of 1936, causing Americans to lose millions of dollars. Cuba Shows Gains. The negative balance of trade with Cuba, which is always present because of heavy United States sugar purchases, jumped from $31,629,000 to $51,935,000 under the reciprocal treaties. The favorable balance of trade with Brazil dropped from $26,111,000 to $24,712,000. The favorable balance with Canada dropped from $28,038,000 to $24,662,000. With Sweden, in 1935, the United States had a favorable trade balance of $851,000, the report shows, but in 1936, after the New Deal's tampering, the United States had a negative balance with Sweden of $1,337,000.

Famous Historian Hits New Dealers on Broken Pledges New York, N. Y.—America's most famous historian, James Truslow Adams, in his latest volume on current history, discloses that from the nonpartisan viewpoint of the historian the New Deal administration has broken more pledges to the people than any other administration. "I cannot recall any other president and party which has gone so far in the solemnity of their pledges," Mr. Adams writes in his new book. "Nor do I recall any other such repudiation of them. "That repudiation has not been the result of overwhelming circumstance, but has largely resulted from the endeavor to make over the whole pattern of our social and economic life to meet the personal approbation of a president. "The question at once arises, how can self-government continue if a people cannot put trust in the most solemn pledges of the party and candidates for whom the majority vote? "If we cannot do so, then the system of party government must crumble and we have nothing to take its place, except dictatorship or revolutionary chaos." The book, "The Living Jefferson," is published by Scribners. Mr. Adams is the author, among others, of "Founding of New England," a Pulitzer prize winner, and "The Epic of America."

Evils of Restricted Production No policy of restricting production and artificially raising prices is sound policy. Reduction of production inevitably affects the real wages of everyone; therefore, it lowers the standard of living. And, more than anything else, it leads to the bread lines, to ration cards and to a form of government that is not a democracy but an autocracy. (Frank Knox, Worcester, Mass., speech.)

He Promised a Reduction President Roosevelt has added more than 50 bureaus in the operation of the government.

IN NORTHEAST NEBRASKA The Indian tribes of the district have just completed voting on the Federal Corporation Charter of the New Reorganization Act of June 18, 1934. As the result of that election, these tribes have voted almost unanimously to accept the Charter. Under this new Reorganization Act, it is hoped that better conditions will prevail for Indians through a cooperative program. The members of the Council elected by the tribes will now have the responsibility of carrying out the cooperative reorganization program. The Dakota County Old Settlers Picnic attracted a large number of people. It was the fifty-fifth consecutive meeting of the pioneers there, and many of the people who organized this reunion fifty-five years ago were present last week at the fifty-fifth gathering. The pioneers at the Dakota County gathering stated that this year, 1936, brought them their first real crop failure in that number of years. At most of the celebrations over the twenty-two counties in this district, the farm women who went to Washington this year to attend the great convention of farm women of the world, are among the active people. The exchange of ideas of these farm women who numbered about seven thousand in Washington resulted in unusually interesting reports brought back to Nebraska by these women. Commissioners of Knox county conducted the congressional party about the river reventment work. About $325,000.00 is being spent by Uncle Sam in this work which has as its objective the saving of the city of Niobrara and also to provide future navigation. About 90 per cent of the labor is drawn from Knox county citizens. Old timers who visit Bazile Mills these days find less activity there as compared to years ago. The old mansion once owned by the late George Brooks has been moved away. These old timers say that woolen mills once were active in Bazile Mills. The beautiful trout stream is still there but the trout fishing is said to be "not so good." The beautiful parks around Bazile Mills are filled with visitors these week-ends. The celebrated Bow Valley Scheutzenfest has come and gone. A new king and queen reigns Bow valley today. This old celebration was handed down from the old country, years ago and has been kept alive in Nebraska by the fine farm folk of the Scheutzen Verin, guests to the largest crowd in years at this year's celebration. Each year a wooden rooster is hinged to the top of a high pole. Members shoot until the rooster is shot down. The member who shoots the rooster becomes king. The queen is then chosen and the king is crowned. A big parade is held and singing and folk dancing is included in the celebration. The harvest time is also celebrated and thousands of friends get together and talk over old times and exchange ideas and get better acquainted. A real neighborhood spirit results. The king, because he is so lucky in shooting down the rooster, is given permission to be host at a dinner to members of the Verein. A good many corn-hog checks have not yet been paid to the farmers. County agents are cooperating with this office by furnishing the contract serial numbers of the cases which are delayed. These are being taken up with both the corn and hog sections at Lincoln and in Washington in order to insure payment to farmers who need the money so badly at this time. Hundreds of farmers are appearing at the Congressional office to urge more leniency in the collection of the feed and seed loans. Many of these farmers who borrowed money from the government are now receiving notices asking them to pay. Those who expected a good crop, feel that if they had a good crop these loans would easily be paid. However, due to the loss of their crop, they are looking toward the government for leniency and some extension of these loans. Frank Keiser, a farmer who lives near Bartlett, Nebraska, discovered suddenly that he is a school chum of the Congressman, dating back forty-one years. Lynch, Nebraska businessmen are being complimented on the great courtesy they are showing to tourists who are now going to see the buried city. Dr. Bell, the archaeologist, says he will soon find out how many years ago it was that Indians lived in that buried city. He is certain that the Indians departed from there many years ago because of a drouth. He estimates that the tribe of Indians who lived in that city had trouble with dry weather and winds, and then decided to leave for other parts. He believes that these Indians lived there more than one thousand years ago. Raeville held its annual celebration August 16 with a large attendance of people from surrounding territory present. Raeville which is an inland town was one of the first to take advantage of the farm-to-market road work and now enjoys a fine gravel road which links with highway No. 14. Monsignor Frigge who once presided over the church work at Raeville is now in Germany and letters from him indicate that he is anxious to be back in Nebraska. KARL STEFAN.

