

Hitler Views Biggest German Army Maneuvers

Most Ambitious
Battle Practice
Since Days of '14

With camouflaged machine-guns crouched at his feet, Reich-leader Adolf Hitler of Germany surveys the "battlefield" in Southern Germany during the Reich's biggest war maneuvers since the days of 1914. The battle games were held near Berlin. Chancellor Hitler flew his own airplane to the maneuvers and on several occasions watched the progress of the contending forces from the air. The general staff of the Reich's army thanked the realm-leader for permitting the holding of the maneuvers, declaring that they were the most comprehensive in more than 20 years. At about the same time, the Red army of Russia was holding its annual autumn maneuvers.

Like Spanish Dancers

Among the most sought after dancing girls in ancient Rome were those from Gades, now Cadiz, Spain.

Steel Workers Don't Mind Clouds or White Caps

Clouds just over their heads and white caps below their feet are all part of the job to the workers who are raising the steel reinforced structure for mighty Bonneville dam on the Columbia river. This power navigation and flood control project financed by the Public Works Administration at a cost of $32,000,000 is being undertaken under the direction of the Army Corps of Engineers.

COMMANDS G. A. R.

Their ranks steadily thinning, the members of the Grand Army of the Republic have voted to hold their 1937 encampment in Madison, Wis. At their recent encampment in Washington, D. C., the blue-coated veterans elected O. H. William Ruhe, eighty-seven-year-old Pittsburgh, Pa., survivor of the Civil war, as commander.

"Swing" Time Invades Football Field

Coach Leonard Sachs of Loyola university, Chicago, moved a piano onto the playing field to see if he could put some "swing" into his backfield. His contention is that football is a matter of speed and timing, and timing is a matter of rhythm and unison, so Coach Sachs pounds out a little swing music as his players practice punting and broke, field running. The team is regarded as one of the strongest put in the field in recent years by Loyola and is expected to win a good share of its games.

Uncle Phil Says:

Wisdom Is Personal
Most of the wisdom one acquires one can't communicate to anyone else. Each man's life is his own. A monkey never seems to have any repose. Its life is all excitement as it is for some men.

The "hand" who watches the clock will never be the man of the hour.

One has never fully lived until he has spent a year on a farm and explored the resources of the country general store. It's like Crusoe exploring his ship.

We Are as Sheep
Most people would rather work at another's direction than to accept responsibility. That's why good executives are hard to find.

It isn't against the output of foolish ideas that society must be well armed. That can't be helped. It must be armed against so many people believing in them.

There is no such thing as rights without duties.

No creature, human or otherwise, can welcome you quite as wholeheartedly as a dog.
