BURNS RECEIVED TUESDAY FATAL TO MRS. F. MURRAY

Found Lying Badly Burned In The Farm Yard of Her Home By One of Her Sons.

Mrs. Frank Murray died in the O'Neill hospital Tuesday night about midnight, from burns received at her farm home Tuesday afternoon, at the age of 34 years, 9 months and 22 days.

Mrs. Murray was at home alone, her two sons being away at school and her husband was a couple of miles north of his home putting up hay. It will never be known just how the accident happened, but it is supposed that Mrs. Murray started to get supper for the family and in some manner her clothing became ignited. She got out of the house and rolled on the ground, finally succeeding in extinguishing the flames, but not before she was badly burned.

Her sons, on coming home from school found their mother and the oldest boy ran to get his father. Mr. Murray went home and then came at once to town and Dr. Finley went out. He brought Mrs. Murray to town and she was placed in the hospital about 5:30, and she passed away about midnight.

Anna Florence Markey was born at Beemer, Nebr., on Nov. 28, 1901. The family moved to this county in 1913 and for several years lived on a farm northeast of this city. On June 7, 1922, she was united in marriage to Frank Murray, son of one of Holt county's pioneer families. ## Near Failure of Corn Crop Makes Seed For 1937 A Big Question

What about the 1937 seed corn situation? That's the question on the lips of hundreds of Holt county farmers daily. Pessimists and optimists are heard on every hand discussing the situation.

That the seed corn problem will be a serious one is admitted, but Agricultural Agent F. M. Reece was informed this week by P. H. Stewart, extension agronomist at the college of agriculture, that the situation has "eased off" somewhat in recent weeks and looks more promising. Lack of reserve seed supplies, however, will make it necessary that the situation requires much more attention and thought than usual.

There are four possible sources of seed. There is old corn, ears from the 1936 crop may be used also they are nubby, seed is available from irrigated areas and shipped in corn may be used.

Experiments conducted at the Nebraska station show that corn up to five years old, provided it has been well stored and still has good germination, yields well. Seed from three to five years old often is planted in the experimental work and on the whole there has been but little difference in the speed of germination and no difference in yield. Agricultural Agent Reece points out. Where old seed, germinating 80 per cent or better, is available, agronomists say it is satisfactory for 1937 planting.

In some parts of Holt county, small acreages of corn with nubby ears having a fair set of kernels are found. Normally this corn would not be considered for planting. It is, however, entirely satisfactory from the standpoint of inheritance and breeding.

What about irrigated corn for seed on dry land is another question arising in the minds of the farmers. Where corn grown on irrigated fields is similar in type and length of growing season to that grown by farmers on the upland or non-irrigated land, the crop from the irrigated fields should be just as satisfactory for seed as that from fields on dry land, experiments indicate. It is believed that irrigated seed from the western part of Nebraska and Colorado can be used satisfactorily on uplands as far west as North Platte or Holdrege.

The fourth source of seed is from shipped-in sources. Adaptation of seed is very important, farmers are warned, and they should carefully check the origin of the seed. Nebraska farmers who bring in corn from the northern half of Iowa or Illinois should purchase, if possible, that having a smooth dimple dent and kernels composed of hard, flinty starch rather than rough, deep kernalled, soft-starchy ears.

ROOSEVELT WOULD LIMIT FARM LOANS TO $25.00 PER ACRE

Would Also Make Agreement To Eliminate Competitive Bidding At Farm Foreclosure Sales.

President Roosevelt has asked all insurance companies and private loan agencies to co-operate with the government in limiting future loans on farm land to $25 an acre, it was announced this week. He indicated that all federal lending agencies would not lend more than that amount if an agreement could be reached. The President expressed belief that good farm land in this country was not worth more than $75 per acre, much even less.

The idea behind the proposal is to keep the value of farm land low. Thus farmers who now have an indebtedness of more than $25 per acre could not hope to keep their land.

The President also suggested that government loan agencies co-operate with private companies and not bid against each other at foreclosure sales. This would make it possible to get possession of the land at a lower figure and leave no possibility of equity for the owner.

The President further is said to have asked the different insurance companies to get together to develop and operate properties which adjoin. This policy would ultimately mean that the government and large companies would own the land and the farmers operate them under conditions similar to the peasants of Europe.

Robert G. Simmons, Republican candidate for United States senator said at Beatrice Friday, when shown the above statement: "This proposal of the president has in it the elements of complete government control of all agricultural activity and control of all investments based on agricultural security, and in the last analysis means a collective system of farming like that in Russia today. Nebraska farms today are in excess of $50 per acre. When these loans become due, what relief is there for the farmer who has a loan on his farm in excess of $25 per acre? This proposal if placed in effect would mean the surrender of every farm in Nebraska upon which there is a mortgage to the loaning agency, in whose favor the proposal creates a monopoly by eliminating competition in foreclosure sales. It is against this type of thing that I shall fight with all my energy if elected to the Senate."

Beef Raised By 4-H Clubbers is Excellent

That Nebraska 4-H Club boys and girls know how to produce quality beef carcasses as well as sleek-looking calves on the hoof was indicated this week as it was announced that beeves exhibiting at the Nebraska state fair had an average dressing percentage of 62.4 per cent when hung up in the coolers.

L. I. Frisbie, state club leader at the college of agriculture, inspected the beeves in the packing houses at Omaha and found all but one of the more than 300 calves graded prime or choice. Heifers as well as steers made nice carcasses.

While Holt county did not have any 4-H baby beeves at the state fair, 26 club members made a very creditable showing and nine took their calves to a 4-H club sale in Omaha Saturday, Sept. 19, where satisfactory prices were received.

Edward Grimes, of Chambers, is holding his first prize calf at the Chambers fair to go to the Ak-Sar-Ben.

Any club members interested in feeding calves next year should start looking now as it is an ideal time to pick good ones.

Housing Still Scarce Here

Notwithstanding the number of new houses built in this city this summer the demand for houses, apartments and rooms continues to increase. There is hardly a day but what we have callers in this office asking for houses, apartments or room to rent. Some of our local capitalists could make a good return on their investment if they would erect a few residences in the city.