BOB SIMMONS SAYS "There are those who seek a re-distribution of wealth. It can be had by two methods. One method of destroying capital investment, consuming the nation's savings and bank sucking the nation's reservoirs. The real re-distribution of wealth that we should seek is the distribution of earnings of businesses through adequate wages paid to men and women in private industry, through dividends, and profit sharing of wealth producing and creating activities. "This administration, admittedly, has failed to solve the problem of unemployment. It has attempted to re-distribute the nation's wealth through taxes and government burdens—it has created unemployment in the process. "Relief must be administered with out political waste. Relief must be and will be continued so long as there is need for it. Jobs, and not relief, are the cure for unemployment. Our men, who are willing, able, and ready to give an honest days work for an honest days pay cannot always go to relief agencies for work. Our mothers cannot always go with babes in arms to relief stations for food, clothing and fuel. We must solve the problem. "The problem of unemployment must be solved with JOBS—JOBS in private industry—jobs at adequate wages and jobs that restore courage, hope and pride to America's men and women. Government policies that will put men and money back to work must be followed."

TIRED I am tired—Oh, so tired—of the whole New Deal Of the Juggler's smile; the Barker's speil; Of the mushy speech and the loud bassoon; And tired most of all of our leader's croon. Tired of taxes on my ham and eggs; Tired of "Payoff" to political yeggs; Tired of Jim Farley's stamps on my mail; Tired of my shirt with its tax shortened tail. I'm tired of farmers goose-stepping to laws; Of millions of itching job holders' paws; Of fireside talks over commandeered mikes; Of passing more laws to stimulate strikes; I'm tired of hourly increasing debt; Of millions of promises still to be met; Of eating and sleeping by Government plan; Of calmly forgetting the "Forgotten Man." I'm tired of every New Brain Trust thought; Of the ship of State—now a pleasure yacht; I'm tired of cheating the Court by stealth; And terribly tired of sharing my wealth. I'm tired of Eleanor on page one; Of each royal "in-law" and favorite son; I'm tired of "Sistie" and "Buz-zie Dall; I'm simply—completely fed up with it all.
