Farmer Explodes Scarcity Theory

Proves Growers Got More for Grains in Years of Big Crops.

PLAINFIELD, ILL.—Farmers get as much or more for their grain in years of large crops than in the small-crop years.

This simple refutation of the entire "scarcity" theory of the Roosevelt administration was found in records of the Department of Agriculture Year Book by Homer B. Grommon, "dirt" farmer with 450 acres near here, and president of the Farmers' National Grain Dealers' association.

Mr. Grommon's conclusions are based on comparisons of the 13 largest crop years of the last 26 with the 13 smallest. Here is what he found: Average value of United States wheat crops in the years of plenty-1 billion 69 million dollars a year; in the years of scarcity (planned or not)-677 million. Average corn crop value in years of plenty-2 billion 115 million; in years of scarcity-1 billion 737 million. Average oat crop in years of years of scarcity-5 billion 574 mil-

Average prices received during the "big" years were: wheat, $1.20 a bushel; corn, 75 cents, and oats, 43 cents. Averages in the "lean" crop years: wheat, $1.01; corn, 74 cents, and oats, 43 cents. Even when the World War years are excluded entirely, the average wheat price was $1.17 for big-crop years and 88 cents for little-crop years.

The following table shows the course of wheat prices over the last

Large crops mean jobs in both the city and country, Mr. Grommon pointed out. The difference between average big-crop years and average small-crop years, including wheat, corn and oats is 26 million tons of grain, which would make 13 million two-ton loads for trucks. Thus a demand would be created for truck manufacturers, gasoline distributors and all the other operations of transportation, processing and manufacture. People would have more money to buy the farmer's products.

When prices are raised by an artificial or "planned" scarcity, there is no corresponding rise in the ability of the people as a whole to pay those prices. Hence, the system must fall down in time.

Roosevelt has no monoply on human kindness.

Hamilton Calls Roosevelt Hand on Communism

NEW YORK .- "President Roosevelt, in his first admittedly political speech, at Syracuse, immediately went on the defensive in an attempt to unlink his administration from Communism," John Hamilton, Republican National chairman, charged here.

"So, again I ask the question I have asked before," said Mr. Hamilton. The Worst Is Yet To Come

The Roosevelt campaign is presenting an alibi for extravagant spending by claiming that the income tax is the only tax that the federal government has levied upon its people and yet Landon talks about hidden taxes and indirect taxes just as Roosevelt did when he was a candidate against Hoover. This has caused the Republican committee to dig up the following list of taxes that are levied to pay for Roosevelt's reckless spending. The bureau of internal revenue says that the government is now

TAXES MORE THAN WAGES

What effect have taxes on the welfare of the workingman and the person who has saved a few dollars?
